In this Guide are described the great collections of Babylonian and Assyrian antiquities now in the British Museum. These collections cover a period of about four thousand five hundred years, ranging from about B.C. 4000 to A.D. 500. In them are comprised by far the largest portion of available material for reconstructing the history of Western Asia inscribed in the cuneiform character.

The collections consist of sculptures and bas-reliefs, and inscribed monuments, boundary-stones, gate-sockets, and bricks bearing the names and titles of the kings who made them; baked clay cylinders and tablets inscribed with records of the history and of the religious, commercial, and domestic life of the Babylonians and Assyrians; objects which illustrate the art of Babylonia and Assyria, Elam, and the surrounding nations, in bronze, ivory, terra-cotta, and precious stones; and numerous miscellaneous objects belonging to the later periods of the Persian, Greek, Parthian, Roman, and Sassanian periods of occupation in Mesopotamia.

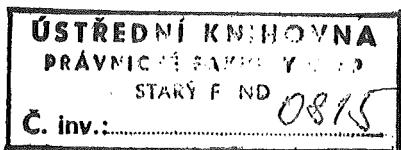

In this, the Second Edition, descriptions of the most important objects acquired since the issue of the First Edition have been inserted, and the whole work has been thoroughly revised. Thirteen plates, forty-four illustrations in the text, an index to the exhibited tablets for the use of students, and a general index have been added.

Mr. L. W. King, M.A., F.S.A., Assistant in the Department, has ably assisted me in the preparation and revision of this Guide.

A GUIDE TO THE BABYLONIAN AND ASSYRIAN ANTIQUITIES.

INTRODUCTION.

The antiquities exhibited in the Babylonian Room and the Assyrian Galleries are the result of a series of excavations which have been prosecuted in Assyria and Babylonia during the last sixty-five years. The scene of these operations is represented in the map on page 2.

The following brief sketch of the History of Babylonia and Assyria will help to a better understanding of the antiquities to be described:—

The two great nations which, in later historical times, are found in possession of these countries, came in the main of one Semitic stock, Assyria being colonized from Babylonia; but this stock itself, particularly in Babylonia, had suffered considerable admixture from the earlier inhabitants of the land as well as from a series of foreign invaders, who in turn succeeded in conquering the country and bringing it under their control. Of the aboriginal inhabitants of the country we know nothing whatever, but it is certain that its first inhabitants of whom we possess records, were of a non-Semitic race, and that they spoke and wrote a language which has been thought by some writers to resemble the ancient Tartar languages. Their principal cities were Eridu, Ur, Erech, Larsa, Nippur, Lagash, and Umma, and were situated in Southern Babylonia, in the country lying at the head of the Persian Gulf, which then extended farther into the land. At a period which it is impossible to fix with accuracy, the immigration of this non-Semitic race into Babylonia took place; the race is known as the Sumerians, from the fact that they settled in Sumer or Southern Babylonia. At a subsequent period the Semites invaded Northern Babylonia, or Akkad, where they settled and took the name of Akkadians. The principal cities in which they established their authority were Kish, Opis, Sippar, Babylon, and Cutha. According to the Bible (Genesis x., 8-11), the leader of this invasion was Nimrod, the son of Cush, who built Babel (Babylon), Accad, and Calneh in the land of Shinar; but, as he is also recorded to have built Erech in Southern Babylonia, it is clear that the two invasions of the country are not sharply distinguished by the writer. The Semitic immigrants, or Akkadians, appear to have amalgamated with the earlier inhabitants, and to have been considerably influenced by their higher civilization. Thus they borrowed from the Sumerians the system of cuneiform writing, and adapted it to suit their own requirements. For a long period both languages were used side by side, with the result that each was affected by the other and gradually adopted many foreign words into its vocabulary. When the Semitic language became the common tongue, Sumerian still survived as a literary language.

The earliest Babylonian empire, in the proper sense of the term, was that founded by Sargon of Agade, the father of Narâm-Sin, who according to the information afforded us by the cylinder of Nabonidus, king of Babylon, B.C. 555-538 (see p. 195 f.), reigned three thousand two hundred years before Nabonidus. As this inscription was written about the year B.C. 550, it has been assumed that Narâm-Sin reigned about B.C. 3750, and his father Sargon about B.C. 3800. Recent excavation and research have shown that the scribes of Nabonidus exaggerated the interval separating the period of Narâm-Sin from their own time; but we are as yet without the means of fixing a definite date for these early rulers in place of the traditional one. From their inscriptions that have been recovered we gather that Sargon and his successors on the throne of Agade were Semites, and since they made their power felt throughout Western Asia, it is clear that the Sumerian power declined when they were kings at Agade. The period of the Sumerian rulers before the foundation of this empire must have been long, for the names of a considerable number of kings and rulers have been identified from the Sumerian inscriptions which were almost certainly written before the reign of Sargon of Agade. Some of these can be arranged in strict chronological order, e.g., the earlier rulers of the city of Lagash (the modern Tello), Ur-Ninâ, Akurgal, Enannatum, Enannatum I., Entemena, and Enannatum II., but the lengths of their reigns are unknown, and their dates can only be approximately ascertained. A king who reigned at Lagash shortly after Enannatum II. was Urukagina, and in his reign Lagash was captured and sacked by Lugal-zaggisi, a ruler of the neighbouring city of Umma. The empire of which this latter king made himself master included the great cities of Ur, Erech, Larsa, and Nippur, and resembles the confederation of Babylonian cities which had been brought about by Eannatum at a still earlier time. In the present state of knowledge it is useless to attempt to assign a date to the founding of those early city-states; but the complex social system and the highly developed culture of such a city as Lagash, to take but a single example, indicate that the beginning of Sumerian civilization may date from a period even as remote as B.C. 4000, or earlier.

From the period of the empire of Agade to B.C. 2500 little is known of the history of the country, but from about B.C. 2500 to B.C. 2200 we have recovered the names of a series of Kings of Sumer and Akkad, who founded successive dynasties in the ancient cities of Ur, Isin, and Larsa. During the early part of this period the city of Lagash was governed by patesis, or priest-kings, who owed allegiance to Ur, among whom may be mentioned Ur-Bau, Gudea, and Ur-Ningirsu. The Dynasty of Ur was founded by Ur-Engur and was consolidated by his son Dungi, who captured Babylon and incorporated Northern Babylonia in his empire. Dungi was succeeded on the throne by his direct descendants Bur-Sin I., Gimil-Sin, and Ibi-Sin, the total period during which these five kings ruled at Ur amounting to one hundred and seventeen years. The rule in Babylonia then passed to the city of Isin, where for a period of two hundred and twenty-five years and a-half there ruled a dynasty of sixteen kings known as the Dynasty of Isin. The dynasty was founded by Ishbi-Ura, and its most famous kings were Ishme-Dagan, Lubit-Ishtar, Ur-Ninib, and Bur-Sin II. The large number of tablets of temple-accounts, dating from the earlier period of the kings of Sumer and Akkad, attest the great prosperity of the country at this time.

From about B.C. 2500 to B.C. 2200 no city succeeded in permanently retaining power in Babylonia; the rule of one city rising as that of another declined. About the latter period, however, we find the Semitic king of Babylon called Khammurabi gaining great influence in the country, and his power eventually became so great, that he was able to expel the Elamites, who under their kings Kudur-Mubug and his sons Arad-Sin and Rîm-Sin had effected a settlement in the ancient Sumerian cities of Ur and Larsa. Khammurabi established a powerful kingdom with its capital at Babylon, and the numerous legal, commercial, religious, and other documents which were written during the reigns of himself and his successors Samsu-iluna, Abêshu, Ammi-ditana, Ammi- zaduga, and Samsu-ditana, prove that the people of the country had reached a very high pitch of civilization. This dynasty of Babylonian kings was brought to an end by an invasion of the Hittites, who swept down from the mountains of Cappodocia, and, descending the Euphrates, captured Babylon and carried off the statues of Marduk and his consort, the national god and goddess of Babylon.

About B.C. 1800 Babylonia was invaded by the Kassites, a race of warlike people who came from a district situated on the east of the Tigris and to the north of Elam. They succeeded in capturing Babylon, already weakened by the Hittite raid, and in establishing themselves in the country, where they flourished for many centuries. At first their authority appears to have been confined to Northern Babylonia, but they afterwards extended their sway over the Country of the Sea, at the head of the Persian Gulf, where an independent dynasty of kings had established themselves as early as the reign of Samsu-iluna. It is clear that in the time of Khammurabi, Samsu-iluna's father, the Semites had already made their way northwards, and had founded settlements on the banks of the Tigris, and that even at this early period the country which they had colonized bore the name of Assyria. The oppression of the Kassites increased the emigration of the Semites northwards, and about B.C. 1700 the northern portion of the empire finally asserted its independence. Assyria became a separate kingdom,* and its power became preponderant in its relations with the mother country. About B.C. 1450 the power of the Kassites was still predominant in Babylonia, and we know from the Tell el-Amarna tablets (see p. 177 ff.) that some of their kings, e.g., Burraburiash, Kuri-galzu, and Kara-indash corresponded with Amenophis III. and his son Amenophis IV., kings of Egypt in the fifteenth century before Christ. By about B.C. 1300 the Kassites seem to have become absorbed into the Semitic population of Babylonia, and the inscriptions prove that for some time before that period they waged incessant war against Assyria, the nominal object of dispute being the boundaries of the two kingdoms. About B.C. 1275 the conquest of Babylonia was effected by Tukulti-Ninib I., king of Assyria, and from this date down to the destruction of Nineveh the history of the older nation is of secondary importance. Assyria became the great power of Western Asia, the leading epochs of whose history under her more renowned kings may be briefly recounted.

* The history of Assyria can best be followed by reading the official accounts of their reigns, compiled by order of the kings of Assyria, and now preserved in the British Museum. A series of these from the earliest period to B.C. 860 has been issued by the Trustees of the British Mu-eum under the title of Annals of the kings of Assyria, price £1. This volume contains the original texts, printed in the Assyrian character, with transliterations, full English translations, Introduction, and Notes,

The immediate successors of Tukulti-Ninib I. still appear to have been almost continually engaged in war with Babylonia, with varying success. Tiglath-Pileser I., B.C. 1100, also extended his arms abroad, and, besides conquering the surrounding tribes, he carried on successful campaigns against the nations which inhabited the country to the north-west along the course of the upper Euphrates and in Northern Syria, and against the peoples who dwelt in the mountainous northern district near Lake Van. In a campaign against Babylonia he was also successful; but this success was followed by a reverse, for the Babylonians invaded Southern Assyria, and carried off the statues of the gods.

On the death of Tiglath-Pileser I. the power of Assyria began temporarily to decline; and after the reigns of his two sons, the country sustained a severe defeat at the hands of the nomad tribes, and it momentarily disappears from its leading position. But in the reign of Tukulti-Ninib II. the Assyrians again emerge as a conquering nation.

The northern highlands of Nairi were once more subdued by this monarch, who was succeeded in B.C. 885 by his son Ashur-nasir-pal, one of the greatest of the Assyrian kings. His conquests extended on every side, and laid the foundation for the further successes of future reigns. His last campaign, which opened the road to the extension of his empire westward, was against the inhabitants of Northern Syria (B.C. 867). Ashur-nasir-pal, besides being a conqueror, was also a great builder. Following the example of Shalmaneser I. he removed the seat of government from Ashur some forty miles northwards to Calah (Nimrûd), where he built a great palace, and carried out other extensive works (see p. 14 f.). Assyrian art was greatly developed in his reign, as testified by the remains of sculptures and articles of ornamentation which have been found.

The limits of the Assyrian empire were carried still further by Ashur-nasir-pal's son and successor, Shalmaneser II. (B.C. 860–825), whose almost ceaseless wars made him master of the whole of Western Asia, from the Persian Gulf to the Armenian mountains, and from the frontiers of Media to the shores of the Mediterranean. His campaigns in the west have a particular interest, for here we find the Assyrians first coming in contact with the Israelites. When the power of the Syrians of Damascus was broken, and there was a general submission to the Assyrian king, Jehu, king of Israel, was among those who sent tribute (see p. 30).

Shalmaneser's immediate successors also appear to have been warlike monarchs, but after their reigns a period of decadence set in. Assyria began to shrink again within her borders, and the nations over whom she had held sway asserted their independence. But in B.C. 745, a powerful king arose, in the person of Tiglath-Pileser III., who in the course of his reign of eighteen years recovered the lost ground, and even pushed forward the boundaries of the empire to the confines of Egypt. His first effort was to subdue his immediate neighbour, Babylonia. His wars in Syria resulted in great calamities for the people of Israel. Summoned by Ahaz, king of Judah, to assist him against Pekah, king of Israel, and Rezin of Damascus, who had attacked him, Tiglath-Pileser entered Syria, subdued the enemies of Ahaz, and carried away into captivity (B.C. 734) the Israelite tribes of Reuben and Gad, and the half-tribe of Manasseh, whose territory lay on the east of the Jordan. Shortly afterwards Hoshea, the new king of Israel, formally became the Assyrian king's vassal; and in the reign of Tiglath-Pileser's successor, Shalmaneser IV. (B.C. 727-722), being detected in an intrigue with Egypt against Assyria, he was himself carried away prisoner. His country was invaded, and Samaria was besieged (B.C. 724), but held out for two years. Before its fall, in B.C. 722, a revolution took place, Shalmaneser disappears, and Sargon, "the son of a nobody," a usurper, succeeded to the empire.

Sargon's reign of nearly eighteen years (B.C. 722-705) was one long series of foreign campaigns. He was the first Assyrian king to come into actual conflict with the Egyptians, whose army, in alliance with the Philistines, he defeated at Raphia, near the Egyptian frontier, upon which he had marched after the termination of the campaign against Samaria. He again subdued Babylonia, and carried war into Elam. More than any of his predecessors, he systematically followed the policy of displacing and removing into other lands large numbers of the population of conquered countries. Amongst others, most of the inhabitants of Samaria were carried away after the capture of the city. Sargon was also famous as a builder. He erected the great palace at Khorsabad (see p. 14), which has been excavated, and carried on other works at Calah and Nineveh. On his death, in B.C. 705, he was succeeded by his son Sennacherib.

The first years of the new king's reign were occupied in putting down revolts which had broken out on Sargon's death. Babylonia, as usual, had thrown off the yoke under the restless Merodach-Baladan II., a king who had been deposed by Sargon, but was again completely subdued. In B.C. 701 Sennacherib invaded Syria, first attacking the king of Sidon, and receiving the submission of the neighbouring petty kings. Then marching south, he recovered the revolted Philistine city of Askalon, and, advancing against Ekron, was met by an Egyptian army which had come to the assistance of that city. At Altaku, in Dan, was fought the second great battle between the Assyrians and Egyptians. The latter were again defeated, and Ekron fell. It was now the turn of Hezekiah, king of Judah, to receive punishment. Sennacherib entered Judæa, captured the small towns, enslaved 200,000 of the inhabitants, and laid siege to Jerusalem. Hezekiah, sore pressed by famine, was compelled to yield, and purchased the safety of the city by tribute, for which he stripped the Temple of its gold.* Satisfied with this result, Sennacherib returned to Assyria. But two years afterwards he again invaded Palestine, Hezekiah, depending on the support of Egypt, having refused further allegiance. The Assyrian army first sat down before Lachish in the south, and a messenger was despatched to demand the submission of the king of Judah, which, however, was refused. Contenting himself for the moment with a threat of future vengeance, Sennacherib marched westward to engage the Egyptian army which lay at Pelusium, one of the frontier towns of Egypt. But the battle was not fought. A great disaster—probably the result of a sudden attack of plague—overtook the Assyrian host; "the angel of the Lord went out, and smote in the camp of the Assyrians an hundred fourscore and five thousand: and when they arose early in the morning, behold, they were all dead corpses" (2 Kings xix., 35); and the remnant of the army returned to Nineveh.

After this there followed wars nearer home. The Babylonians, supported by their Eastern neighbours the Elamites of Susiana, were again in arms; and their stubborn resistance was only quelled after a succession of campaigns in which Susiana was more than once invaded and ravaged, and the city of Babylon destroyed (B.C. 689). It appears to have been in the latter years of his reign that Sennacherib undertook a campaign in Cilicia, where he defeated the Greeks, and is said to have founded the city of Tarsus. He was assassinated by his sons in B.C. 681 (Isaiah xxxvii., 38).

Sennacherib restored and repaired the works of his predecessors, and reared a palace at Nineveh on a grander scale than had ever been before attempted, and extensively ornamented it with sculpture. Many of the wall slabs now in the Assyrian Saloon and the Nineveh Gallery (see p. 32 ff.) were excavated from the ruins of this palace, and among other events, illustrate details of its construction.

Sennacherib's death was followed by an internal struggle in Assyria, which resulted in the accession of his son Esarhaddon to the supreme power. His reign, which lasted to B.C. 668, is marked by wars with Phoenicia, with Cilicia, with Edom, by the usual suppression of revolt in Babylonia, by wars with the Arabs and the Medes, and above all by the conquest of Lower Egypt and the occupation of the country by the Assyrians in B.C. 672. The revolt of Manasseh, king of Judah, was punished by the reduction of his kingdom and his own captivity. But eventually he was allowed to return to Jerusalem, Esarhaddon being of a more forgiving and milder nature than most of his line.

The end of his reign saw the Assyrian king again involved in war in Egypt, Tirhakah, the Ethiopian Pharaoh, having succeeded in recapturing Memphis and raising the country against the Assyrian domination. The defeat of this rising was the first work of Esarhaddon's son and successor, Ashur-bani-pal, who reigned for forty-two years, B.C. 668–626.

Death appears to have overtaken Esarhaddon before he had completed his great palace at Calah (Nimrûd), which has been excavated. A yet more splendid building, his palace at Nineveh, still lies buried and only partially explored beneath the mound which bears the name of Nebi Yînus. Specimens of his architectural remains are therefore scanty in number, although he had the reputation of a great builder, not only of palaces, but also of temples of the gods.

Ashur-bani-pal's first work, as already stated, was to restore the Assyrian power in Egypt; but it was not until three campaigns had been fought, and the ancient city of Thebes had been sacked by the Assyrians (B.C. 666), that their supremacy was once more established. In a series of successful wars Ashur-bani-pal extended, further than they had ever reached before, the northern limits of his empire; and on the south-east a long war with Elam also brought that country under his sway. In the first campaign Urtaku, the Elamite king, was defeated. His death was followed by a revolution, in which a leader named Te-Umman got the upper hand. Against him Ashur-bani-pal led his army, defeated and slew him, and punished his adherents with the utmost cruelty. The decisive battle in which the Elamite king thus perished was represented on sculptured slabs of the wall of Ashur-bani-pal's palace at Nineveh, which are to be seen in the Nineveh Gallery (below p. 38 f.). Elam then passed under the rule of the Assyrian king's nominees, but joining in revolt with Shamash-shum-ukin, a younger brother of Ashur-bani-pal, who was viceroy of Babylonia, it again became the seat of war. Shamash-shum-ukin was defeated, taken prisoner, and burnt alive; and after a protracted struggle, which was brought to an end by the capture and sack of Susa about B.C. 640, Elam was finally subdued and ruled as a province of the empire.

But while Ashur-bani-pal was thus engaged, Egypt shook herself free of the Assyrian yoke; and Gyges, the Lydian king, who had formerly sent tribute, defied the Assyrian power. Egypt maintained her independence, but a war in which Gyges lost his life brought Lydia once more into vassalage. An expedition against the Arabs, followed by the suppression of a revolt in Ushû, a tributary city of Sidon, and Akko, are the last known campaigns of Ashur-bani-pal, who was one of the most energetic, and also one of the most cruel, of the Assyrian monarchs. He had raised the power of his empire to a pitch which it had never reached before; and yet within a few years it was doomed to fall. About B.C. 634 the Medes had already made an inroad on the eastern borders, and in B.C. 626, when Ashur-bani-pal died, the Assyrian power had greatly declined. A few years later the Median king Cyaxares actually defeated the Assyrian army and laid siege to Nineveh. But the end was stayed for a time by the sudden advance of the Scythian hordes, which swept across Western Asia, wasting all countries indiscriminately. Soon after this the combined forces of Cyaxares of Media and of Nabopolassar, an Assyrian general holding a command in Babylonia, invaded Assyria and laid siege to Nineveh. The city held out for two years, but was at length captured and destroyed, about B.C. 607 or 606. The great empire was divided among the conquerors, Assyria proper passing under the power of the Medes, and Babylonia, and other dependencies falling to the share of Nabopolassar, who thus became the founder of the New Babylonian Empire.

The New Babylonian Empire lasted only about seventy years. Nabopolassar died about B.C. 605, and was succeeded by his son Nebuchadnezzar II., who at the moment of his father's death was absent on a campaign in which he had inflicted, at Karkemish, a crushing defeat upon Necho, king of Egypt, and was preparing to invade that country. Nebuchadnezzar reigned until B.C. 562. He devoted himself to repairing the ancient temples of Babylon and beautifying that city. Of his warlike expeditions, we are best acquainted with those which were conducted against the Jews, and which ended in the captivity of Judah. Jehoiakim's second revolt was punished by the capture of Jerusalem and the removal of a large part of the inhabitants to Babylonia, B.C. 597. Eleven years later, B.C. 586, Zedekiah rebelled; Jerusalem was again taken; and the captivity of the people was accomplished. Nebuchadnezzar appears also to have carried on war against the Arabs; and there is also evidence of a campaign undertaken by him against Egypt at the beginning of the reign of Amasis II., but we have no knowledge of the result.

His successors were weak sovereigns who reigned only a few years. In the days of the last king, Nabonidus, the city of Babylon, which was commanded by his son, the Belshazzar of the scriptures, was captured by Cyrus, B.C. 539. From this date Babylonia remained under the rule of the Persians until the time of Alexander the Great, when it became a possession of the Greeks.

Judged by what we know of their history, the Babylonians, and more particularly the Assyrians, appear as a busy, pushing, domineering race—sturdy, warlike, and ruthless, inflicting on their conquered enemies punishments of savage cruelty.

They made considerable progress in the Mechanical arts. They were respectable engineers, and, as far as the imperfect materials at their command would allow, they were successful builders. In Sculpture they appear to have made indifferent attempts to work in the round; the doorways of their royal palaces were adorned with colossal figures of winged lions and human-headed bulls, which were believed to guard the entrance; their walls were covered with reliefs, sometimes, as in the palace of Ashur-nasir-pal, of considerable breadth and power, and at a late period, as in the palace of Ashur-bani-pal, exhibiting great technical skill and refinement. In details of pure decoration they were very successful. The engraving of cylinder-seals was practised from the earliest periods to the time of the Persian Empire, and many beautiful specimens have been recovered (see p. 156 ff.). An estimate of their progress in the minor arts may be formed from the existing specimens of their work in various materials; and special attention may be drawn to the skill exhibited in their treatment of metals. The repoussé patterns on their bowls and shields, and on the gate fittings from Tell Balâwât, are remarkable. Even in the remote periods of the early Sumerian rulers we find statuettes of this material.

In Science they excelled, especially in their knowledge of mathematics and astronomy, and numerous tables have been recovered which the scribes compiled to assist them in their calculations. These include multiplication and division tables, and tables of squares, square roots, geometrical progressions, etc. Metrological texts have also been found, and from these we infer that the Babylonians could undertake such problems as the calculation of the area of a right-angled triangle from the length of its two sides, of a rectangle from its base and altitude, of a trapezoid from its two bases and altitude, etc. The study of mathematics and astronomy was confined to the priesthood, who only imparted their knowledge to their successors in the priestly office, whom they trained in schools attached to the great temples.

In Religion the Babylonians and Assyrians were worshippers of the heavenly bodies and of the powers of nature. Their principal gods were: Sin, the moon; Shamash, the sun; Marduk, a form of the Sun-god, who conveyed the prayers of men to heaven; Anu, the god of the sky, Enlil, the god of the earth, and Ea, the god of the abyss and of deep knowledge, forming a trinity; Rammânu,* the god of storm and thunder; Ishtar, their Aphrodite, who was also the goddess of battle; Nabû, their Mercury, scribe of the gods and god of science and learning; Nergal, god of war and hunting, and also of the under-world; Ninib, or Adar, another god of battle; and Nusku, the fire-god. The number of omen-tablets which have survived bear witness to their extreme superstition. The skill of the Chaldaean astrologers and magicians was proverbial.

* Rammânu, "the thunderer," was one of the principal titles of the Storm-god, and corresponds to the name of the deity Rimmon in 2 Kings v., 18. There is evidence that the god also bore the name Adad, and in an inscription of Sardur III., at Van, the Assyrian royal name, Râmmân-nirari, is written as Adadi-nirari. But Adad was not the god's original name, and Rammânu or Rammân, in view of its familiarity, is retained throughout the Guide.

The Language was a dialect of the great Semitic group, and was more closely allied to Hebrew, Syriac, and Chaldee than to Arabic, Ethiopic, and Sabaean or Himyaritic. It was much influenced by Sumerian, the language of the earlier inhabitants of Babylonia, and incorporated many Sumerian words in its vocabulary.

The Characters used by them in their inscriptions consist of groups of strokes in the form of wedges, placed upright or horizontally: hence the writing has been generally called Cuneiform. Each cuneiform character was originally a picture, which was inscribed in outline upon stone or clay or other substance.* Eventually clay became the common material; but the scribes found it difficult to impress the complicated picture characters upon it easily and quickly. They therefore discarded such parts of the sign as appeared superfluous, and by this process gradually transformed the picture writing into conventional signs. Thus the old Babylonian picture form  meaning a "star," became in the later writing ; and  meaning "gate" became .

The characters were impressed upon the clay while still moist, with a stilus, or an instrument of wood, bone, or metal, having a pointed end with facets.

The inscribed tablets of clay† which have been discovered range in size from 15 inches by 9 to 1 by $\frac{1}{2}$. They are generally of a quadrangular form, varying in thickness. After receiving the inscription they were either sun-dried or baked. Previous to baking it was sometimes customary to pierce the tablets with small holes, apparently to allow for evaporation and prevent fracture (see Table-cases A-I in the Nineveh Gallery). Tablets served for literary, commercial, domestic, official, and general purposes. Commercial tablets were often sun-dried. Most of the literary tablets now in the British Museum were discovered in the Library, which Ashur-bani-pal collected and established in his palace at Nineveh. Clay cylinders were also used for special purposes. In the foundations of the Assyrian palaces have been found such cylinders, of large size, and having six, eight, or ten sides, inscribed with the annals of the kings. The Babylonian cylinders, which usually contain the architectural history of the kings' reigns, are generally barrel-shaped.

The outline of the history of the exploration and excavations of the Babylonian and Assyrian sites is as follows:—

In the year 1842 M. Botta, the French Consul at Mosul, began to explore the mound of Kouyunjik, the site of the ancient Nineveh (see p. 16 f.), but without much success; and he transferred his operations to Khorsabad, a few miles north of Mosul.*

In the year 1845 Sir Henry Layard began the work of exploring the mound at Nimrûd. This mound marks the site of the ancient city of Calah, which, according to Genesis x, 11,† was built by Asshur. In the large standard inscription of Ashur-naṣir-pal, King of Assyria, about B.C. 885, it is said that Calah was founded by Shalmaneser I, king of Assyria, about B.C. 1300. Calah, or Nimrûd, is about twenty miles to the south of Nineveh. The place is called Nimrûd by the natives, as they believe that it was built by one of the generals of Nimrod, the "mighty hunter."

At Nimrûd the remains of the palaces of three kings were found, viz., of Ashur-naṣir-pal (north-west palace, plan letter A), of Shalmaneser II. (central palace, letter B), and of Esarhaddon (south-west palace, letter C). At D the remains of a building, and at E a vaulted chamber, were also discovered.

To the north of the north-west palace, the site of the temple of the war-god Ninib (F), was found the monolith stele‡ of Shamshi-Rammân, king of Assyria (B.C. 825–812), and not very far from this were discovered the two statues which were made and dedicated to the god Nebo* by Rammân-nirari III., king of Assyria (B.C. 812-783).

* At Khorsabad (i.e., "the town of Chosroes") M. Botta found the remains of a large building, since proved to be the palace of Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722–705. The greater part of the sculptures which he excavated were sent to Paris; a very few reached England. The annals of Sargon, which are inscribed upon baked clay cylinders, are to be seen in the Babylonian Room on the Upper Floor, Table-case D. The sculptures from this palace, which were obtained for the British Museum by Sir Henry Rawlinson, are exhibited in the Assyrian Transept, and consist of two colossal bulls and wall slabs.

The remains of the old city walls show that Calah, or Nimrûd, stood upon an area measuring about 7,000 feet by 5,500 feet.†

After the time of Shalmaneser I. (B.C. 1300) the city appears to have ceased to be a royal residence, until the time of Ashurnasir-pal (B.C. 885). The reigns of the kings of the second Assyrian empire who lived at Nimrûd cover a period of nearly 220 years (B.C. 885–668). It should be noted, however, that Sennacherib (B.C. 705–681) transferred his capital to Nineveh, which he rebuilt with great splendour.

The next scene of Sir Henry Layard's researches lay at Kouyunjik.

Kouyunjik, more properly Koyunjik, is the Turkish name given to a group of mounds, nearly 9,000 feet in circumference, situated on the east bank of the river Tigris, just opposite to the modern town of Mosul. It was formerly called Armû-shîyyeh, after the name of an Arab chief; its modern name, Koyunjuk, appears to have some reference to the number of sheep which feed upon it. From very early days tradition has pointed to the mounds as the site of part of the great city of Nineveh; and the ancient legend that the Prophet Jonah was buried under the mosque, which stands on another mound called to this day Nebi Yûnus (i.e., "Prophet Jonah"), supported this view. Inscriptions which have been found on this site prove that the place was called Ninua, or Nineveh. The ancient city of Ninua, or Nineveh, built on the eastern bank of the Tigris, was intersected by the river Khosr. The ruins of its ancient walls and moat are still visible, and indicate the size of the greater part of the city, which appears to have measured 15,000 by 7,000 feet. According to Genesis x., 11,* Nineveh was founded by Asshur. As to the meaning of the name there is some doubt.

The mounds at Kouyunjik were formerly thought to be the remains of a Roman camp, and the first person in the present century who undertook any careful examination of them was Mr. J. Rich, who, in 1820, obtained some fragments of pottery and a few tablets inscribed with cuneiform characters.† He had no hesitation in regarding Kouyunjik as a part of the site of Nineveh. As already stated, the first excavations were undertaken in 1842 by M. Botta, the French Consul at Mosul; but the great discoveries which have since been made are the result of the excavations undertaken by Sir Henry Layard, first for the late Viscount Stratford de Redcliffe, K.G., G.C.B., and afterwards for the Trustees of the British Museum in 1845. They were continued by Mr. Loftus, Mr. Rassam, and others, under the direction of the late Sir Henry Rawlinson, when Consul-General and Political Agent at Baghdad.

* "Out of that land went forth Asshur and builded Nineveh."

† Several of Mr. Rich's tablets were, after his death, given by Mrs. Rich to Miss Hay Erskine, and the latter lady gave them to Miss Holmes, who presented them to the British Museum on April 6, 1895.

View of Babil, one of the principal mounds which mark the site of Babylon and contain the ruins of the palaces of the kings of the last Babylonian Empire.

In the mounds of Kouyunjik and Nebi Yînus the remains of the palaces of three Assyrian kings were found, viz., of Sennacherib (B.C. 705-681), of Esarhaddon (B.C. 681-668), and of Ashur-bani-pal (B.C. 668-626). Sennacherib built his great palace and library close to the north bank of the river Khosr; Esarhaddon enlarged and completed a palace which his father Sennacherib had begun to the south of the Khosr, and built another for himself close by; and Ashur-bani-pal built yet another to the north of that of Sennacherib on the north of the Khosr. Sennacherib appears to have been the first Assyrian king who made Nineveh a royal residence, after his return from his expedition to Egypt.

Operations were also extended to Kalat Sherkât and Sherif

Khân. Kalat Sherkât is the name of the mound upon which are the ruins of the old city of Ashur, the metropolis of the first kingdom of Assyria, where were found slabs and other objects inscribed with the names of the early Assyrian kings, Shamshi-Rammân and Arik-dêñ-ilu, about B.C. 1350; Rammânnirari I., about B.C. 1325; Shalmaneser I., about B.C. 1300; and the famous inscriptions upon baked clay cylinders which record the history of the reign of Tiglath-Pileser I., B.C. 1100. (See Table-case D in the Babylonian and Assyrian room of the Upper Floor.) The ruins of the city of Ashur are situated on the right or west bank of the Tigris, about sixty miles south of Nineveh. Sheriff Khân is situated a few miles to the northwest of Nineveh, and marks the site of the ancient city called in the cuneiform inscriptions Tarbis.

In the year 1854 Sir Henry Rawlinson also excavated the Birs Nimrûd mound,* the traditional site of the Tower of Babel, which lies to the S.W. of Babylon, and marks the site of the ancient city of Borsippa. It is situated not far from the Euphrates, and lies about seventy miles south of Baghdad. Sir Henry proved, from the inscriptions found there, that the building, of which remains still exist, was once the famous Tower of the Seven Planets, built upon an ancient site of a temple by Nebuchadnezzar II., king of Babylon (B.C. 604-562). Each storey of the tower was constructed of bricks glazed with the colour attributed to the particular planet to which it was dedicated. The cylinders found in the ruins are now exhibited in the Babylonian room, Table-case G. In the same neighbourhood excavations were also undertaken by Sir Henry Rawlinson in the buried ruins of Nebuchadnezzar's palace at Babylon, which bears the name of El-Kasr (i.e., "the palace"), and in the mound called Babil.† Simultaneously Mr. Loftus excavated at Niffer (Nippur), Warka (Erech), Senkereh (Larsa), and Mukeyyer (Ur of the Chaldees), in Southern Babylonia.

No further explorations of importance were carried on under British auspices until the year 1878, when the Trustees of the British Museum obtained a farmân from the Porte, and appointed Mr. Hormuzd Rassam to renew the work of excavation. Mr. Rassam's operations extended to the most important of the Babylonian and Assyrian cities, including Abû Habbah (Sippar, the Sepharvaim‡ of the Bible), Hillah to the south of ancient Babylon, Tell Ibrahim (the ancient Cutha§), Birs

Other expeditions on behalf of the British Museum have added to the store of cuneiform tablets and other antiquities, as those of Mr. George Smith, at the expense of the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph, in 1873, and on other occasions in 1874 and 1876; those of Dr. E. A. W. Budge in 1887, 1888, and 1891 and those of Mr. L. W. King in 1901 and 1902–1904, and of Mr. R. C. Thompson in 1904–1905.

ASSYRIAN TRANSEPT.

On the Eastern side of this transept is the Khorsabad compartment (see p. 14), containing monuments from the palace of Sargon, the founder of the last Assyrian dynasty, B.C. 722-705. Here are :—

1. Two colossal human-headed bulls, corresponding in dimensions and style with the pair now in the Louvre at Paris, placed as they originally stood at the entrance of a chamber, and beside these are two colossal figures of mythological character. The fifth leg with which each creature is provided was added to increase its symmetrical appearance when viewed from the front or side. This entire group was obtained from Khorsabad by Sir H. C. Rawlinson in 1849. The cuneiform inscriptions under the bodies of the bulls record the name and titles of Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722-705, and describe briefly his building operations at Dür-Sharrukin, etc., and his wars and conquests. These colossal composite creatures were believed to represent supernatural beings, and they were set up by the doors of palaces to prevent the entrance of evil spirits. (See Plates V and IX.) [Nos. 810, 811, 839, 840.]

2. Slabs from colossal bulls, inscribed in cuneiform with accounts of the campaign of Sennacherib against Judaea. From Kouyunjik.] [Nos. 817, 819, 821, 823.]

3. Sargon, king of Assyria, conferring with his officials; the king holds a staff in his right hand. [Nos. 824 and 825.]

4. Heads of eunuchs and other officials of the Assyrian court.
[Nos. 826-829.]

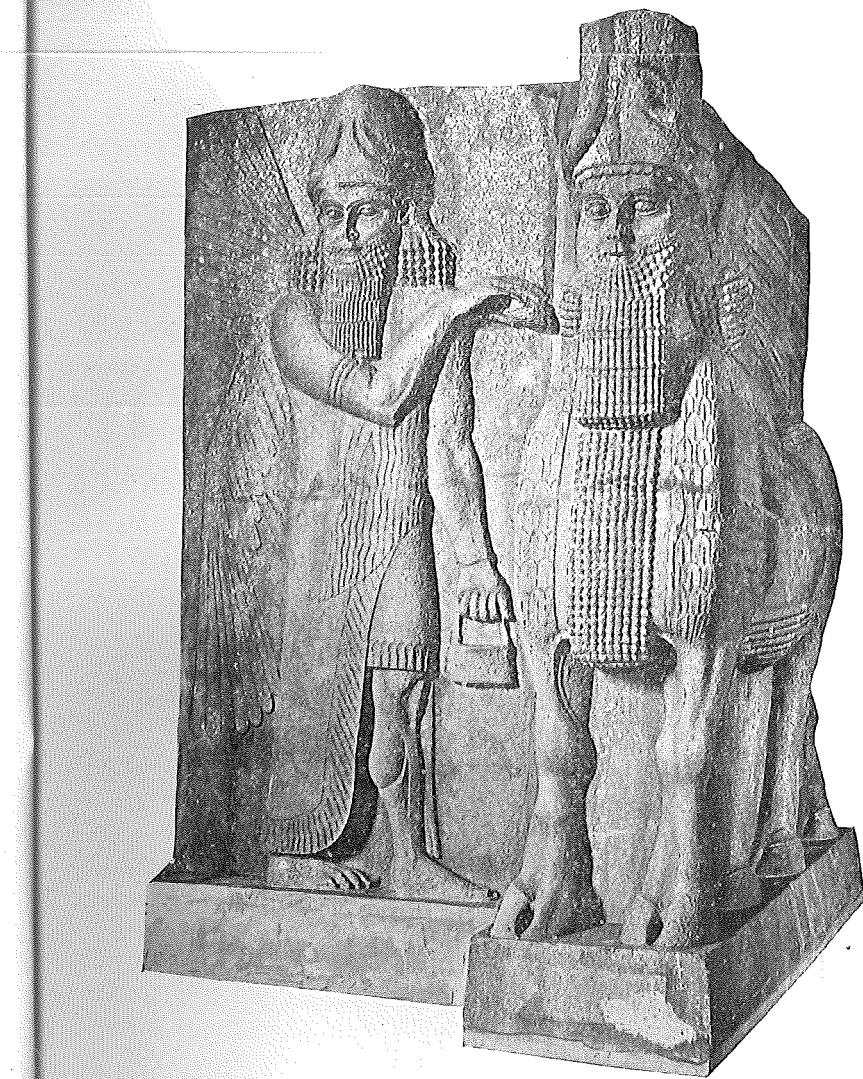

5. Assyrian official shooting birds in a wood with a bow and arrow; he is accompanied by two attendants, one of whom carries a bow, and the other a dead gazelle on his shoulders, and a dead hare in his right hand. This is the only slab which Sir Henry Layard obtained at Khorsabad; it is in black marble. [No. 831.]

6. Assyrian groom leading two horses with elaborate trappings and head-gear. [No. 830.]

7. Assyrian archer. [No. 837.]

8. Captive carrying skin of wine as tribute. [No. 838.]

The Western compartment contains monuments from the palace of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria B.C. 885-860 at Nimrûd, the ancient Calah (see p. 14 f.). The most remarkable of these are :—

Colossal winged and human-headed bull and mythological being, from a doorway in the palace of Sargon, king of Assyria from B.C. 722 to 705, at Dür-Sharrukin (Khorsabad).

[Assyrian Transept, No. 810.]

(See pp. 11 f., 20).

1. Pair of colossal human-headed winged lions, which flanked a doorway in the palace. (See Plate IV.) [Nos. 809 and 841.]

2. Large slab, or stele, rounded at the top, with a figure of the king and emblems of certain Assyrian gods in relief; these emblems were added to ensure the protection of the divine powers which they represented. On the sides and back is an inscription recording the most important conquests of Ashur-naṣir-pal. The altar in front of it stood originally before the stele at the entrance of the temple of Adar or Ninib, the Assyrian war-god.

[Nos. 847 and 848.]

3. Obelisk of Ashur-naṣir-pal set up at Kouyunjik (Nineveh). The four sides are sculptured in very low relief with battle scenes and representations of events which took place in the life of this king; on the steps of the pyramidion is a short inscription. The obelisk resembles somewhat the famous Black Obelisk (see p. 29 f.) of Shalmaneser II., but it has no long historical inscription on the four sides at the base. [No. 62.]

4. Slab sculptured with the figure of a divine attendant. Across the body runs the text of the inscription which is usually found on such slabs, and is commonly known as the "Standard Inscription" of Ashur-naṣir-pal; it contains a summary of this king's principal conquests. [No. 864.]

5. Slab sculptured with an eagle-headed, winged figure performing the ceremony of fertilizing the date palm. [No. 865.]

[Affixed to the walls are fragments of Persian sculptures and casts of reliefs at Persepolis.]

NIMROUD GALLERY.

This room contains a series of sculptures which are continued in the Nimroud (or Nimrûd) Central Saloon (see p. 29). The slabs on the Western side of the Gallery and part of those on the Eastern side were found in the ruins of the palace of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 885–860, in the mound at Nimrûd (Calah) (see p. 14 f. and plan); a few of those on the Eastern side were found in the small temple of Adar, the war god of the Assyrians, close to the palace.

The slabs on the Western side are arranged as they originally stood in the palace.

No. 1. Four-winged figure of a divine attendant bearing a mace.

No. 2 contains representations of the performance of religious rites in connexion with the ceremony of fertilizing a date palm.

The small figure within a winged circle, holding a ring, above the king, represents the god Ashur; it reappears in a modified form in some of the battle scenes, where it becomes the protecting spirit watching over the person of the king. (See Plate X.)

Small ivory panel carved in relief with the figure of an Egyptian king holding a lotus.

[Table-Case F, No. 50.]

The sculptures which follow this scene represent Ashur-nasir-pal's successes in war and in the chase, as—

- No. 3a. A bull hunt.
- No. 3b. King pouring out a libation over a dead bull.
- No. 4a. A lion hunt.
- No. 4b. King pouring out a libation over a dead lion.
- No. 5a. Siege of a city.

PLATE X.

Bas-relief sculptured with two figures of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 885 to 860, attended by winged mythological beings and worshipping Ashur, the national god of Assyria, who appears within a winged circle above the sacred tree.
[Nimroud Gallery, No. 2.]

(See p. 22.)

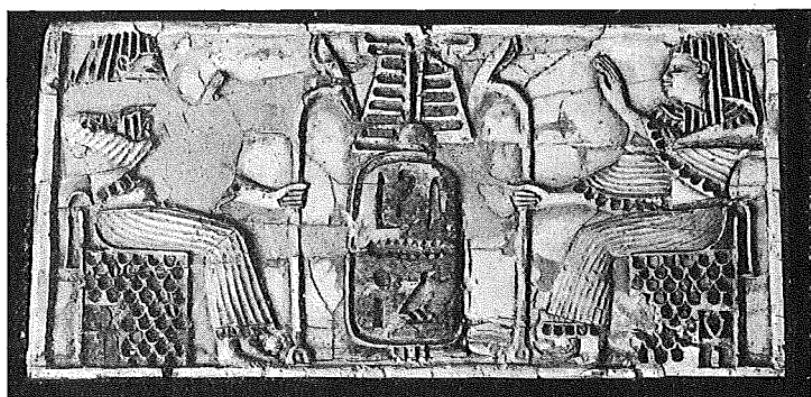

No. 6a. Fugitives swimming on inflated skins across a river to a fort.

Nos. 5b and 6b. Receiving prisoners and spoil.

Nos. 7a-10a. Battle and passage of the host over a river.

Nos. 10b-13b. The capitulation of a city, and the king receiving prisoners and spoil. The original of 12b was so broken that Sir Henry Layard did not attempt to remove it, but made a careful drawing, from which the painting which fills the vacant space is copied.

No. 11a. The return from battle, the cooking of food, &c.

Small inlaid ivory panel carved with representations of two Egyptian personages seated upon thrones before a cartouche (see p. 28).
[Table-Case F, No. 69.]

Nos. 12a-15a. Counting the heads of the slain; return of chariots; battle outside a city.

Nos. 13b-15b. Siege of a city.

No. 16a, 1 and 2. The king and his army passing through the mountains.

No. 16b. The horsemen of the enemy in flight before Assyrian chariots.

Round the Northern and Eastern sides of the room are slabs, generally representing colossal figures.

Nos. 17 and 18. Male winged figures bearing offerings. (See Plate XI.) A similar pair are at the other end of the Gallery.

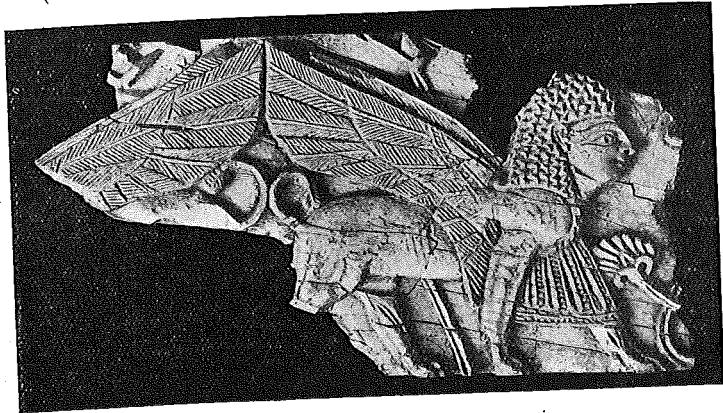

No. 19. Foreigners bringing apes as a present to the king. (See Plate II.)

No. 20. Figure of Ashur-našir-pal.

Nos. 21-23. Three slabs, representing the king, with his protecting spirits and his attendants. Parts of the figures and of their dress have been coloured.

Nos. 24-26. King performing ceremonies with his bow and arrow, and pouring out a libation. (See Plate VI.)

Nos. 27-30 are from the small temple of Adar. Nos. 27 and 28 stood originally, as here, at right angles to each other, No. 27 being on the external wall of the building, and Nos. 28 and 29 on the side of a doorway to one of the chambers. On the opposite side of the doorway was a similar group, of which the slab on the external doorway (No. 32) was alone removed by Sir H. Layard.

Small ivory panel carved with figures of sphinxes in relief.

Nos. 28 and 29 represent the conflict between the god Marduk, or Bēl and the monster Tiāmat, who, although she was the mother of the gods, conceived a hatred for them and made a plan to destroy them. The god Marduk (Merodach) was chosen by his fellow gods as their champion, and after a fierce conflict with Tiāmat he succeeded in slaying her; he cleft her body in twain, and from the two halves he formed the heavens and the earth. The account of the battle forms the subject matter of the Fourth Tablet of the great "Creation Series." (See p. 42 f.) These slabs have been damaged by fire.

Nos. 30, 33, 34. Fish and eagle-headed deities.

No. 35. A four-winged figure, holding a necklace, perhaps the goddess Ishtar of Nineveh.

Nos. 37 and 38. Containing representations of the performance of ceremonies in connexion with the fertilization of the palm tree.

Bas-relief from the palace of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 885 to 860, at Calah (Nimrûd), sculptured with a figure of a winged mythological being carrying an ibex.

Nos. 39 and 40. The king with eagle-headed deities or mythological beings. (See Plate XII.)

No. 41. Winged figure of a divine attendant.

Along the middle of the room are:—

1. Part of a broken obelisk of Ashur-naṣir-pal, with scenes in low relief, in which are depicted the receipt of tribute and other events during the reign of this king. [No. 42.]

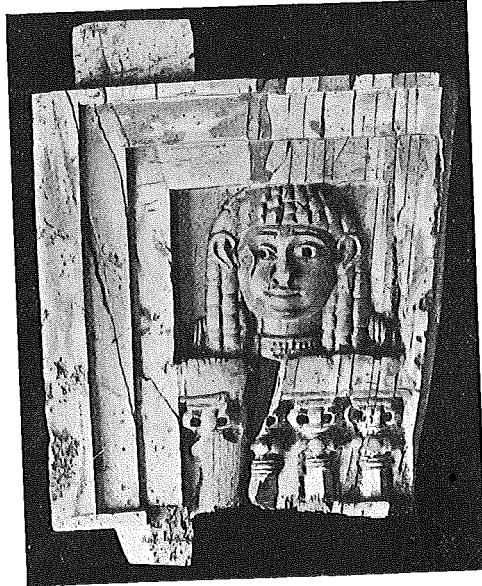

Small block of ivory carved with a representation of a sacred tree.
[Table-Case F, No. 87.]

2. Table-Case A. A selection from the iron and bronze objects which were found at Nimrūd. Of the iron objects of special interest are:—Lock-plate (No. 5), two reaping hooks (Nos. 7 and 8), spear heads (Nos. 6 and 10), rings and staples (No. 14), axe-heads (No. 21), arrow heads (Nos. 33–37), and a group of finger rings (?) (Nos. 29–32). Among the bronze objects in this case may be noted:—A collection of bells of various shapes and sizes (Nos. 42–62), top of a staff (No. 63), feet of a throne in the form of a lion's feet (Nos. 65, 66), foot of a throne in the form of a bull's hoof (No. 77), portions of a clip with traces of enamel (No. 84), object in the form of a lotus (No. 90), heads of the demon of the South-West Wind (Nos. 96 and 97), head of a copper bolt driven into iron (No. 104), calf's head (No. 105), dagger, sickle, spear head and sword sheath (Nos. 113-116), buckle (No. 121), votive tablet inscribed with figures of two deities, before whom stand priests, and a dedicatory text to Nebo by Ashur-riṣṭa (No. 130), axe-head (No. 133), wine strainer (No. 134), and a large axé-head (No. 135).

3. Table-Case B. A selection from the bronze objects which were found at Nimrūd. Of special interest are:—Mirrors (Nos. 6 and 10), sceptre head, silver plated (No. 15), ladles (Nos. 25-27), two-pronged fork (No. 28), lamp (No. 31), large staples (Nos. 36 and 37), handles of caldrons (No. 42), bowl containing bones of the human hand (No. 40), vessel with plaited ornament on the outside (No. 44), funnel (No. 47), handle of casket (No. 48), bowl of fine bronze (No. 50).

4. Table-Case C. A series of flat bronze bowls ornamented on the insides with designs engraved or in relief, in which are represented figures of mythical and other animals, geometrical patterns, &c. These bowls are the work of Phœnician artists in

(To face p. 26.)

PLATE XII.

Bas-relief sculptured with a winged and eagle-headed mythological being, from the palace of Ashur-naṣir-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 885 to 860.

metal, and many of them exhibit the chief characteristics of Egyptian design and artistic execution. On the edges of some of them the names of the artists have been found inscribed in Phœnician letters. These bowls are probably of a later date than the large sculptures in this Gallery, and are not older than about B.C. 700.

5. Statue of Ashur-naṣir-pal, standing upon its original limestone pedestal. The inscription of eight lines on the breast records the name, titles, and genealogy of the king. This is the only extant perfect Assyrian royal statue in the round. From the small temple of Adar. (See Plate XIII.) [No. 89.]

6. Limestone altar dedicated to the god Bēl by Ashur-naṣir-pal, as a thank-offering for preserving his life; in the inscription the king prays that his days may be made long, and his years increased. [No. 71.]

Portion of an ivory panel or ornament carved with the figure of a sphinx.

7. Limestone coffer with an inscription of Ashur-naṣir-pal recording his name and titles, and a summary of his conquests. The two tablets which were found in it are inscribed with texts which deal with the same subject matter; they are exhibited in the Babylonian and Assyrian Room, Table-Case D. [No. 73.]

8. Table-Case D. A series of bronze bowls with designs engraved or in relief. Exceptionally fine examples are Nos. 16, 18, and 21.

9. Table-Case E. A series of ivory carvings found in the south-east building at Nimrūd. Of special interest in this case is the group of heads of figures which illustrate the form of the head-gear and the manner in which the hair was dressed by Assyrian ladies. Many faces are undoubtedly intended to be portraits, and several (e.g., Nos. 3, 4, 28, 44, and 49) are clearly those of Egyptian women; good examples of the Babylonian type of features are Nos. 13, 29, 35, and 52. The eyes, and many parts of the head-dresses were originally inlaid with gold. Nos. 70 to 119 include some fine examples of ivory carving in relief (Nos. 90 to 97) and figures of bulls (Nos. 101 to 105), etc.

10. Table-Case F. Among the fine series of ivory panels, sides of toilet boxes, figures, etc., may be specially noticed:—Figure of an Egyptian woman holding a lotus flower; she stands beneath the winged disk (No. 6). Fragment of a panel carved with figure of a god (No. 8); hero slaying a lion (No. 10); or king in conflict with a lion (No. 12); figures of Ashur-nasir-pal with Assyrians plucking fruit (No. 14); figures of Ashur-nasir-pal with deities and attendants (No. 14); rosette (No. 27); Egyptian king (Nos. 50, 51; see p. 22); bulls and stag (Nos. 56, 58 to 60); female looking out of window (Nos. 65, 67, 70, and 86; see p. 26); carving with figures of winged animals in relief, portions being inlaid with gold and lapis-lazuli (No. 66). Panel with figures of two Egyptian personages seated on inlaid thrones. Each figure grasps the sceptre and has a hand raised in adoration of a cartouche surmounted by the two feathers of Maāt and the disk of the sun. The characters in the cartouche may be read Uben Shu, i.e., "the Sun god riseth, or the "Rising Sun"; the inside of the cartouche is gilded, and the feathers, characters, and edges of the garments are inlaid. This is a most interesting object (No. 69; see p. 23). Portion of a panel with a figure of Harpocrates seated upon a lotus; beside him stands Isis (No. 79); figures of winged sphinxes in relief (Nos. 80 and 83; see pp. 24 and 27). Rounded panel with raised and inlaid figure of a beetle, the type of the Egyptian god Khepera (No. 84); ivory block carved with a representation of a sacred tree (No. 87; see p. 25).

The ivories in Table-Cases E and F prove that a very intimate connection existed between Egypt and Assyria at a very early period; others are of a purely Assyrian character, but all are probably the work of Phoenician artists.

11. Memorial stone of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria, from B.C. 885 to 860, with a figure of the king in low relief; his right hand is raised apparently in adoration of the emblems of the gods Ashur, Sin, Shamash, Rammān, etc. The inscription on both sides of the stele records the name and titles of the king, and gives a list of the cities, and countries, and peoples which he conquered. From Kurkh.

[On the western side of this Gallery is a door leading to the Assyrian Saloon. The antiquities exhibited therein are described below, pp. 32-37.]

NIMROUD CENTRAL SALOON.

In this hall is arranged part of a series of sculptures which were excavated in different parts of the mound at Nimrûd (Calah).

1. Winged man-headed bull inscribed with a text recording the name and titles and conquests of Ashur-naṣir-pal, king of Assyria, from B.C. 885 to B.C. 860. From the north-west palace of Nimrûd.

[No. 76.]

2. Winged man-headed lion inscribed with a text recording the names and titles and conquests of Ashur-naṣir-pal, king of Assyria, from B.C. 885 to B.C. 860. From the north-west palace of Nimrûd.

[No. 77.]

3. Black basalt seated figure of Shalmaneser II. found at Kalat Sherkât, about forty miles south of Nimrûd, on the site of the city of Ashur, the most ancient capital of Assyria. The inscription on the throne is obliterated in places ; it enumerates the king's name and titles, gives a summary of his conquests in Babylonia (Akkad and Kaldu), and refers to the setting up of his statue. [No. 849.]

4. Black alabaster monolith which was set up by Shalmaneser II. (B.C. 860–825) in the central building at Nimrûd. It is commonly called the “Black Obelisk,” and is inscribed on the four sides with an account of the expeditions undertaken by Shalmaneser during the thirty-one years of his reign, and with scenes representing the paying of tribute by the kings whom he had conquered. On the four sides of the obelisk there are in all twenty small reliefs, which are to be divided into five series, each series containing four portions of a scene in which the payment of the tribute of a certain country is represented. Thus the relief at the top of each side forms one series, the second relief on each side forms another series, and so on ; each series begins on the west side of the monolith. The scenes are as follows :—

(1) Payment of tribute by Sūa of Gilzani, who brought silver, gold, lead, vessels of copper, horses and dromedaries.

(2) Payment of tribute by “Iaua (Jehu), the son of Khumri (Omri),” who brought silver, gold, lead, and bowls, dishes, cups, and other vessels of gold.

(3) Payment of the tribute of the land of Muṣri, consisting of dromedaries, buffaloes, elephants, apes, and other animals.

(4) Payment of tribute by Marduk-aplu-uṣur, of the land of Sukhu, who brought silver, gold, vessels of gold, ivory, coloured apparel, and stuffen garments. The relief in which a mountain forest with a lion hunting a horned animal is represented was probably added to show the nature of the country of Sukhu.

(5) Payment of the tribute by Garparunda, of the country of Patin, who brought silver, gold, lead, copper, vessels of copper, ivory, and a rare kind of wood called urkarinu. [No. 98.]

In the large historical text which runs round all four sides of the top and base of the obelisk, no mention whatever is made of "Jehu, the son of Omri." In the portion of the text, however, which describes the events of the eighteenth year of the reign of Shalmaneser II. (i.e., B.C. 842), it is stated that he captured 1,121 chariots and 470 battle horses and the whole camp of "Hazaël, king of Damascus." Now, this Hazaël, ||VVWΔ→+, Kha-za'-ilu, is the "Hazaël, king of Syria," mentioned in 1 Kings xix., 15. From a paper squeeze in the British Museum we learn that Shalmaneser II. received tribute from Jehu during the expedition against Hazaël (see p. 6 f.). (See Plate XIV.)

5. A series of wall sculptures, found in the Central Palace at Nimrûd, illustrating the evacuation of a city, military operations connected with a siege, the impaling of prisoners, &c. The inscriptions record the victories of Tiglath-Pileser III., the "Pul" of 2 Kings xv., 9, who reigned from B.C. 745 to 727. The "Pul" of the Bible is the king mentioned in the Babylonian List of Kings (see p. 172) under the form Pu-lu, ||SS-|. [Nos. 80-95.]

6. Large stone bowl on which is sculptured in relief a scene of the conflict of the mythical heroes Eabani and Gilgamesh with lions (see p. 45 f.). [No. 61.]

7. Stele of Shalmaneser II. (B.C. 860-825), with a figure of the king in relief; above him are emblems of the Assyrian gods. The inscription records the name, titles, and genealogy of the king, and describes at some length his military expeditions. It is interesting to note that in an expedition which took place in his sixth year (B.C. 854), Shalmaneser attacked Irkhulêni, king of Hamath, who with a number of allies had rebelled against his authority. Among the allies is mentioned "Ahab of the land of Israel," ||VVWΔ→+ A-kha-ab-bu (matu) Sir'-la-ai. i.e., the Ahab of 1 Kings xvi., 29, etc. Shalmaneser defeated the Syrian alliance and slew fourteen thousand of their warriors. This stele was found at Kurkh, a place situated on the right bank of the Tigris, about twenty miles south of Diarbekr. [No. 88.]

8. Stele of Shamshi-Rammân (son of Shalmaneser II., B.C. 825-812), with a figure of the king in relief. The inscription records the name, titles, and genealogy of the king, the suppression of a revolt instigated by his brother Ashur-danîn-apli, and describes the military expeditions undertaken during his reign.

The "Black Obelisk," inscribed with an account of the campaigns of Shalmaneser II., king of Assyria from B.C. 860 to 825. The sculptured scenes illustrate the text, and among the vanquished princes is "Jehu, the son of Omri."
[Nimroud Central Saloon, No. 98.]

(See p. 29 f.)

The text is written in archaic characters, probably with a view to their decorative effect. The stele was found in the south-west palace, Nimrûd. [No. 110.]

9. Torso of a female figure inscribed on the back with the name, titles, and genealogy of Ashur-bêl-kala, king of Assyria, about B.C. 1080. Found at Kouyunjik. [No. 849.]

10. Colossal lion inscribed with the name and titles of Ashur-nasir-pal, and a brief account of his principal conquests. From the small temple of Ninib at Nimrûd. (See Plate I.) [No. 96.]

11. A small group of wall sculptures of Tiglath-Pileser III., from the south-west palace at Nimrûd, which represent the evacuation of the city of Azkuttu. They appear to have been removed from an old palace and placed by Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, B.C. 681–668, in that which he built at Nimrûd.

[Nos. 64–67.]

12. Head of a human-headed bull which was excavated in the ruins of the same palace. [No. 68.]

13. Upper part of a broken obelisk set up at Kouyunjik by Tiglath-Pileser I., B.C. 1100 to record his hunting expeditions. On the south side of the obelisk is a small relief, in which the king is represented receiving the homage of the chief men of certain tributary peoples. Above are the emblems of certain gods, and from the emblem of Ashur reach forth two hands towards the king. In one of these is a bow which the god presents to the king for use in battle and in the chase. [No. 63.]

14. Two statues of the god Nebo excavated by Mr. H. Rassam in the ruins of the temple of Adar at Nimrûd. From the inscriptions on the bodies we learn that these statues were made by Bêl-tarşî-iluma, governor of the city of Calah (Nimrûd), and were dedicated to the god with the view of ensuring a long life to king Rammân-nirari III., B.C. 812–783, and to the queen Sammu-ramat, and to himself. A number of interesting attributes of the god Nebo are enumerated in the text, which ends with the words:—“O thou who shalt come after, put thy trust in Nebo, and put not thy trust in any other god.” Summuramat is probably the original of the famous queen Semiramis mentioned by Greek and Roman writers. [Nos. 69 and 70.]

INSCRIPTIONS FROM JERABÍS, etc.

Near the pillars on the east side of the Central Saloon are:—

I. A series of basalt sculptures and fragments, from Jerabís, the supposed site of the ancient Karkemish (see p. 11), and other places, inscribed in a hieroglyphic character which has been called Hittite. The most interesting are:—

1. Portion of a building.
2. Portion of a semicircular column, sculptured with a draped figure. The figure is certainly of a later date than the inscription upon the column.
3. Fragment, with a winged figure hold a basket.
4. Cast of a lion. From Marash, in the north of Asia Minor.
5. Cast of a lion. From Marash, in the north of Asia Minor.
6. Basalt slab with a figure in relief.
7. Bowl. From Abû Habbah.
8. Basalt slab with a figure in relief.
9. Monolith with the figure of a king in relief. From Tell Salahîyyeh near Damascus. Presented by the Palestine Exploration Fund.

II. A few sculptures of the Roman period, and a stone door cut in imitation of a wooden door studded with iron nails; from Gebel Hauran, in Bashan, on the east side of the Jordan.

[Returning to the Nimroud Gallery, the visitor enters the Assyrian Saloon.]

ASSYRIAN SALOON.

The sculptures arranged in this room belong to the reigns of Tiglath-Pileser III., B.C. 745–727, Sennacherib, B.C. 705–681, and his grandson Ashur-bani-pal, B.C. 668–626. The sculptures of Tiglath-Pileser III. were discovered in the ruins of his palace at Nimrûd, and those of Sennacherib and Ashur-bani-pal were found among the ruins of the two palaces at Nineveh. Those of the reign of Ashur-bani-pal belong to the best period of Assyrian art, and are executed with greater faithfulness to nature and with more delicacy of modelling than the bas-reliefs from Nimrûd or the early monuments from Nineveh.

The visitor first passes through the ante-room, and then makes the circuit of the gallery, which he should enter from the further side. The sculptures are arranged as follows:—

1. Inscription recording the conquests of Tiglath-Pileser III., B.C. 745–727. The cuneiform characters on this slab are the largest known. [No. 616.]
2. Assault of a city by Tiglath-Pileser III. and the capture of the gods of the enemy, which are being borne away on their thrones

(To face p. 32.)

PLATE XV.

by the victorious Assyrian soldiers, probably for exhibition in the temples of Ashur and other gods in the city of Calah, or Nineveh.

[No. 863.]

3. Bas-relief on which is a representation of Tiglath-Pileser III., receiving the submission of the enemy. The king stands with one foot placed on the neck of a prostrate foe. [No. 862.]

[Belonging to this series of slabs is one (No. 618) which is placed at the north end of the west wall on the ground floor.]

4. A series of wall sculptures on which are figures of Assyrian gods and mythological scenes. [Nos. 17, 18, 80, 81.]

5. A series of sculptures describing the siege, assault and capture of the strongly fortified city of Lachish by Sennacherib, king of Assyria, B.C. 705-681. On slab No. 28 Sennacherib is seen seated on his throne, which has been set near some vines and fig-trees outside the city. His officers are reporting to him the events of the siege, and behind them the representatives of the conquered people kneel or stand. In a space a little in front of the king are four lines of cuneiform text which read : "Sennacherib, king of hosts, king of Assyria, sat upon his throne of state, and the spoil of the city of Lachish passed before him." (See Plate XV.)

[Nos. 21-32.]

6. Figures of soldiers and captives. [Nos. 19 and 20.]

7. Figures of Assyrian soldiers. [Nos. 13 and 15.]

8. A long series of sculptured slabs on which are represented the lion-hunts and adventures in the chase of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668-626. Slab No. 118 is of special interest. Here we see Ashur-bani-pal standing and pouring out a libation over four dead lions which lie before an altar; he is accompanied by a Bowman, musicians bearing stringed instruments, and men with fans. The three lines of cuneiform text above the scene read : "I, Assur-bani-pal, king of hosts, king of Assyria, whom Ashur and Bélit have endowed with might, slew four lions. The powerful bow of Ishtar, the lady of battle, over them I held, and I poured out a libation over them." (See Plate XVI.)

[Nos. 33-53, 63-74, 104-114, 118, 119.]

Descending the stairs and passing round the room in the same direction as that followed above, the visitor will find :—

1. A group of sculptured slabs on which scenes in Ashur-bani-pal's camp are represented, i.e., the preparation of food, the bringing in and registration of spoil, etc. [No. 1-8.]

2. Figures of soldiers and musicians. [Nos. 9, 12, 14, 16.]

3. Campaign against Shamash-shum-ukîn, king of Babylon, by his brother Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria. Shamash-shum-ukîn owed his elevation to the throne of Babylon to his brother, but before he had reigned many years he joined with the Elamites in a revolt against his brother's rule, and involved Assyria and Babylonia in war. Shamash-shum-ukîn was defeated and was burnt to death in his pâlace. [Nos. 89, 95, 97, 99, 100.]

4. Sculptured slabs on which are represented the invasion of Elam by Ashur-bani-pal, the capture of an important city there, and the reception of captives. [No. 54-62.]

5. Death of the king of Elam. [No. 95.]

6. Wars against the Arabians, Egyptians and Babylonians. [Nos. 83-94.]

7. Attendants bringing offerings. [No. 96.]

8. Pavement slabs with ornamental designs. [Nos. 101 and 102.]

9. Capture and burning of the city of Khamanu in Elam. [No. 120.]

10. Ashur-bani-pal and his queen seated in a garden drinking wine and attended by musicians. On one of the trees near hangs the head of Te-umman (see p. 39). [No. 121.]

11. Bringing in a dead lion from the desert. [No. 122.]

12. Inscription recording the name and titles of Sargon, b.c. 722-705, and describing briefly his conquests in Elam, Judah, Hamath, the region about Lakes Van and Urmî, and the coast lands of the Mediterranean. In it mention is made of the restoration of the palace which Ashur-nasir-pal had built at Calah about one hundred and fifty years before Sargon's time; when finished, Sargon turned the palace into a storehouse for the treasures and spoil which he collected during his campaigns. [No. 614.]

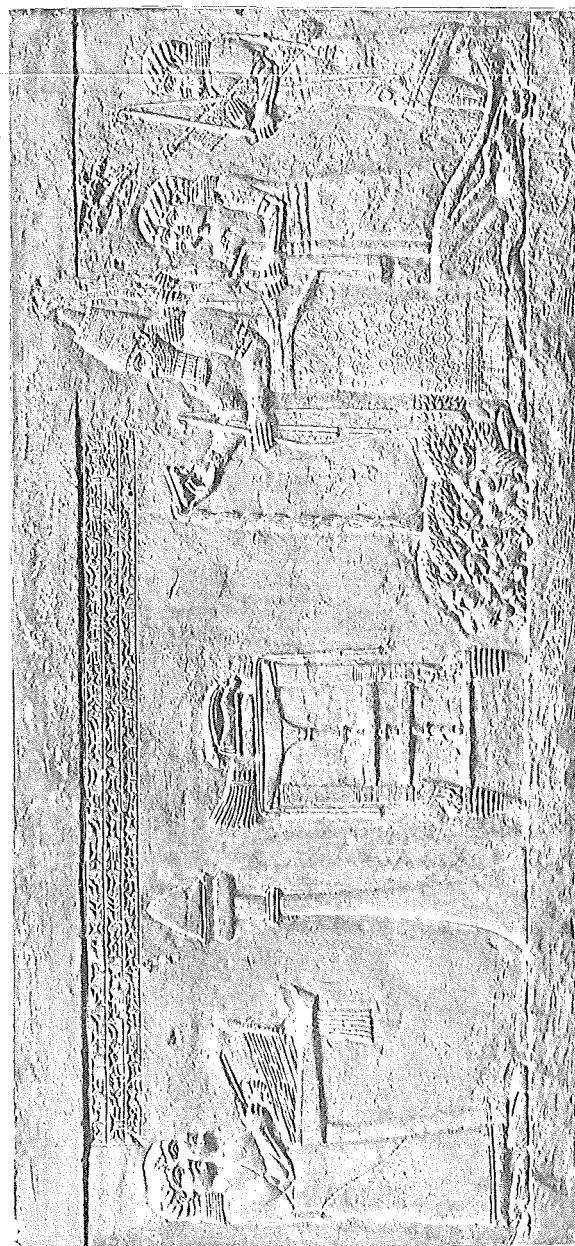

13. Inscription recording the conquests of Ashur-nasir-pal, b.c. 885-860. [No. 615.]

14. Inscription of Rammân-nirari III., b.c. 811-872, in which this king records the names of his ancestors Shamshi-Rammân, Shalmaneser II., Ashur-našîr-pal, and traces his pedigree back to Tukulti-Ninib I., b.c. 1275-1250, and to Shalmaneser I., b.c. 1300. From Nimrûd. [No. 611.]

15. Eagle-headed mythological figure, performing the religious ceremony of fertilizing the date-palm. From the palace of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria, b.c. 885-860, in the mound at Nimrûd (Calah). Presented by His Majesty the King, 1903. [No. 98060.]

(To face p. 34.)

PLATE XVI.

[Assyrian Saloon, No. 118.]
(See p. 33.)

16. Winged mythological figures, kneeling beside a sacred tree, or date-palm. From the palace of Ashur-naṣir-pal at Nimrûd. Presented by His Majesty the King, 1903. [Nos. 98061, 98062.]

In a case at the end of the room are exhibited the bronze bands from Gates made by Shalmaneser II., B.C. 860-825, to record his battles and conquests (see Plates III. and XVII.). They are said to have been found at Tell Balâwât, and were obtained by Mr. H. Rassam in 1879. The principal scenes presented are :—

BAND 1. Expedition against Karkemish. Receipt of tribute from Sangara, king of Karkemish, and reception of the same by Shalmaneser.

BAND 2. Siege of a city of Ararat. Battle between the soldiers of the Assyrians and the people of Ararat; receipt of tribute by Shalmaneser.

BAND 3. Capture and destruction of the cities of Pargâ and Adâ, the capture and spoiling of the city of Karkara; receipt of spoil by Shalmaneser.

BAND 4. Expedition of Shalmaneser to the land of Nairi. The king offering up a sacrifice to the gods of the water, while a priest throws into the water haunches of some animal; march of the Assyrian army over the mountains; capture of the city of Suguni; procession of captives.

BAND 5. Reception of the tribute of the ships of Tyre and Sidon by the king; expedition against the city of Khazazi; the capture of the city; burning of the city and slaughter of prisoners.

BAND 6. Passage of the Assyrians over the Euphrates, and receipt of tribute by the king, from Adini, son of Dakuri, of the city of Enzudi.

BAND 7. Capture and destruction of the city of Ilu-khiti, king of Ruri; outside the city are the heads of the vanquished in rows.

BAND 8. Homage paid by a king of a district in Ararat to Shalmaneser; arrival of the captain of the Assyrian host in a rocky glen, and the offering up of a sacrifice; capture and burning of the city of Kilisi under the authority of Rizua, king of a district near the sources of the Tigris; march to the source of the Tigris; the carving of an image of the king upon a rock, and the performance of ceremonies in the rocky district where the river rises.

BAND 9. Siege of the city of Arnê, which was under the authority of Arame, king of Ararat; siege and capture of another city in Ararat; scenes in the Assyrian camp, etc.

BAND 10. Receipt of tribute by Shalmaneser; scenes in the Assyrian camp, etc.

BAND 11. Capture of the city of Ashtamaku; capture of a second city, on the walls of which Irkhuléni, king of Hamath, reclines upon a couch and directs the defence; reception of the princes of Hamath by Shalmaneser, and procession of prisoners.

BAND 12. Expedition against the country of Ararat; a captured city in flames; slaughter and impalement of prisoners; cutting down a grove, and the bringing in of a huge vessel as spoil.

BAND 13. The siege of the city of Dabigi, one of the cities of Akhuni, king of Til-Barsip; Shalmaneser in his pavilion; reception of the prisoners and spoil of the city of Til-Barsip.

Below, in the lower part of the Case, are shown the pivots of the large gates from Balâwât, and some bands of bronze from a smaller pair of gates from the same place.

At the Northern end of the room is a part of a pavement from the palace of Ashur-bani-pal at Kouyunjik. Below, to the left and right of the platform are:—

1. Winged and human-headed figure, performing the religious ceremony of fertilizing the date-palm. From the palace of Ashurnasir-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 885–860, at Nimrûd. Presented by the Library Committee of the Corporation of the City of London, 1903.

2. Winged and eagle-headed mythological figure performing the religious ceremony of fertilizing the date-palm. From the palace of Ashurnasir-pal, king of Assyria, at Nimrûd. Presented by J. Howard, Esq., 1907.

3. Fragments of a Vannic inscription from Armenia, found in the village of Sarab between Urmî and Sûâsh-Bâlák. Presented by Pastor W. Faber, of Berlin, 1896.

4. Winged and human-headed figure performing the religious ceremony of fertilizing the date-palm. From the palace of Ashurnasir-pal, king of Assyria, at Nimrûd. Presented by the Library Committee of the Corporation of the City of London, 1903.

In the vestibule are:—

1. Alabaster sarcophagus from Sidon, about B.C. 300.
2. Cast of the sarcophagus of Eshmûnâzâr, king of Sidon, about B.C. 360. Presented by the Museum of the Louvre.

In the inscription Eshmûnâzâr II., king of Sidon, son of Tabnith, complains that he is dying before his time. He forbids all men to open his sarcophagus in search of treasure, for there is none; or to remove his tomb, or to build another over it. The inscription also states that he, King Eshmûnâzâr, son of Tabnith, king of Sidon, and Queen Ammastoreth, his mother, the priestess of Ashtoreth, built the temples of Ashtoreth and Astarte in Sidon ; the temple of Eshmûn ; the sacred grove En-Yidlâl in the mountain ; and the temple of Baal of Sidon and that of Astarte-shem-Baal. He, the "lord of kings," bought at great price the most excellent land of Dâr and Joppa, in the territory of Shârân, and joined it to the borders of Sidon for ever.

3. Cast of the cover of the sarcophagus of an Egyptian official called Pen-Ptah, about B.C. 400. The sarcophagus was usurped by Tabnith, king of Sidon, son of Eshmûnâzâr I., and father of Eshmûnâzâr II., about B.C. 369, and his inscription in Phoenician is cut on the foot of it.

4. Sepulchral tablet of Madmîyah, the daughter of Sa'adyah, the son of Abraham, dated in the 1644th year of the Era of Contracts (A.D. 1333). Presented by Thomas Holdsworth Newman, Esq., 1886.

5. Hebrew sepulchral tablets of a lady named Rachel, and of Zechariah, son of the Rabbi David. From Aden. Presented by H. Hopley White, Esq., 1847.

[The visitor ascends the staircase, and passing through the Nimroud Central Saloon, enters the Nineveh Gallery.]

NINEVEH GALLERY.

The bas-reliefs which line the walls of this room were excavated by Sir Henry Layard, from the mound of Kouyunjik, Nineveh, between the years 1845–1854 (see p. 16); a large number of them were fractured by the action of fire when Nineveh was destroyed by the allied forces of the Babylonians and Medes about B.C. 609. As far as possible the fragments have been laid in their proper places; no attempt at restoration has been made.

The sculptures on the left or Western side of the Gallery are, with the exception of No. 1, all of the period of Sennacherib, B.C. 705–681, and illustrate the wars which he waged in Babylonia and other countries.

No. 1 is a cast from a bas-relief cut in the rock, at the mouth of the Nahr el-Kelb, near Bêrût, in Syria, close to the ancient highway between Egypt and Syria. It represents Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, B.C. 681–668, standing in an attitude of worship, above him being emblems of deities. The inscription on the original is much mutilated. In the same rock are also six similar Assyrian slabs and three Egyptian bas-reliefs, with hieroglyphic inscriptions, bearing the name of Rameses II., who passed through Syria about B.C. 1300.

[No. 1.]

No. 2. Assyrian galley with ram and two banks of oars; on the upper deck shields are fastened to protect the soldiers and crew from arrows.

Nos. 4-8. Battle in a marsh, and registration of prisoners and spoil.

Nos. 9-14. Fragments of sculptures representing slingers, archers, etc.

Nos. 15-19. A series, of which the upper portion is lost, representing the return from a battle.

Nos. 20-26. Part of a series, representing the assault on the city of . . . alammu* (Jerusalem ?) by the Assyrians. The city is seen on slab No. 25, as situated on a high dome-shaped hill; the archers of the besieging forces for the most part shielded by wicker screens.

Nos. 27-29. Execution of prisoners with Jewish features.

No. 26a. A small slab representing the cooking of food in the Assyrian camp.

Nos. 36-43. Part of a series of sculptures which originally lined the two walls of a long, narrow gallery which lead, by an inclined plane, from Sennacherib's palace to the plain outside the palace grounds. On the one side, descending the slope, are horses, led by grooms; on the other, ascending into the palace, are servitors, bearing food for a banquet. No. 39, on which is seen a marshal or chamberlain, with a staff, was originally placed, as here, at a projection in the wall. Among the attendants or servitors, represented on Nos. 41-43, is one, bearing in each hand a rod with two rows of dried locusts. The other attendants carry birds, pomegranates and other fruit, etc.

No. 44. An arch-headed slab, with a small mutilated figure, in front of which are various emblems of the gods. The lower part of the slab contains an inscription relating to the buildings of Sennacherib.

The slabs numbered 45-50, on the right or Eastern side of the Gallery, were sculptured for Ashur-bani-pal, B.C. 668-626, and illustrate his conquest of Elam.

* The beginning of the name is lost.

Nos. 45-47, represent a battle between the forces of Ashur-bani-pal and Te-umman, king of Elam, on the plain between the river Eulaeus and the city of Shushan. The successive scenes of the battle are depicted with great spirit:—the rout of the Elamites; Urtaku, an Elamite prince, calling, in his despair, on an Assyrian soldier to behead him (46); the overturning of the chariot of Te-umman (46, top row), who falls to the ground wounded by an arrow; Tamritu, defending his father, Te-umman, with his bow; the Assyrians cutting off the head of Te-umman (47); Assyrian warriors in a chariot, carrying the head of Te-umman to Assyria (45).

The following are translations of the descriptions of events in the battle:—

(1) Over Urtaku, who is wounded and surrenders: “Urtaku, the son-in-law of Te-umman, was wounded by an arrow but not killed. He commanded an Assyrian to cut off his head, saying, ‘Come, cut off my head, and carry it into the presence of the king my lord that [the Assyrians] may show mercy.’”

[No. 47.]

(2) Over Te-umman, who had been wounded by an arrow and kneels on the ground; he is defended by his son Tamritu with a bow: “Te-umman in despair said unto his son, ‘Shoot with the bow.’”

Over Te-umman and Tamritu, who are being slain by Assyrian soldiers: “Te-umman, king of Elam, was wounded in fierce battle, and his eldest son Tamritu took him by the hand, and to save their lives they fled and bid themselves in a wood. With the help of the gods Ashur and Ishtar I [Ashur-bani-pal] seized them and I cut off their heads in the presence of each other.”

(4) Over soldiers in a chariot who are carrying Te-umman's head to Assyria: “The head of Te-umman, king of Elam, which they had cut off in the battle in the sight of mine army as [a symbol of] glad tidings they carried quickly to Assyria.”

Nos. 48-50. Reception at Arbela, by Ashur-bani-pal, of two ambassadors from the king of Armenia, the officers of the Assyrian king pointing out to them the tortures inflicted on Elamite prisoners. An officer conducts Ummanigash, nephew of Te-umman, to be installed as king of Elam, and the Elamites come out to pay homage. In the distance is the city of Madaktu.

Two small slabs, placed on the other side of the gallery (Nos. 34, 55) show the journey of Ummanaldash II., king of Elam, to Assyria, after his capture by the soldiers of Ashur-bani-pal, and the arrival of the Elamite princes in the presence of the Assyrian king ; these were probably incidents of the second war against Ummanaldash II.

The remaining bas-reliefs in this room belong to the period of Sennacherib.

Nos. 51-56 formed originally part of a series illustrating the architectural works of that king, including the construction of the building from which the slabs exhibited in this part of the gallery were obtained. On Nos. 51 and 52 a human-headed colossal bull lying on a sledge is being moved into position by ropes and levers. On one side the construction of a mound or platform is shown, and the king himself is present to direct the operations. A similar mound appears on No. 53, where captives from the city of Balada are making preparations to build the gates of the palace. On No. 54, some heavy object is being moved ; on No. 55 is another colossal bull ; and on No. 56 is the king in his chariot. In the immediate background are men carrying picks, saws, spades, etc., and drag carts laden with ropes and beams ; and a view of the surrounding country with its rivers and trees is seen beyond.

On Nos. 57-59 is Sennacherib and his soldiers besieging a city on the bank of a river ; followed by a scene representing the king in his chariot receiving spoil and captives, who are beheaded in his presence.

Along the middle of the gallery are placed nine table-cases, in which are exhibited some of the most valuable and interesting tablets from the Royal Library at Nineveh. This library existed in a humble form in the days of Sargon, king of Assyria from B.C. 722 to B.C. 705, and his son Sennacherib and grandson Esarhaddon added to its contents. During the reign of his great-grandson Ashur-bani-pal, B.C. 668 to B.C. 626, many thousands of tablets were copied and incorporated with older works already in the library. Ashurbani-pal caused lists of cuneiform signs with their phonetic values, lists of words, vocabularies, etc., to be compiled, and, in order to render the old Sumerian language easier for study by his scribes, he attached to several of the copies of the Sumerian works, which he had made for the Royal Library, versions in the Assyrian tongue, which was in common use at the time. This great king sent scribes to the ancient cities of Babylonia and Assyria where libraries existed, to make copies of rare and important works for him, and, when his collection was complete, it is tolerably certain that it comprised works upon every branch of learning and science known to the wise men of his day. Almost every tablet of importance in the Royal Library bore upon it the following words :—“The palace “of Ashur-bani-pal, king of hosts, king of Assyria, who “putteth his trust in the gods Ashur and Bêlit, on whom “Nabû and Tashmetu have bestowed ears which hear and eyes “which see. I have inscribed upon tablets the noble products “of the work of the scribe, which none of the kings who have “gone before me had learned, together with the wisdom of “Nabû in so far as it existeth [in writing]. I have arranged “them in classes, I have revised them and I have placed them “in my palace, that I, even I, the ruler who knoweth the light “of Ashur the king of the gods, may read them. Whosoever “shall carry off this tablet, or shall inscribe his name upon it “side by side with mine own, may Ashur and Bêlit overthrow “him in wrath and anger, and may they destroy his name and “posterity in the land.”

The tablets exhibited in this gallery were found among the ruins of the palaces, which the kings of the last Assyrian Empire built on a flat low hill now called Kouyunjik, which marks the site of the central portion of the great city of Nineveh, and stands nearly opposite to the modern town of Mosul. From this place over twenty thousand tablets and fragments have been excavated during the last fifty years, and are preserved in the British Museum. The tablets are made of a light brown or reddish clay ; they were inscribed, when the clay was still moist, with a three-sided blunt instrument made of wood, metal or ivory, and were afterwards baked in an oven. A number of small holes were made in the surface of the larger tablets at intervals, to allow the steam to escape during the process of baking. It is quite certain that the tablets were arranged in the Royal Library at Nineveh in order, and it is probable that they were classified and laid on shelves. The back of each tablet is rounded or convex, and this would preclude the possibility of the tablets of a series being piled one upon the other. The tablets were not only grouped into classes, but were also labelled ; for specimens of such labels see Case I., Nos. 8 and 9. The various classes of tablets may be at once recognized from their shape and appearance : thus incantations, grammatical texts, legends, and all works written for purposes of reference were inscribed on large tablets often in several columns, while letters, contracts, astrological reports, etc., were inscribed upon small pillow-like pieces of clay, well suited for the merchant or messenger to carry on his person.

Table-Case A. The principal tablets exhibited in this case belong to series which give the Assyrian account of the Creation, the Flood, and other early events of Bible history as recorded in the Book of Genesis:—

Nos. 1–16A form parts of the series which was called in Assyrian “When in the height,” 𒂗 𒂔 𒂘 𒂗 𒂔 𒂘 ܶ, e-nu-ma e-lish, and describes the events which led to the creation of the world and man. The First Tablet of the series describes the time when the heavens were not and the earth was not, when there were no plants, and before the gods had come into being, and when the water-deep was the source and origin of all things. The male and female deities of the primaevaI watery mass were called Apsû and Tiāmat; their children were called Lakhmu and Lakhamu, and their grand-children Anshar and Kishar, and their great-grand-children were Anu, Enlil, Ea, and the other great gods. While the newly-created gods represented the birth of order and system in the universe, Apsû and Tiāmat remained in confusion, and, hating the new “way” of the gods, plotted a rebellion with the help of their minister Mummu. But the god Ea overheard their plotting, and brought about the downfall of Apsû and Mummu. Tiāmat herself remained unconquered, and, prompted by the god Kingu to avenge their fate, she made her preparations for battle against the gods by creating a brood of terrible monsters, whom she placed under Kingu’s leadership. The Second Tablet describes how Ea heard of this new rebellion, and brought news of it to Anshar, who sent Anu to Tiāmat in the vain hope of appeasing her, but he was frightened and turned back. Anshar then appealed to Marduk, ܵ ܰ ܲ (the Merodach of the Bible, and the god of Babylon), who consented to fight Tiāmat on the condition that the gods elected him as their champion. The Third Tablet describes the meeting of the gods in their council-chamber, Upshukkinaku, where “they made ready for the feast, and sat at the banquet; “they ate bread, and they drank sesame-wine,” before proceeding to elect their champion. The Fourth Tablet records the election of Marduk as the champion of the gods, and supplies the details of the successful war which he waged on their behalf against Tiāmat. Marduk armed himself with the invincible power which the gods had bestowed upon him, and, mounting his four-horsed chariot, he advanced against the monster. He spread out his net to catch her, he drove the winds, which he had gathered together, down her throat, and he “seized the spear and pierced through her carcase. “He drove the weapon into her heart, he severed her inward parts, “he vanquished her, he cut off her life.” He split her like a flat fish into two halves. From one of these halves he made the covering for the heavens, i.e., the firmament, and from the other he seems to have formed the earth. The Fifth Tablet deals with the creation of the stars, the establishing of the year, which was divided into twelve months, and the appointment of the moon "to determine the days," and probably also contained an account of the creation of vegetation upon the earth, and perhaps also of animals. The Sixth Tablet records the Creation of Man, who was brought into existence that the gods might have worshippers. In order to create man, Marduk caused another god, probably Ea, to cut off his (Marduk's) head, and, taking bone and the blood which flowed from his own body, he formed man. This was the culminating act in the creation of the universe, and, when it was finished, the gods met again in solemn assembly in Upshukkinaku to praise and exact their deliverer, Marduk, who, since he was a god, did not die, although his head had been cut off. The Seventh Tablet contains the hymn of the gods, and consists of a series of addresses in which Marduk is hailed by them under fifty titles of honour. At the conclusion of these addresses there follows an Epilogue, in which the study of the poem is commended to mankind, and prosperity is promised to those who rejoice in Marduk and keep his works in remembrance. The creation epic, in the form in which it has come down to us, is a product of the priests of Babylon, who in it explain the promotion of Marduk, their city-god, to the chief place among the great gods of Babylonia. No. 17. Fragment of a tablet inscribed in Assyrian characters with another version of the Dragon-Myth, in which Tiāmat is slain by some deity other than Marduk, and the fight is described as taking place at a time when men existed and cities had been built. Details are given with regard to the size and terrible nature of the dragon, which inspired the gods with terror. [R. 282.]

No. 18. Part of a tablet inscribed in the Babylonian character with an account of the Creation. The text describes a period in which nothing existed except the gods and the great deep. A movement took place in the waters, after which the god Merodach formed the earth. He next created man and beast, and the great rivers of Babylonia, and he founded the cities of Nippur and Erech, together with their temples. [No. 93,014.]

No. 19. Fragment of a text containing a reference to the creation of the cattle and the beasts of the field by the gods. It was formerly thought to be part of the Creation series and is inscribed with the introduction or opening lines of another legend.

[D.T. 41.]

No. 20. Fragment of a didactic composition containing a number of moral precepts, which was formerly believed to contain the instructions given to the first man and woman after their creation.

[K. 3364.]

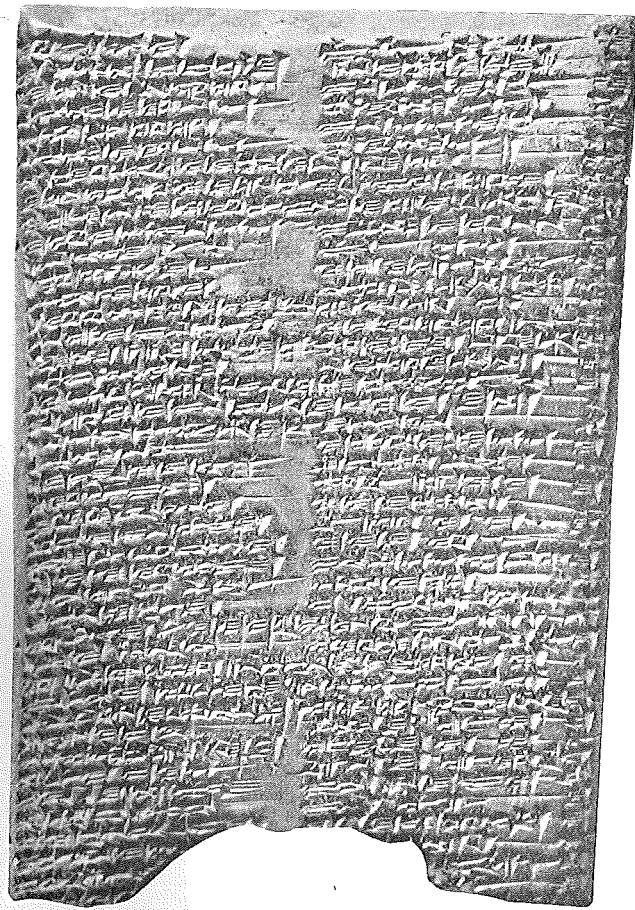

No. 21. Fragment of a tablet inscribed with a portion of a mythological legend which was formerly thought to refer to the building of the tower of Babel.

[K. 3657.]

No. 22. Tablet inscribed with a mythological legend of the descent of the goddess Ishtar into Hades, whither she descended probably in search of her youthful husband Dumuzi, or Tammuz (compare Ezekiel viii., 14), with a view of bringing him back from the dead to earth. The text here given is not a complete account of the story, but the other portions of it which refer to the sickness, death, and burial of Tammuz have, unfortunately, not yet been found. When the goddess arrived at the gate of Hades and found it shut, she threatened to break it down and to set free the dead that they might devour the living. The Porter hastened to announce her arrival to Allatu, the queen of the underworld, who gave him orders to admit her after she had performed the customary ceremonies. This done, she entered the region of those "whose bread is dust, whose food is mud, who see not the light, who dwell in darkness, and who are clothed like birds in apparel of feathers." The beings here referred to are, of course, the dead. The ceremonies consisted in removing from her some portion of her raiment and ornaments at each of the seven gates of the underworld, and, finally, when she entered into the presence of Allatu, who forthwith mocked at her and ordered the Plague-demon to torment her, she was naked. During the absence of Ishtar, the goddess of love, no marriage was celebrated, no animals begat offspring, and the whole course of nature both in man and beast was changed. Ishtar's calamity was reported to Shamash, the sun-god, by Papsukal and the god Ea straightway created a being called Uddushu-namir, whom he sent down to beg Allatu to give him the Water of Life, with which he intended to restore Ishtar to life. Allatu was furious, but, because she had been adjured by the power of the gods, she told her attendant Namtar to bring Ishtar forth and sprinkle her with the water of life. Ishtar was then led out through the seven gates, at each of which the portion of raiment which she had left there on her entrance was restored to her. The unfortunate messenger Uddushu-namir remained in the underworld, where Allatu cursed him and wreaked her vengeance upon him. The text of this tablet is written in metre, each half of the line forming a parallel member; this arrangement, owing to the care of the scribe, is easily discernible. [K. 162.]

No. 23. Fragment of a tablet inscribed with a legend concerning the birth and infancy of Sargon I, king of Agade, an ancient city in Babylonia. The text states that Sargon was brought forth in secret and was put by his mother into an ark of reeds smeared with bitumen, which she set floating on the river Euphrates. Akki, a water-carrier, found the child and reared him, until the goddess Ishtar, having seen him, loved him and made him king over the land. [K. 3401 + Sm. 2118.]

Nos. 24–64. Fragments of tablets of the Gilgamesh Series, inscribed in the Assyrian character with legends describing the wanderings and adventures of a mythical hero Gilgamesh, 𒄑 𒂔 𒀭, or, as these signs were formerly read, Iz-du-bar. Some have sought to identify this hero with Nimrod, but there are no satisfactory grounds for accepting this identification. The Gilgamesh Series when complete consisted of twelve tablets or sections but this division was probably the work of scribes who edited the story in comparatively late times. The original form or forms of these legends are of great antiquity, a fact which is proved by the illustrations of various episodes in them which are found inscribed upon seal-cylinders and other objects belonging to the period which lies between B.C. 4000 and B.C. 2300. The place of origin of the legends was at Erech, the home of Gilgamesh.

In the fragments of the First Tablet of the series, the calamities that have fallen upon the city of Erech after it had been besieged for three years are described. The siege seems to have been led by Gilgamesh, who eventually became the king of Erech; he ruled the city with a rod of iron, for the text says: “Gilgamesh hath not left the son to his father, nor the maid to the hero, nor the wife to her husband.” The people of the city cried to the goddess Aruru and their prayers were supported by the gods, who besought this goddess to create a being strong enough to oppose Gilgamesh successfully. In answer to the petitions of gods and men, Aruru created a being, part man, part beast, called Ea-bani; his body was covered with long hair which is said to have resembled that of a woman and that of the Corn-god, and he ate and drank with the beasts of the field. As soon as Gilgamesh heard that an enemy had been created, he sent Saidu, the hunter, and a beautiful woman called Ukhat to lure Ea-bani to the city of Erech. Ukhat succeeded in bringing Ea-bani to Erech, where he soon became a fast friend of Gilgamesh. Soon after Ea-bani had settled in Erech, the two friends set out to do battle with an Elamite despot called Khumbaba, and in due course they arrived at his castle. This they captured, and when they had slain Khumbaba they cut off his head. They returned to Erech with great joy; but soon after Gilgamesh incurred the wrath of the goddess Ishtar, by the refusal of her proffered love. The goddess then besought her father Anu to create a mighty bull called Alâ to destroy Gilgamesh ; and when he had done so, Ea-bani and Gilgamesh went forth to do battle with the bull. After a fierce fight the two friends vanquished the bull and slew him. Ea-bani next incurred the wrath of the goddess by the share he had taken in the slaughter of the bull, and by the threats which he uttered against her, in which he promised to serve her as he had served the bull. The horns of the bull were dedicated to the Sun-god by Gilgamesh, and the slaughter was commemorated by a great banquet. Soon after the faithful ally Ea-bani met his death in a manner unknown to us, and his loss was deeply mourned by his friend. With the view of avoiding the same fate, Gilgamesh determined to seek out his ancestor Sit-napishtim, who had learnt the secret of immortality. Aided by a dream from the Moon-god, in which part of the way to the abode of his ancestor was revealed to him, he set out for the Mountain of the Sunset. On arrival here he found the gates guarded by the Scorpion-man and his wife, who, after much talk, allowed him to pass through. For twenty-four hours he travelled through thick darkness, and at length arrived at a place on the sea-coast where the trees were laden with precious stones instead of fruit. Paying no heed to these, he made his way to the place of Sabitu, the princess of the place, who alone could help him to cross the sea, but this lady refused to see him. With difficulty he obtained admission to the palace, and succeeded in explaining to Sabitu the reason of his journey, and of his quest for immortality. Sabitu described the difficulties of the passage, and told him that one man only, Arad-Ea, the sailor, was able to carry him across the sea to the abode of Sit-napishtim. Gilgamesh at once sought out Arad-Ea, who consented to help him to cross the sea, and told him to go and fashion a new steering pole for his boat out of a tree-trunk in the forest. Gilgamesh and Arad-Ea then set out in the boat, and after many dangers crossed the Waters of Death and arrived at the place where Sit-napishtim dwelt with his wife. Sit-napishtim came down to the shore and listened to the explanation which Gilgamesh gave of the cause of his journey. In answer to the request of Gilgamesh that he would teach him how to become immortal, he replied that he was unable to do anything to help him to escape from death, for "as long as houses are built, and as long as brethren quarrel, and as long as there is hatred in the land, and as long as the waters of the river run into the sea, so long will death come to every man." When Gilgamesh heard these words he said to the sage : "How then didst thou obtain the life which thou dost enjoy "in the assembly of the gods ?" In answer to this question, Sit-napishtim related the story which is inscribed on the Eleventh Tablet of the poem of Gilgamesh, and is commonly known as the Babylonian account of the Deluge.

[Nineveh Gallery, Table-Case A, No. 48; K. 3375.]

According to this story the gods determined to send a deluge upon the earth, and Sit-napishtim, ॥ ܴܴܴܰܲܲܳܲܳܲܳ, a dweller in the ancient city of Shurippak, on the Euphrates, was warned by the god Ea of their design. In obedience to this god's instructions, he collected wood and materials for the building of a ship which was intended to save him and his wife and his family, and his beasts of the field from the waters of the flood. He made a barge one hundred and twenty cubits wide, and on its deck he built a deck-house a hundred and twenty cubits high; this house was divided into six stories, and each story contained nine rooms. The outside of the ship was smeared with bitumen and the inside with pitch. Having slaughtered oxen and made a feast, Sit-napishtim, with all his family and belongings, entered into the ship, the direction of which he entrusted to the pilot Puzur-Amurru. The same night a heavy rain began to fall, and a mighty tempest with terrible thunder and lightning and torrents of rain continued for six days and six nights, until even the tops of the mountains were overwhelmed. On the seventh day the storm abated and the sea went down, but by this time all mankind, with the exception of those in the ship, had been destroyed. Meanwhile the ship had drifted until at last it grounded on the top of a high mountain named Nisir. Seven days later Sit-napishtim sent forth a dove, but she found no resting place and returned to the ship; after a further interval he sent forth a swallow, who also returned to the ship; but when, some time after, he sent forth a raven, the bird flew away, and although it approached and croaked, it did not re-enter the ship. Sit-napishtim then knew that the waters had abated, and, having come forth with his family and the beasts of the field, he offered up a sacrifice to the gods upon the mountain. The god Enlil, however, was wroth that the race of mankind had not been utterly destroyed, but was appeased by the god Ea, and Sit-napishtim and his family were allowed to live. Immortality was conferred upon him by Enlil, and he took up his abode in the remote region near the mouth of the river where Gilgamesh had found him. (See Plate XX.)

All the time that Sit-Nipishtim was telling the story of his rescue from the flood, Gilgamesh, being sick, sat in his boat by the shore. When the story was ended, Sit-napishtim promised to obtain his restoration to health, and during the sleep which came upon Gilgamesh on the seventh day, Sit-napishtim's wife prepared magic food and fed him as he slept. When he awoke Sit-napishtim caused Arad-Ea to carry Gilgamesh to a certain fountain with healing waters, and, having washed his sores, the hero was cured of his disease. But before Gilgamesh set out, Sit-napishtim told him of the existence of a plant which prolonged life, and Gilgamesh, having arrived with Arad-Ea at the place where it grew, succeeded in finding it. As they were journeying back with it they stopped to drink at a brook, and while they were drinking a demon in the form of a serpent appeared and carried off the plant, which Gilgamesh never saw again. Bitterly disappointed, Gilgamesh returned to Erech, where he passed his time in lamenting for his dead friend Ea-bani, and in beseeching the gods to let him see him once more. One god after another refused to help him, until at length Nergal, the god of the dead, granted his request, and, opening the ground, "caused the spirit of Ea-bani to come forth from the earth like a wind." When Gilgamesh saw Ea-bani, he besought him to describe to him the abode of the dead, and, although he at first shrank from paining Gilgamesh with a description of its condition of wretchedness and misery, he was at length prevailed upon and told him of the place where the worm devours and where all is cloaked in dust. With a comparison of the condition of the unburied dead with that of those who had received due burial, the text of the Gilgamesh legends comes to an end. Table-Case B. Here are exhibited a number of Assyrian grammatical tablets, lists of cuneiform signs, explanatory lists of words, &c., which were drawn up for use in the Royal Library at Nineveh. The Cuneiform Signs in use among the Assyrians were in number about five hundred and seventy, of which over three hundred were of frequent occurrence in the Nineveh tablets. The Assyrian characters are conventional simplifications of the cuneiform signs which were employed by the early Babylonians to express their ideas, and these in turn were modifications of pictures of animals, objects, etc., which were the ancient Sumerians employed in writing. These pictures were not originally formed by combinations of the wedge,* but were rudely scratched in outline upon various kinds of soft stone. In the course of time wet clay came into use as the writing material, and, as it was impossible to trace with ease rounded figures and outlines upon it, the scribe attempted to represent the shape of the objects by means of a series of wedge-shaped impressions which he was able to make quickly and neatly with his writing-tool. This was the beginning of cuneiform writing. A process of simplification of the cuneiform signs gradually developed, as will be seen from the following examples:—

* The writing has been called "cuneiform," from the Latin word cuneus "a wedge."

OLD BABYLONIAN.	ASSYRIAN,	NEW BABYLONIAN.	MEANING.
1. *	→+	→+	"god."
2. △	△△	△△	"king."
3. □	△	△	"day."
4. □□	△△△	△△△	"gate."
5. □□	△△△△	△△△	"house."
6. □△	△△△	△△△	"month."

From the tablets exhibited in this case it will be seen that the Assyrian scribes found it necessary to draw up lists of the ancient Babylonian characters, to which they added the simpler Assyrian signs which they believed to be their equivalents. In Nos. 1 and 2 we have examples of such lists, but there is reason to believe that those who drew them up were not certain what objects the picture-characters here given represented. Nos. 3-6 supply us with lists of archaic Babylonian signs with their modern equivalents; on the other hand, Nos 7 and 8 are lists of archaic cuneiform signs without their modern equivalents. [K. 8520, 81-7-27, 49, KK. 269, 4372, 4155, 4228, 135, 2839.]

In the ancient Sumerian language the sound of a sign was derived from the name of the object which it represented, e.g., the sound of the sign * was an; now * represented "heaven," and the word for heaven was an. At a later time these sounds, which were really words, were used both in the Sumerian and in the Babylonian and Assyrian languages as syllables only, without any reference whatsoever to the objects which they originally represented. Thus the sign △ in the ancient language was a picture for water, the name of which was a; but in the Assyrian word △ \triangle -a-bu, "father," the sign △ is used merely as a syllable without any reference to its original picture-form or meaning. Lists of signs, or "syllabaries" as they are called, are divided into three classes, which are illustrated by the following groups of tablets:—

Nos. 9–11. Portions of Syllabaries of the First Class. The text on each side of the tablet is arranged in three columns, each column having three divisions. The middle division contains the cuneiform signs to be explained, that to the left their values in Sumerian, and that to the right their Assyrian names.*

[KK. 62, 262, 7622.]

The following extracts will explain the arrangement:—

No. 23. List of Assyrian words of synonymous meanings arranged in groups.

[K. 4375.]

Nos. 24 and 25. Fragments of a tablet containing Assyrian words and phrases used in legal documents, arranged to serve as grammatical examples.

[(24) K. 4223 (25) K. 8521.]

No. 26. Words and phrases used in legal documents, arranged to serve as grammatical examples; each column is in two divisions; that on the left contains the Sumerian text, and that on the right the Assyrian translation.

[K. 251.]

The following extract will illustrate the contents of this class of tablet:—

1. “If a son saith unto his father, ‘Thou art not my father,’ let them put a brand upon him, and put him in fetters and sell him for money as a slave.” 2. “If a son saith unto his mother, ‘Thou art not my mother,’ let them put a brand upon his face, and forbid him the city, and drive him forth from the house.” 3. “If a wife hateth her husband and saith unto him, ‘Thou art not my husband,’ let them throw her into the river.” 4. “If a husband saith unto his wife, ‘Thou art not my wife,’ he shall pay (to her) half a maneh of silver.” It is interesting to note that the early Babylonian inscriptions prove that these laws were in full force as early as B.C. 2300.

The copy of the great code of laws drawn up by Hammurabi which was discovered at Susa in the winter of 1901–2 (see p. 120 f.) contains a classified collection of laws, from which the above were abstracted by the Assyrian scribes.

Table-Case C. Here are exhibited a number of Assyrian tablets inscribed with historical, moral, and grammatical texts from the Royal Library at Nineveh. Nos. 1–29 have been selected from a series excavated at Nineveh during the expedition undertaken at the expense of the Proprietors of "The Daily Telegraph," and presented by them to the British Museum in 1873.

Nos. 1–11. Fragments of an eight-sided cylinder inscribed with part of the annals of Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722–705. The text records the campaign of Sargon against Ashdod, B.C. 711 (see Isaiah xx., 1). Azuri, king of Ashdod, having refused to pay tribute to the Assyrians, was deposed by Sargon, and was succeeded on the throne by his brother Akhimiti. The people of Ashdod, however, rejected Akhimiti and elected Yamanu as their king. They then made a league with Philistia, Judah, Edom, Moab, and Egypt, but were defeated by Sargon, and their city once more became subject to Assyria. [(1) K. 1668 + D.T. 6. (2) K. 1669. No. 18. Syllabary of the third class giving the values of certain signs, together with their Assyrian names and meanings. (See above, p. 45.)

Nos. 19 and 20. Explanatory list of words with glosses. [K. 4230 + D.T. 9 + K. 4250 + K. 4544. K. 2021A + K. 4357 + D.T. 14.]

Nos. 21 and 22. Fragment of an explanatory list of words.

[D.T. 44. D.T. 58.]

No. 23. Part of a legend containing fragments of a conversation carried on between a horse and an ox. [K. 3456 + D.T. 43.]

No. 24. Akkadian or Sumerian hymn in honour of a Babylonian king, with interlinear Assyrian translation. The king's name is wanting.

[K. 1832 + K. 5072 + K. 5249 + D.T. 5.]

No. 25. Part of a list of names of gods, with explanatory glosses.

[K. 4343 + D.T. 128.]

No. 26. Part of a list of names of utensils and vessels.

[D.T. 52.]

No. 27. Part of a mythological legend. This tablet formed the second of a series.

[K. 2518 + D.T. 358.]

No. 28. Prayers and directions for making offerings to the gods.

[K. 3397 + K. 13165 + D.T. 122.]

No. 29. Tablet of moral precepts, including warnings to kings concerning the evils which follow misgovernment and injustice.

The following extract will illustrate the contents of the text:—

"If the king payeth not heed to justice, his people shall be overthrown, and his land shall be brought to confusion. If he giveth no heed to the law of his land, Ea, the king of destinies, shall change his destiny, and shall visit him with misfortune. If he giveth no heed to his nobles, his days shall (not) be long. If he giveth no heed to the wise men, his land shall revolt against him. If he giveth heed unto wisdom, the king shall behold the strengthening of the land. If he giveth heed to the commandments of Ea, the great gods shall endow him with true knowledge and discernment. If the men of Babylon bring money with them and give bribes, and the king favoureth the cause of these Babylonians and turneth to their entreaty, Marduk, the lord of heaven and earth, shall bring his foe against him, and shall give his goods and his possessions unto the enemy. And the men of Nippur and Sippar and Babylon who do these things shall be cast into prison."

No. 51. List of names of ships and of various wooden objects. [K. 4338A.]

Table-Case D. Here are exhibited a number of most important documents relating to the chronology and history of Babylonia and Assyria, historical inscriptions of Tiglath-Pileser III., Sennacherib, Esarhaddon, Ashur-bani-pal, and other Assyrian kings, and lists of “eponyms.” The official who is commonly known by this title, was a man of high rank—he might even be the king himself—who held office in Assyria for one year, and whose name was used to date all documents executed during his period of office. His position was similar to that of the Archon at Athens, and of the Consul at Rome. The Eponym Canon, the great importance of which was first pointed out by Sir Henry Rawlinson, contains a consecutive list of the eonyms from B.C. 893 to B.C. 666.* In some of the lists remarks concerning the chief events which took place during the years of office of the eonyms are given, and it is clear that if we can fix the exact date of one of these events the date of every eonym in the series will be known. Now in one list we are told that in the eponymy of Pur-Sagali, in the month Sivan (i.e. May–June) an eclipse of the sun took place; and recent astronomical calculations prove that an eclipse of the sun, visible at Nineveh, took place on June 15, 763 B.C. With this year as a fixed point we can accurately assign correct dates to all the important events from the reign of Rammân-nirari II. to the beginning of the reign of Ashur-bani-pal.

Nos. 1–5. Lists of names of Assyrian eonyms and their titles, with brief notices of the chief events which happened during their term of office, from B.C. 860–848, 817–723, and 720–704.

No. 12. Agreement between the Governments of Assyria and Babylonia, probably drawn up in the reign of Assur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–625, to settle disputes concerning the boundaries of the two kingdoms. The document consists of a series of brief notices of the conflicts and alliances which took place between the Assyrians and Babylonians from about B.C. 1600 to B.C. 800, and is generally known as the “Synchronous History.”

The following extracts will illustrate the character of the contents of this tablet:—

I. “Kara-indash, king of Karduniash (i.e. Babylonia), and “Ashur-bêl-nishêshu, king of Assyria, established an agreement “with each other, and they bound each other by oath to observe “the frontier on which they had agreed.”

* The names found on some of the fragmentary lists can, at present, only be arranged with approximate accuracy: they belong to the periods before B.C. 893, and after B.C. 666.

II. "Puzur-Ashur, king of Assyria, and Burnaburiash, king of Babylonia, discussed and fixed the boundary for both kingdoms."

III. "In the time of Ashur-uballit, king of Assyria, the Kassites revolted from the rule of Karakhardash, king of Babylonia, the son of Muballitat-Sherua, the daughter of Ashur-uballit, and slew him; they established Nazibugash, the son of no one, king over them." [K. 4401 + Rm. 854.]

Nos. 13 and 14. Fragment inscribed with part of the text of the "Synchronous History." [K. 4401B, Sm. 2106.]

No. 15. Portion of an Assyrian copy of a Babylonian Chronicle, generally known as the Dynastic Chronicle, relating to the dynasties and reigns of early Babylonian kings. Col. IV contains traces of the names of the kings of the first dynasty of Babylon; col. V gives the names of three kings of the dynasty of the country of the sea, and the names of kings of two other dynasties. When complete the tablet must have been inscribed with a list of the kings of Babylonia in six columns. This tablet was probably copied from a Babylonian original for the library of Ashur-bani-pal.

[K. 8532 + K. 8533 + K. 8534.]

No. 16. Tablet containing copies of inscriptions of Shagarakti-shuriash, king of Babylon, about B.C. 1280, and Tukulti-Ninib, king of Assyria, about B.C. 1275, made by the order of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, about B.C. 705-681. The original texts were inscribed on a cylinder-seal of lapis-lazuli, which was brought back by Sennacherib from Babylon, whither it had been carried six hundred years before. [K. 2673.]

No. 17. Assyrian copy of an inscription of Agum, king of Babylonia about B.C. 1700, recording the restoration of the images of Merodach and Sarpanitum to the temple of E-sagil in Babylon. These images had been carried off to the land Khanî in Northern Syria by the Hittites, who sacked Babylon in the reign of Samsuditana, the last king of the first dynasty of Babylon. The text gives a list of the furniture which Agum provided for Marduk's shrine. This copy was made for Ashur-bani-pal's library at Nineveh. [K. 4149 + K. 4203 + K. 4448 + Sm. 27.]

Nos. 18-36. Fragments of terra-cotta bowls inscribed with the names and titles and genealogies of kings of Assyria who reigned from about B.C. 1140 to B.C. 681. The greater number of these describe, shortly, building operations undertaken by the kings in whose reigns they were inscribed.

Table-Case F. Here are exhibited series of tablets inscribed in Sumerian and Assyrian, with incantations and directions for the performance of religious and magical rites and ceremonies.

Nos. 1-12. A series of eight tablets inscribed with Assyrian incantations addressed chiefly to the Fire-god by those who believed themselves to be under the influence of spells and bewitchments. To this series the Assyrians gave the name of Maklû, i.e., "Burning," because the recital of certain of the incantations was accompanied by the burning of small figures made of various substances.

No. 1. First tablet of the Series, containing an incantation to the gods of the night, followed by a number of short formulæ, which were to be recited for the removal of the evil effects of magic and sorcery. The tablet ends with an invocation to the Fire-god which reads:—

"O Nusku, thou mighty one, thou Offspring of Anu, thou Image of the Father, First-born of Enlil, Produce of the Ocean, Created One of Ea! I have raised on high the torch, and I have given light unto thee. The magician hath enchanted me with the spell wherewith he hath bound me, bind thou him! The witch hath enchanted me; with the spell wherewith she hath bound me, bind thou her! The sorcerer hath enchanted me; with the spell wherewith he hath bound me, bind thou him! The sorceress hath enchanted me; with the spell wherewith she hath bound me, bind thou her! The woman who worketh magic hath enchanteth me; with the spell wherewith she hath bound me, bind thou her! And may the Fire-god, the mighty one, make of no effect the

"incantations, spells and charms of those who have made figures in my image, and drawn pictures of my form, who have caught my spittle, who have plucked out my hair, who have rent my garments and who have hindered my feet in passing through the dust!" Whilst the suppliant was reciting the above he burnt figures or pictures of the devils and fiends called utukku, shêdu, rabiṣu, ekimmu, labartu, labisi, akhazu, lîlû, lilitu (i.e., the Lilith of Isaiah xxxiv., 14), etc.
[K. 43 + K. 142 + K. 2601.]

No. 2. Second Tablet of the Series, containing incantations to the Fire-god, the recital of which was to be accompanied with the burning of images of wax, bronze, honey, clay, bitumen, the flower of sesame, seed, lime, wood, etc. As a specimen, the following may be quoted:—"O, thou mighty Fire-god, First-born of Anu, thou shining and exalted Offspring of Shalash, thou great and radiant Being, thou Eternal Name of the gods, who givest offerings unto the gods and the Igigi (i.e., the Spirits of Heaven), who makest light for the Anunnaki (i.e., the Spirits of Earth), the great gods. . . . As this image quivereth and dissolveth, and melteth away, even so may the sorcerer and sorceress quiver and dissolve and melt away!" Whilst the priest was reciting these words he burnt in the fire a bitumen figure of the evil spirit who was to be exorcised.
[K. 2455 + K. 3936.]

No. 3. Third Tablet of the Series, containing exorcisms of witches, and charms against the spells which they cast upon men. The following is an example of them:—"O witch, whosoever thou art, whose heart conceiveth my misfortune, whose tongue uttereth spells aganist me, whose lips poison me, and in whose footsteps death standeth, I ban thy mouth, I ban thy tongue, I ban thy glittering eyes, I ban thy swift feet, I ban thy toiling knees, I ban thy laden hands, I bind thy hands behind. And may the Moon-god (Sin) destroy thy body, and may he cast thee into the Lake of Water and of Fire!"
[K. 2728 + Sm. 1768 + Sm. 1776.]

Nos. 4-5. Fourth Tablet of the Series, containing incantations against those who can inflict harm upon a man by means of ceremonies performed and spells cast upon his image.
[K. 2454 + K. 2984 + K. 3178, K. 2956.]

No. 6. Fifth Tablet of the Series, containing incantations, some of which were recited during the performance of magical ceremonies wherein plants played a prominent part.
[K. 2544 + K. 3470 + K. 5071.]

Nos. 7 and 8. Sixth Tablet of the Series, containing incantations against witches and sorceresses.
[KK. 2391, 2595 + 2978 + 2982.]

No. 9. Seventh Tablet of the Series, containing incantations of a similar character.
[KK. 2950 + 2966.]

Nos. 10 and 12. Eighth Tablet of the Series, containing a list of all the incantations in the work. [KK. 2961, 8120, 8033.]

Nos. 13 and 14. Incantations to be recited by priests for the benefit of the sick. [K. 61 + K. 161 + K. 2476, 71b. + 238.]

Nos. 15–21. A series of nine tablets inscribed with Sumerian and Assyrian incantations and magical formulæ which were to be addressed to various deities on behalf of the man upon whom a ban has been laid for the committal of some sin. To this series the Assyrians gave the name Shurpu, i.e., “Burning,” because the recital of certain of the magical formulæ was accompanied by the burning of various objects which were cast in the fire. The first tablet of the series is wanting.

No. 15. Second Tablet of the Series, containing a list of sins, the committal of any one of which would bring a ban upon a man, and invocations to a number of gods. [K. 150.]

No. 16. Third Tablet of the Series, containing a list of the various kinds of ban which could be put upon a man, and from which the priest, by the help of Marduk, could free him. [KK. 2972 + 2959 + 13954 + Sm. 948 + Bu. 91–5–9, 1.]

No. 17. Fourth Tablet of the Series, containing addresses to the various gods on behalf of a man who had been bewitched. [KK. 2333 + 6096 + 9515.]

No. 18. Sixth Tablet of the Series, containing an incantation to Marduk on behalf of a man whom a demon has plagued with sickness. When it had been recited the priest cast into the fire a pod of garlic, a date, a palm frond, a sheep skin, a goat skin, a piece of wool, certain seeds, and as these objects were consumed and disappeared in the fire, so the ban was loosed from the offender. [KK. 65 + 2397 + 10706.]

No. 19. Seventh Tablet of the Series, containing an incantation in Sumerian and Assyrian intended to procure the help of Marduk on behalf of a man who is bewitched. [K. 136.]

No. 20. Eighth Tablet of the Series, containing a series of invocations to the gods and goddesses Nabû and Tashmetu, Anu and Anatu, Bêl and Bêlit, Ea, Sin, Shamash, Marduk, and other gods; and a list of the spells from which the suppliant prays to be freed, etc. [K. 2866 + K. 8174.]

No. 21. Ninth Tablet of the Series, containing a series of short incantations; in the ceremonies which were to be performed during their recital certain plants and sprigs of shrubs play an important part. [K. 2427 + K. 2941 + K. 4265.]

Nos. 22–29. Tablets inscribed with Assyrian prayers which belong to the class called by the Assyrians, “The Prayers of the Lifting of the Hand.” Many of the prayers were intended to divert from the king and his palace and his land the evils which were believed to follow in the train of an eclipse of the moon; others were used to secure to a suppliant a return of the favour of his god or goddess; others warded off sickness and disease, and freed a man from spells and the influences of evil spirits. Many of these prayers are accompanied by rubrical directions concerning the seasons of prayer, and the making of offerings and instructions for the performance of ceremonies.

No. 22. Prayers to be said to the god Rammân, and directions for accompanying ceremonies. [K. 2741 + K. 8496 + K. 3208, etc.]

No. 23. Prayers to be recited and regulations for ceremonies to be performed in honour of the god Merodach. [K. 163 + K. 218.]

No. 24. Prayers to the gods Anu, Nusku, Sin, Bau, and Shamash. [K. 2106 + K. 6340 + K. 3393, etc.]

No. 25. Prayers to the god Nebo. [K. 140 + K. 3352 + K. 8751 + K. 10265.]

No. 26. Prayers to the Moon-god and to the goddess Tashmetu. [K. 155.]

No. 27. Assyrian prayer to the goddess Ishtar. [K. 2396 + K. 3893.]

No. 28. A prayer of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–626. [K. 2836 + K. 6593.]

No. 29. A prayer of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–626, in which is contained the following interesting petition:—“O Rammân, the prince of heaven and earth, at whose command mankind was created, speak thou the word and let the gods take their stand by thee. Plead thou my cause and grant me a favourable judgment. For I, Ashur-bani-pal, am thy servant and the son of my god Ashur, and of my goddess Ashuritu. I make my petition unto thee and I ascribe praise unto thee, because the evil which followeth the eclipse of the moon and the hostility of the powers of heaven and evil portents are in my palace and in my land; and because evil bewitchment and unclean disease, and transgression and iniquity and sin are in my body; and because an evil spectre is bound unto me. Accept thou the lifting up of my hand, give heed unto my prayer, set me free from the spell which bindeth me, do away my sin, and let there be averted any evil whatsoever which threateneth my life. Let a good spirit be ever at my head! May the god and goddess of mankind [i.e., Ashur and Ashuritu] be favourable unto me! Let me live by thy command! Let me bow down and extol thy greatness!” [K. 2808 + K. 9490.]

No. 30. The fifth tablet of a numbered series inscribed in Sumerian and Assyrian with incantations against evil spirits, and invocations to the celestial and terrestrial powers who were believed to produce and to remove sickness and disease.

[KK. 2507 + 3255, etc.]

Nos. 31 and 32. Copies of the sixteenth tablet of the same series. [KK. 4870, 2968.]

Table Case G. Assyrian Prayers, Hymns, Litanies, and Incantations, and Bilingual Religious Texts in the Sumerian and Assyrian languages.

No. 1. Incantations, prayers, and directions for the performance of certain ceremonies. [K. 2423 + K. 3362.]

No. 2. Incantations in Sumerian with Assyrian translations. [K. 3586 + K. 5015 + K. 5154.]

No. 3. Sumerian hymn to the Moon-god with Assyrian translations.

The following extract will illustrate its contents:—

“Who is supreme in heaven? Thou alone art supreme. Who is supreme on earth? Thou alone art supreme. Thy will is made known in heaven and the spirits thereof bow low before thee. Thy will is made known upon earth and the spirits thereof kiss the ground before thee Thy mighty word createth right and ordaineth justice for mankind, and thy powerful ordinance reacheth unto the uttermost parts of heaven and earth. Who can know thy will and who can dispute it? O Lord, thy sovereignty is in heaven and upon earth! Among the gods thy brethren there is none who is like unto thee, O, thou king of kings whose judgments are inscrutable and whose divinity is unsurpassed.” [K. 2861 + K. 4999 + K. 5068 + K. 5297.]

No. 3A. Incantations to be recited for the benefit of sick people. [K. 191.]

No. 13. Copy of a prayer addressed to the goddess Ishtar by Ashur-nasir-pal, the son of Shamshi-Rammân, king of Assyria, asking her forgiveness. This copy was made for the Royal Library at Nineveh by the order of king Ashur-bani-pal. The following extract will illustrate Assyrian royal prayers:—“Unto the queen of the gods, into whose hands are committed the behests of the great gods, unto the Lady of Nineveh, the queen of the gods, the exalted one, unto the daughter of the Moon-god, the twin-sister of the Sun-god, unto her who ruleth all kingdoms, unto the Goddess of the world who determineth decrees, unto the Lady of heaven and earth who receiveth supplication, unto the merciful Goddess who hearkeneth unto entreaty, who receiveth prayer, who loveth righteousness, I make my prayer unto Ishtar to whom all confusion is a cause of grief. The sorrows which I see I lament before thee. Incline thine ear unto my words of lamentation and let thine heart be opened unto my sorrowful speech. Turn thy face unto me, O Lady, so that by reason thereof the heart of thy servant made be made strong! I, Ashur-nasir-pal, the sorrowful one, am thine humble servant; I, who am beloved by thee, make offerings unto thee and adore thy divinity I was born in the mountains which no man knoweth; I was without understanding and I prayed not to thy majesty. Moreover the people of Assyria did not recognize and did not accept thy divinity. But thou, O Ishtar, thou mighty Queen of the gods, by the lifting up of thine eyes didst teach me, for thou didst desire my rule. Thou didst take me from the mountains, and didst make me the Door of the Peoples, . . . and thou, O Ishtar, didst make great my name! As concerning that for which thou art wroth with me, grant me forgiveness. Let thine anger be appeased, and let thine heart be mercifully inclined towards me.” [81-2-4, 188.]

No. 14. Sumerian hymn to the goddess Ishtar with an Assyrian translation. [Sm. 954.]

Table-Case H. Here is exhibited a collection of Omen Tablets belonging to different series, some of which contain astrological forecasts. By means of Omen Tablets the Babylonian and Assyrian priests from time immemorial predicted events which they believed would happen in the near or in the remote future. They deduced their omens from the appearance of the entrails and particularly the liver of sacrificial victims; from dreams and visions of the night; from the appearance and condition of human and animal offspring at birth; from the state and condition of various members of the human body; from the symptoms exhibited by sick men; from the various actions or events which took place in the life of a king or of one of his subjects; from the appearance and actions of animals, birds, fish, and reptiles; from the form of a man's shadow; from fire, flame, light, or smoke; from the state and condition of cities and their streets, and of lands, fields, marshes, rivers when beheld in dreams, etc. The events predicted by the Omen Tablets refer chiefly to evils which may fall upon the king and his people and country, such as sickness, death, pestilence and famine, drought, inundation, etc.; and to the chances of prosperity and well-being of crops and farm-stock. Astrological Forecasts were grouped in a similar manner to the Omen Tablets. They were predicted from eclipses of the sun and moon, from the positions of the planets and other stars, from observations of meteors and shooting stars, from the direction of the wind, from storms, and weather of all kinds, from the shape, form, colour, and movements of clouds, and from thunder and lightning. The events predicted were similar to the deductions made from omens. It should be noted that many of the events referred to on Omen Tablets are not occurrences of real life, but are beheld only in dreams; the scribe frequently omits to note this fact, as he assumes a knowledge of it on the part of the reader.

Table Case I. Here are exhibited an important collection of tablets inscribed with mythological legends, texts which were believed to possess magical powers, catalogues of tablets, Assyrian labels for groups of tablets, and a series of specimens chosen to illustrate the various sizes and classes of tablets, and the styles of writing employed in the documents which were found in the Royal Library at Nineveh.

No. 1. Assyrian astrolabe or instrument for making astrological calculations and for casting nativities. [K. 8538.]

No. 2. Fragment of an Assyrian astrolabe. [Sm. 162.]

No. 3. Clay amulet in the form of a cylinder seal, which belonged to a man called Shamash-killâni, and is inscribed with an incantation to the star Tartakhu. [85–4–8, 1.]

No. 4. List of names and titles of various gods. This is the largest tablet in the Nineveh collection. [K. 4349.]

No. 5. Tablet inscribed with the name of the female slave Khipa, and dated in the eleventh year of the reign of Marduk-aplu-iddina, king of Babylon, B.C. 710. This tablet was worn by Khipa and was intended for purposes of identification. [K. 3787.]

No. 6. Assyrian catalogue of Omen tablets, the first lines of which are here given. [K. 2235 + K. 2958 + K. 4376.]

No. 7. Assyrian catalogue of Omen tablets, the first lines of which are here given. [K. 1352.]

Nos. 8 and 9. Assyrian labels from the Nineveh library, inscribed with the titles of two series of Astrological and Omen tablets. The tablets which formed the works described by them were laid upon shelves, and these labels were placed in front of the groups to which they referred. [(8), K. 1539, (9), K. 1400.]

Nos. 10 and 11 contain part of the Story of the Eagle, the Serpent, and the Sun-god. The Eagle having destroyed the Serpent's brood, the Serpent appealed to the Sun-god and asked him to snare the Eagle in his net; the Sun-god in answer told him how to catch the bird himself. Acting on his advice, the Serpent hid in the carcase of an ox, and waited for the Eagle to come to devour it. Contrary to the advice of one of his young, the Eagle swooped down and stood on the ox, and as he was beginning to rend the carcase, the Serpent caught him, and having torn off his wings and feathers, cast him on the mountain to die of hunger and thirst.

[(10), K. 2527, (11), K. 1547.]

No. 12. Cast of a fragment of a tablet inscribed with part of the text of the Etana Legend. (See Nos. 13–16.) The original was obtained at Môsul (Nineveh) by Dr. W. T. Williams in 1846. Presented by Talcott Williams, Esq., of Philadelphia, U.S.A., 1896.

Nos. 13–16 describe Etana's journey to heaven with the Eagle. The hero Etana, clinging to the Eagle's neck, was carried up to the heaven of the god Anu in three flights, each of which lasted two hours. At the end of the first flight the earth appeared like a mountain rising from the sea; at the end of the second flight the sea appeared to be as small as a girdle and to enclose the land; and at the end of the third flight the sea looked like a garden ditch. After a period of rest Etana and the Eagle seek to fly up to the dwelling of Ishtar, but the eagle becoming exhausted stops in his flight and falls. The rest of the story is wanting. [(13), 79–7–8, 180 + Rm. 2, 454, (14), K. 8563, (15), Rm. 522, (16), K. 3651.]

No. 17. Fragment of the Legend of the hero Etana.

[K. 8578.]

No. 18. Tablet inscribed with a text in praise of the glory and power of the hero Etana.
[K. 2606.]

No. 19. Fragment of the Legend of Etana. [79–7–8, 43.]

No. 20. The Legend of the god Zû. The god Zû coveted the sovereignty of Enlil, and one morning at sun-rise, when Enlil was taking his seat upon his throne and arranging his crown upon his head, Zû seized the destiny-tablet of the gods and carried it off to his mountain, where he hid himself. When the gods hear of the theft they grieve greatly, and the god Anu appeals to them to find a champion that will do battle with Zû on their behalf; the god Rammân is chosen, but he refuses to fight, and several other gods do likewise. The rest of the story is wanting.
[K. 3454 + K. 3935.]

No. 21. Tablet inscribed in Assyrian with the legend of Ura, the plague god. The text records that this god slew so many of the inhabitants of the various cities of Babylonia, including Babylon and Erech, that the wrath of Marduk was roused, and the goddess Ishtar wept at their destruction, for Ura slew the just and the unjust alike.
[K. 2619.]

No. 22. Tablet inscribed in Assyrian with the text of the fifth and last sections of the legend of Ura, the plague god. It contains praises of the god which were addressed to him after his wrath had been appeased, and concludes with the promise of the god to preserve and favour those who devote themselves to do him honour.

[K. 1282.]

Nos. 23–25. Portions of tablets inscribed in Assyrian with legends relating to Ura, the plague god.
[(23) K. 3887, (24) K. 8571, (25) 79–7–8, 36.]

Nos. 26 and 27. Baked clay amulets inscribed with the text of the fifth section of the legend of Ura, the plague god. These objects were hung up in houses in Nineveh about B.C. 650, to ward off attacks of the plague god. The text states that the plague god Ura was angry and had decided to destroy the world, but he was turned from his purpose and pacified by the god Ishum. Following this we have the words which the god himself spake, and these may be thus rendered: “ Whosoever (among the gods) shall sing my praises, shall find abundance in his shrine. Whosoever (among kings) shall magnify my name shall rule the four quarters of the world. Whosoever shall proclaim the glory of my might, shall be without a foe. The singer who shall chant (this song), shall not die in the pestilence, and his word shall gratify prince and noble. The scribe who shall learn it, shall escape from his enemy, and I will open his ear (i.e., give wisdom unto him) in the shrine of the peoples, wherein he shall proclaim my name continually. The house wherein this tablet is placed, even though the god Ura be angry, and the god Sibi would cause destruction, the stroke of the pestilence shall not draw nigh unto it, and peace shall rest upon it.”

[(26) Bu. 91–5–9,–186 + 206, (27) Bu. 91–5–9,–174.]

No. 28. Tablet inscribed in Assyrian with a legend concerning Nebuchadnezzar, an ancient Babylonian king.
[K. 3426.]

No. 29. Tablet inscribed in Assyrian with a mythological legend concerning the gods Marduk, Zû, and Ashakku.
[K. 3476.]

No. 30. Portion of a tablet inscribed in Assyrian with the legend of the fox and the Sun-god.
[K. 3641.]

No. 31. Piece of clay bearing impressions of five Sassanian seals.
[51–9–2, 84.]

No. 32. Clay seal impression bearing in hieroglyphics the name and titles of Shabaka (Sabaco), king of Egypt about B.C. 700. The cartouche, etc., read:—  neter nefer Sha-ba-ka neb ari khet, “beautiful god, Shabaka, the Lord, the maker of things.”
[51–9–2, 43.]

No. 33. Assyrian prayer and incantation. The writing on this tablet is the largest found on documents from the Royal Library at Nineveh.
[K. 143.]

No. 34. Portion of a tablet containing grammatical paradigms of a religious character. The writing on this tablet is the smallest found on documents from the Royal Library at Nineveh.

[Rm. 612.]

No. 35. Incantation tablet. Sumerian prayer with an interlinear Assyrian translation. [K. 44.]

No. 36. Tablet inscribed with a Sumerian hymn to the god Ninib, with an interlinear Assyrian translation. [K. 133.]

No. 37. Tablet inscribed with an Assyrian penitential psalm. [K. 254.]

No. 38. Assyrian prayer to the Sun-god on behalf of the Palace and dominions of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–626. [K. 11478.]

No. 39. Tablet inscribed with an Assyrian hymn written in Babylonian characters. [K. 128.]

No. 40. Incantation tablet. The text contains magical formulæ and prayers. [K. 72.]

No. 41. Tablet inscribed with an Assyrian prayer. [K. 66.]

No. 42. Clay model of a liver inscribed with omens. This model was employed by Assyrian augurs when explaining to their pupils the different parts of the liver and their significance in foretelling the future. [Rm. 620.]

No. 43. Part of an omen text illustrated with geometrical figures. [K. 2087.]

No. 44. Baked clay amulet inscribed with an incantation to the goddess Ishtar. [Rm. II, 263.]

No. 45. Assyrian catalogue of mythological legends and other works. Among these are mentioned the "Story of Gilgamesh," the "Story of Etana," and the "Story of the Fox." [K. 9717.]

No. 46. Assyrian catalogue of mythological legends and other works. [Sm. 669.]

No. 47. Assyrian catalogue of various literary works. [Rm. 150.]

Nos. 48 and 49. Rough drafts of the texts of the Epigraphs inscribed upon the bas-reliefs (e.g., No. 90 in the Assyrian Saloon) in the palace of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, about B.C. 668–626. [(48) Sm. 1350, (49) K. 4453 + K. 4515.]

No. 50. Assyrian catalogue of mythological legends and other works. [Rm. 618.]

No. 51. Assyrian incantations. [K. 2832 + K. 6680.]

No. 52. Historical tablet. The text relates to the restoration of certain temples. [K. 221 + K. 2669.]

No. 53. Assyrian contract tablet written B.C. 694; the nail marks of the witnesses here take the place of seal impressions. [K. 346 + 83–1–18, 335.]

No. 54. Assyrian contract tablet written B.C. 674, bearing impressions of a cylinder-seal. [K. 285.]

No. 55. Grammatical tablet. Paradigms and short sentences. [K. 56 + K. 60 + K. 3195.]

No. 56. Grammatical tablet. List of words with explanations. Glosses have been added by the Assyrian scribe. [K. 26.]

No. 57. Astrological report tablet. [Bu. 91–5–9,–14.]

No. 58. Assyrian contract tablet, written in the seventh century B.C., bearing three impressions of an oval seal. [K. 301.]

No. 59. Assyrian letter written in the Babylonian character addressed to the king by Bēl-ibni. [K. 10.]

No. 60. Assyrian letter addressed to the king by Mâr-Ishtar. [Bu. 91–5–9,–183.]

No. 65. Sumerian Mythological text with an Assyrian translation. [K. 2003.]

No. 66. Portion of a letter from Shuzubu. This tablet shows the effect of the intense heat to which it was subjected at the burning of Ashur-bani-pal's Library at Nineveh. [K. 13071.]

[The visitor passes through the Northern doorway of the Egyptian Gallery, and ascends the North-west Staircase. The left-hand doorway on the top landing leads to the Egyptian Rooms, through which the Babylonian and Assyrian Room is reached.]

BABYLONIAN AND ASSYRIAN ROOM.

In this room are arranged a large and important collection of inscribed antiquities from Babylonia and the miscellaneous smaller antiquities from Assyria (i.e., historical Assyrian cylinders, etc.), including many objects of the later periods of Persian, Greek, Parthian, Roman, and Sassanian dominion.

After the overthrow of the later Babylonian Empire by Cyrus, B.C. 538, the Persian power held possession of the country until the conquest of Alexander, B.C. 330. Of the Persian period the principal Babylonian remains among the Museum collections are a great series of tablets inscribed with trade contracts, deeds, and other legal documents. In succession to the dominion of Alexander and the Macedonian Dynasty of the Seleucidae, the Parthian Empire was established by Mithradates, about B.C. 147. This empire was in its turn overthrown by the Romans under Trajan and his successors, and was finally destroyed by Ardashir, of the Sassanian, or native Persian, Dynasty, about A.D. 226.

The arrangement of the antiquities is as far as possible both national and chronological. On the left, or Northern side of the room, in Wall-cases 1–22, is exhibited a fine series of bricks, gate-sockets, boundary-stones, memorial tablets, portions of sculpture, etc., inscribed in early and late Babylonian, early and late Assyrian, Elamite, Vannic, old Persian, and Susian cuneiform characters. They range from the earliest period of Sumerian history to B.C. 340. On the right, or Southern side of the room, in Wall-cases 23–44, will be found a large and varied collection of Babylonian, Assyrian, Vannic, Greek, Parthian, and Roman objects and vessels, and figures in bronze, alabaster, glass, terra-cotta, and other materials, dating for the most part from about B.C. 1000 to A.D. 400. In Table-cases A, B, C, E, G, and I are arranged large series of Babylonian royal letters, lists of estates compiled for purposes of revenue, legal and commercial "case-tablets," votive and historical inscriptions of kings of Babylonia, tablets relating to history, chronology, religion and magic, mythology, grammar, cartography and astronomy, from the earliest periods to about B.C. 100. In Table-case F are Inscribed brick or memorial tablet of Eannatum, king of Lagash, recording the sinking of a well in the forecourt of Ningirsu's temple at Lagash.

[Babylonian and Assyrian Room, Wall-Case 2, No. 7; No. 85,979.] (See p. 87.)

the Tell el-Amarna Tablets, written about B.C. 1450; in Table-cases D and H will be found the famous historical cylinders of the Assyrian kings who ruled from about B.C. 1100 to B.C. 625, and smaller miscellaneous Assyrian antiquities; a fine collection of examples of Babylonian, Assyrian and Persian cylinder-seals is displayed in the lower part of Table-case D; and in Table-cases I and J is a large series of miscellaneous Sassanian gems, some of which are inscribed in the Pehlevi character, dating from about A.D. 300 to A.D. 1300.

Wall-Case 1. No. 1. Portion of a seated figure of an early Babylonian king draped in a garment of goat's skin; early Sumerian period. [No. 22,470.]

No. 2. Limestone slab with illegible inscription in exceedingly early "line-Babylonian" characters; this is probably one of the oldest Babylonian objects in the collection; early Sumerian period. [No. 91,068.]

No. 3. Portion of a limestone stele inscribed with the name and titles of Eannatum, king of Lagash (Tello), and containing an account of his conquest of the neighbouring city of Umma. Other fragments of the stele are preserved in the Museum of the Louvre. When complete, the stele was sculptured with battle scenes and figures of the king, and of his god Ningirsu, etc. It has been called the "Stele of the Vultures," because of the figures of vultures sculptured upon it which are seen carrying off the heads and members of the slain. [No. 23,580.]

Wall-Cases 2 and 3. Nos. 4-7. Baked clay bricks or memorial tablets inscribed with the name and titles of Eannatum, king of Lagash, and that of his father Akurgal, and recording the sinking of wells in the fore-court of the temple of Ningirsu. The character in which the inscription is written is semi-pictorial, and forms a good example of "line-Babylonian" written upon clay. (See Plate XXI.) [Nos. 85977-85980.]

No. 4.* Marble gate-socket with an inscription of Entemena, the son of Eannatum, governor of Lagash, recording the erection of a building in honour of Ningirsu. [No. 90,932.]

No. 8. Fragment of a black basalt mortar, dedicated by Eannatum to the goddess Ninâ, "the lady of the holy mountain," for ceremonial use in her temple at Lagash. [No. 90,832.]

No. 9. Black basalt gate-socket of Entemena, the son of Eannatum, governor of Lagash, inscribed in "line-Babylonian" with the king's name and titles, and with a list of the temples which he built during his reign. [No. 86,900.]

No. 10. Ceremonial mace-head of limestone inscribed with the name and titles of Lasirab, an early king of Guti, who dedicated it in the temple of one of his gods. [No. 90,852.]

No. 12. Black basalt gate-socket, inscribed with the name and titles of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, king of Sumer and Akkad, and recording the building of a temple to the goddess Ninlil, in the city of Nippur, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,826.]

No. 13. Stone gate-socket inscribed with the name and titles of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,846.]

No. 14. Brick of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, recording the building of a temple to "the king of the gods," about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,296.]

Nos. 15–17. Bricks of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, recording the building of a temple to the goddess Ninni, in the city of Erech (Warka), about B.C. 2500. [Nos. 90,006, 90,007, 90,015.]

Nos. 18 and 19. Bricks of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, recording the building of a temple to Babbar, the Sun-god, in the city of Larsa (Senkereh), about B.C. 2500. [Nos. 90,001 and 90,016.]

No. 20–24. Bricks of Ur-Engur, king of Ur, recording the building of a temple to Nannar, the Moon-god, and the restoration of the walls of the city of Ur (Mukeyyer), about B.C. 2500. [Nos. 90,000, 90,003, 90,004, 90,009, and 90,011.]

No. 25. Brick of Gudea, governor of Lagash, recording the building of a temple to the god Ningishzida, about B.C. 2500 (See Plate XXII). [No. 90,289.]

No. 26. Brick of Gudea, governor of Lagash, recording the building of a temple to the goddess Ninni, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,288.]

No. 27. Brick of Gudea, governor of Lagash, recording the building of a temple to the god Ningirsu, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,290.]

Wall-Cases 4 and 5. No. 28. Black basalt gate-socket inscribed with the name and titles of Gudea, governor of Lagash, and recording the building of a temple to the goddess Ninâ, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,849.]

No. 29. Fragment of black basalt with inscription of Gudea, governor of Lagash, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,831.]

Brick of Gudea, governor of Lagash about B.C. 2500.

[Babylonian and Assyrian Room, Wall-Case 4, No. 25; No. 90,289.]

(See p. 88.)

Nos. 30–32. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Dungi, king of Ur, king of Sumer and Akkad, about B.C. 2500.

[Nos. 90,005, 90,017, and 90,276.]

Nos. 33 and 34. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Dungi, king of Ur (Mukeyyer), and recording the building of the temple of E-kharsag in that city, about B.C. 2500.

[Nos. 90,277, 90,278.]

No. 35. Stone gate-socket inscribed with the name and titles of Ur-Ningirsu, the son and successor of Gudea, governor of Lagash, and an account of the building of a temple to the god Ningirsu, about B.C. 2500.

[No. 90,845.]

No. 36. Stone ceremonial mace-head inscribed with the name and titles of Ur-Ningursu, governor of Lagash, about B.C. 2500.

[No. 86,917.]

Nos. 37–40. Bricks recording the name and titles of Bur-Sin, king of Ur (Mukeyyer), about B.C. 2450.

[Nos. 90,023, 90,037, 90,042, 90,043.]

Nos. 41–43. Bricks recording the name and titles of Bur-Sin, king of Ur, and the making of a great vessel or laver which he dedicated to the service of the god Enki.

[Nos. 90,027, 90,044, 90,279.]

Nos. 44 and 45. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Bur-Sin, king of Ur, and recording the name given to a statue of the king; the text concludes with a prayer to Nannar, the Moon-god, and to the goddess Ningal, "the mother of Ur," to destroy the posterity of anyone who should remove the statue.

[Nos. 90,036, 90,039.]

Nos. 46–48. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Enannatum, the high-priest of Nannar, the Moon-god, in the city of Ur, about B.C. 2400.

[Nos. 90,163, 90,164, 90,165.]

Nos. 49 and 50. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Sin-gashid, king of Erech, and recording the building of his palace in that city, about B.C. 2400.

[Nos. 90,294, 90,268.]

No. 51. Brick of Sin-gashid, king of Erech, recording the building of the temple of E-anna in that city, about B.C. 2400.

[No. 90,267.]

Nos. 52–55. Bricks inscribed with the name and titles of Ishme-Dagan, king of Isin, king of Sumer and Akkad, about B.C. 2400.

[Nos. 90,173, 90,178, 90,201, 90,203.]

No. 56. Stone gate-socket with inscription of Gimil-Sin, king of Ur, about B.C. 2450,

[No. 90,843.]

Wall-Cases 6 and 7. No. 57. Black basalt gate-socket recording the name and titles of Gimil-Sin, king of Ur, and the building of a temple to the goddess Anunitum, about B.C. 2450.

No. 91. Stone memorial slab inscribed in archaic Assyrian characters, with an account of the conquests of Rammân-nirari I., “the illustrious prince, adorned by god, the ruler, the viceroy of the gods, the founder of cities, the destroyer of the mighty hosts . . . , who bringeth low all his foes, both in the upper and in the lower countries, who trampleth down their lands from Lupdu and Rapiķu unto Elukhat, who hath made himself lord over the hosts of mankind, who hath enlarged the boundaries and the frontiers of his kingdom, the king beneath whose feet the gods Anu, and Ashur, and Shamash, and Rammân and Ishtar have forced all princes and rulers to bow down in submission.” This king considerably enlarged the empire of Assyria, and his sway reached as far north as Lake Van. When he had conquered all the countries round about, he devoted himself to the restoration of the famous temple of Ashur, in the city of Ashur. The text states that he repaired the gates and their foundations, that he repaired the platform of the palace, and banked it up firmly with stone and earth, and that he set up the tablet here exhibited to record his glory and prowess, and the building operations which he had carried out in his capital. He asks the god Ashur to bless and preserve the future prince who shall repair his buildings and his memorial tablet, should they have fallen into decay. On the other hand he invokes curses upon any of his successors who shall be careless in this respect, in the following words: "Whosoever shall blot out "the memorial of my name, and set his own in its place, or shall "doom my memorial tablet to destruction, or shall cast it into the "stream, or shall burn it in the fire, or shall cast it into the water, "or shall bury it in the earth, or shall set it in a dark place where "it cannot be seen, or through fear of these curses shall cause any "other man, or a bitter foe, or a wicked enemy, or a calumniator, "to seize it, may Ashur, the supreme god who dwelleth in "E-kharsag-kurkura, and Anu and Enlil and Ea and Ishtar the great "gods, and the Spirits of Heaven, and the Spirits of Earth, look "upon him in wrath. May they curse him; may they destroy his "name, and his seed, and his relatives, and his family in the land; "and by their august command may the ruin of his land and the "destruction of his people and of his borders be decreed; may the "god Rammân (the Storm-god) overwhelm him with a deadly "storm; may flood and destructive winds, and rebellion, and "hurricane, and tempest, and want, and famine, and drought, and "hunger, be ever in his land; may he (i.e. Rammân) overwhelm his "land like a flood; may he turn it into heaps and ruins, and may he "blast it with a bolt of destruction." No. 94. Boundary-stone recording the transfer of certain land.

[No. 90,833.]

Wall-Cases 9–12. The following group of boundary-stones, or "land-marks," belongs to the period which lies between B.C. 1200 and B.C. 850. They are inscribed in archaic Babylonian and Assyrian characters with texts which record the granting of lands, or renewal of grants, or transfers of landed estates in Babylonia to certain officials and others. The language is at times difficult to render into English, and the numerous gaps which occur in the text of several of them add to this difficulty. It will be noticed that on the upper parts, or sides, of most of them a number of figures of animals, etc., have been sculptured in low relief. These consist chiefly of animals, birds, snakes, tortoises, scorpions, and composite monsters, but included among them are a number of crescents and disks which are clearly intended to represent celestial bodies; all these are referred to in certain passages as the bas-reliefs or images of the gods. In some scenes a number of curiously shaped houses, or shrines, will be observed, which were known as the seats or shrines of the gods; and upon other stones certain objects, such as a spear, a wedge, a fork of lightning, etc., occur, which were described by the Babylonians as the weapons of the gods. There is no doubt that the three classes of symbols refer to certain of the Babylonian deities, the shrines generally acting as supports for the divine images and weapons. But while it is certain that the symbols are divine emblems, their exact significance upon the boundary-stones is still a matter for conjecture. A theory has been put forward that they are intended to represent the relative positions of the principal celestial bodies and signs of the zodiac at the time when these boundary-stones or land-marks were made. Another theory would regard these animals and monsters as representations of the deities, whose help is invoked in the text to punish any violation of the rights and privileges recorded therein. On the majority of the stones the number of deities invoked in the text is far smaller than the number of divine symbols so that no close correspondence can be traced between the two classes. It is not improbable, however, that the sculptured emblems were intended to supplement the written invocations, and that the object of both was the same, to safeguard the stone from injury and the rights it recorded from violation.

No. 95. Boundary-stone inscribed with a judgment confirming the right of a son to the paternal succession, to the exclusion of other children whose claims are not recognised, by Meli-shipak, king of Babylon, about B.C. 1200. This document states that the lands mentioned in it had already formed the subject of appeal to Meli-shipak's predecessors Rammân-shum-iddina and Rammân-nadin-akhî. [No. 90,827.]

No. 96. Boundary-stone inscribed with texts concerning the gift of certain corn-land which was situated on the bank of the river Zirzirri in Bit-Ada, to Rammân-zêr-ikîsha in perpetuity, by Marduk-nadin-akhê, king of Babylon, about B.C. 1100. The surveyor of the property was called Bêl-zêr-keni, and the document is dated from Dindu-bîtu in the tenth year of the king mentioned above, in the presence of sixteen witnesses, among whom was the governor of Bit-Ada, the district in which the property was situated. Almost two columns of this text are occupied with imprecations in which the great gods Anu, Enlil, Ea, Marduk, Nabû, Rammân, Sin, Shamash, Ishtar, Gula, Ninib, Nergal, Zamama, Papsukal, and Ishkhara are invoked to curse him that shall remove or destroy this

No. 97. Uninscribed boundary-stone with astronomical and other emblems sculptured in relief. This stone probably formed part of the stock-in-trade of a mason who prepared boundary-stones for sale; if this be the case, the broken astronomical emblems, which probably represented the Sun, Moon, Venus, etc., can hardly mark an exact date. About B.C. 1100. [No. 90,836.]

No. 98. Fine limestone stele, resembling a boundary-stone, inscribed with a valuable text recording the restoration and confirmation of certain rights and privileges to Ritti-Marduk, the warden of Bit-Karziabku, a district which was apparently situated on the confines of Elam, by Nebuchadnezzar I., king of Babylon, about B.C. 1120. This remarkable monument is probably the finest specimen of its class, and its contents are therefore described in some detail. According to the inscription, the god Marduk, the king of the gods, instructed Nebuchadnezzar, the ruler of kings, the governor of Babylon, to muster his army, and to set out to avenge Akkad. The king, "the bearer of the mighty bow, the one fearless in battle, who with his weapons had smitten the power of the country of Lulubi, and had subdued Phoenicia and spoiled the Kassites," set out from Dêr, the city of Anu, and marched a distance of sixty hours across the desert. The month was Tammuz, i.e., June, and all the wells and fountains and brooks had dried up and no water of any sort was to be had. The desert blazed like fire and the strength of the strongest horses and men failed before it. The hostile forces which Nebuchadnezzar went forth to meet included those of all the countries round about, and their kings drew them up in battle array; their number was so great that "the face of the sun was darkened by the clouds of dust raised by them." The king engaged in battle with them, and at the time when "the storm of their battle broke," Ritti-Marduk bore down upon the foe with his troops and smote the enemies of his lord with great slaughter, and vanquished the king of Elam, and seized his country. Nebuchadnezzar then marched into Elam and occupied and plundered it. When the king had returned to Akkad in glory and with joy of heart, Ritti-Marduk was held in high favour, and in reward for his bravery Nebuchadnezzar confirmed to him certain ancient privileges which his family had formerly enjoyed, but which had been curtailed through the enmity of the king of Namar, a neighbouring state, and he added others to them. These privileges were as follows:—The king of Namar was not to enter into Ritti-Marduk's country (without permission); no tax was to be levied by him on stallions, mares, oxen, sheep, and incense-trees; no portion of a plantation or date-grove was to be cut down by him within Ritti-Marduk's district ; no road was to be opened through his territory ; no bridges were to be built in certain places ; no recruits for the Babylonian army were to be drawn either from the city of Ritti-Marduk, or from the lands round about it ; and he and his people were set free from military service for ever. This grant of privileges was promulgated in the presence of the chief men of Babylon and other cities, including the governor of Babylon, the Secretary of State, the governor of the Palace, the prefect of the city, the governor of Namar, the prince of Namar, the high-priest of Enlil, and the governor of Akkad. The name of the scribe who drafted the document was Enlil-tabni-bullit. The text concludes with a series of imprecations in which the gods Ninib, Gula, Rammân, Shumalia, Nergal, Nanâ, Shir, Shubû, Sin, and other deities are invoked to curse in a far-reaching manner any ruler or governor of Namar, or any person whatsoever who shall attempt to annul or curtail the privileges of Ritti-Marduk, or abolish his immunity from taxation and compulsory military service, by the destruction of this stone by breakage or fire, or by sinking it in the river, or by burying it in the depths of the earth. Hunger and want shall fill the land of such a ruler, his rivers and canals shall become silted up, his enemy shall harass him day and night, the house which he has built another shall occupy, and his posterity shall be cut off. The divine emblems sculptured on this stone are fine examples of their class. (See Plate XXIII.)

[No. 90,858.]

No. 99. Boundary-stone inscribed with a deed recording the sale of a piece of corn-land by Amêl-Enlil, the son of Khanbi, to Marduk-naşir, a high official. The payment for the field consisted of a chariot, six saddles, two asses, two asses' saddles, one ox, corn, oil, clothing, etc., the total value of which was estimated at eight hundred and sixteen shekels. The inscription concludes with the usual series of curses on anyone who shall remove or injure this land-mark, which is named Mukin-kudurri-dârâti, i.e., "Establisher of the boundary for ever." On the flat side of the stone is a male figure wearing elaborately embroidered apparel and armed with a bow and arrow ; it is probably that of the king, Marduk-nadin-akhê, in whose reign the stone seems to have been set up.

No. 100. Boundary-stone recording the grant of a piece of corn-land which was situated in the district of Shaluluni on the banks of the Nâr-sharri, or "Royal Canal," to Khasardû by Meli-shipak, king of Babylon, about B.C. 1200. The land was measured by the governor of the city of Khani, the Royal Scribe, and another high official. The text concludes with a series of curses similar to those in the inscriptions upon the other stones of this class described above.

No. 101. Babylonian stele or boundary-stone, rounded at the top, on which the standing figure of a king and certain divine symbols have been sculptured in relief. On one edge are traces of an inscription which seems to have been erased intentionally. About B.C. 1000. [No. 90,837.]

No. 102. Boundary-stone inscribed with a series of texts referring to the possession of a certain estate which changed hands a number of times during the reigns of Ninib-kudur-usur and Nabû-mukîn-apli, kings of Babylon, about B.C. 1000. The possession of this estate formed a subject of dispute for some years, but owing to the broken state of the text it is not possible to describe in detail the course of the litigation. The text contains a series of curses on any who should destroy or remove the stone. On the obverse are a number of divine emblems and on the side is a standing figure of a king holding a sceptre. [No. 90,835.]

No. 103. Cylindrical stone object inscribed with the name and titles of Rammân-nirari II., king of Assyria, B.C. 911–890, the son of Ashur-dân, king of Assyria, the son of Tiglath-Pileser, king of Assyria. [No. 90,835.]

No. 104. Stele of unusual shape, which was inscribed during the reign of Marduk-balâtsu-iḳbi, king of Babylon about B.C. 830. On the upper part are emblems of the gods Shamash, Sin, and Nergal, and on the lower part are two human figures sculptured in relief. The text records the dedication of the two figures, probably portraits of Marduk-balâtsu-iḳbi and his eldest son, by Rammân-eṭir, who hoped thereby to secure favour for himself and for his posterity. [No. 90,834.]

No. 105. Cast of a boundary-stone inscribed with a deed recording the gift of a dowry, consisting of certain property situated near the city of Kâr-Nabû, to Dûr-Sharrukînaiti by her father Šîr-usur, about B.C. 1100. Presented by the Museum of the Louvre, 1858.

No. 147. Stone stele with rounded top and sculptured in high relief with a figure of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–626. The king is represented in his capacity of high priest and bears in his two hands, which are raised above his head, a basket of offerings, or possibly of earth for the building of his temples. The stele is inscribed with a text recording the name and titles and genealogy of this king, and describing his power and might, and the great care which he devotes to the worship of the gods. Ashur-bani-pal declares that he had appointed his twin-brother Shamash-shum-ukin to the sovereignty over Babylon, so that “the strong may not oppress the weak.” He describes how he undertook the rebuilding of E-sagil, the ancient temple of Marduk in Babylon, with cypress, cedar, and other precious woods, and how he made and set up new doors in it, and how he supplied it with vessels of gold, silver, copper, iron, wood, and stone. He rebuilt the shrine of Ea in the same temple, and in return for his pious deeds he entreats Ea and the other gods to bestow upon him the blessings of a long life and an abundant prosperity. The text concludes with prayers to Ea that blessings may be bestowed upon the king who shall pay honour to this image and inscription, and that curses may fall upon the head of him who shall in any way injure or destroy it. (See Plate XXV.) [No. 90,864.]

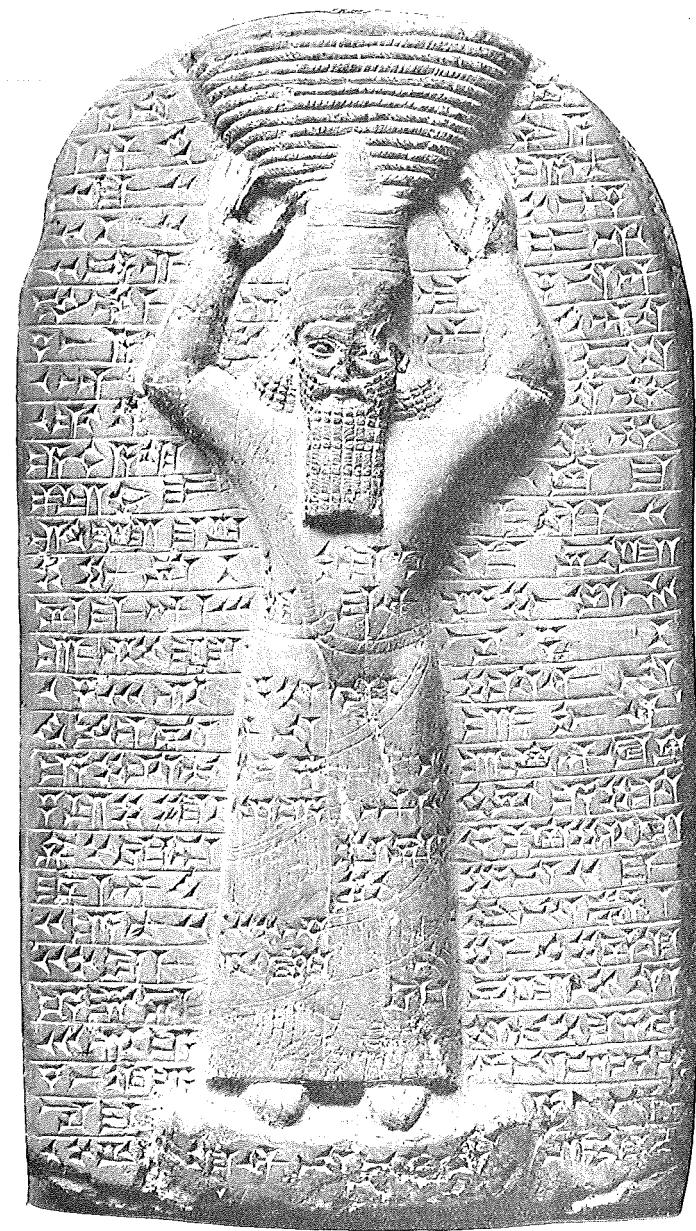

No. 148. Stone stele with rounded top and sculptured in high relief with a figure of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria. The text records the name, titles, and genealogy of this king and the restoration of E-zida, the shrine of the god Nabu (Nebo) in Babylon. [No. 90,865.]

No. 149. Brick of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, recording the rebuilding of the temple of the god Marduk. [No. 90,285.]

Nos. 150 and 151. Limestone slabs recording the name and titles of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, and the restoration of the temple of the goddess Belit in the city of Nineveh in commemoration of his victories over the Elamites. [Nos. 23,577, 23,578.]

No. 152. Limestone slab, recording the name and titles of Ashur-bani-pal and the restoration of the temple of the god Nabu in commemoration of his victories over the Elamites. [No. 22,467.]

No. 153. Stone stele with rounded top sculptured in high relief with a figure of Shamash-shum-ukin, viceroy of Babylon, the twin brother of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668–626. The king is represented in his character of high-priest, and like Ashur-bani-pal (see Nos. 147 and 148) bears in his two hands, which are raised above his head, a basket of offerings, or possibly of earth for the building of E-zida. The stele is inscribed with a text recording the name, titles, and genealogy of Shamash-shum-ukin and the restoration of the shrine of E-zida; it concludes with a prayer that Nabû may bless any of his successors who shall make offerings before his image and shall anoint it with oil and shall commemorate his name with that of himself. On the other hand he asks Nabû to blot out the name and posterity of the man who shall injure or destroy this image. From the annals of Ashur-bani-pal we learn that his twin brother Shamash-shum-ukin, whom he had appointed viceroy over Babylon, watched his opportunity, and joining his forces with those of the Elamites and other nations, revolted against his brother's sovereignty. He was however unsuccessful in obtaining his independence, and, being besieged in Babylon, he put an end to his life by fire rather than surrender. This happened about the year B.C. 650. It will be noticed that the crown has been removed from the head of the figure on the stele; this was probably done, after his death, by the officers of Ashur-bani-pal.

Stele with inscription and figure, sculptured in relief, of Ashur-bani-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 668 to 626. [Babylonian and Assyrian Room, Wall-Case 15, No. 147; No. 90,864.] (See p. 98.)

No. 181. Cast of an inscription of Nebuchadnezzar II. in archaic Babylonian characters, recording at great length the building operations which this king carried out on the great walls and temples of Babylon. The original is preserved in the India Office.

[No. 90,847.]

No. 182. Black basalt fragment with inscription recording the name and titles of Nebuchadnezzar II. [No. 90,848.]

No. 183. Brick recording the name and titles of Nabonidus, king of Babylon, B.C. 555-538. [No. 90,144.]

Nos. 184-187. Bricks recording the name and titles of Nabonidus, king of Babylon, and the building of a temple to Sin, the Moon-god, in the city of Ur.

[Nos. 90,148, 90,150, 90,151, 90,152.]

* This sign is a determinative prefix, i.e., a sign which was not pronounced, and only served to indicate the class of word to which it is attached.

† This sign is a determinative affix; its use is similar to that of the determinative prefix.

No. 188. Brick recording the name and titles of Nabonidus, with an impression of a human foot which was made upon it while moist. [No. 90,284.]

Nos. 189 and 190. Babylonian bricks without inscriptions. The hollows, or "frogs," were probably intended to afford a hold for the bitumen, or mortar, used in building. [Nos. 90,282, 90,283.]

Nos. 191-195. A group of glazed bricks with raised patterns, from Nimrûd. Uncertain period.
[Nos. 90,856, 90,857, 90,860, 90,861, 92,983.]

Nos. 196-203. A group of bricks recording the names and titles of a number of the Elamite kings who reigned at Susa, the "Shushan, the palace" of Esther 1, 2, and the modern Shushter. At present it is impossible to assign exact dates to the reigns of these kings, but it is probable that they were contemporaries of the king of the last Assyrian Empire, about B.C. 700. The texts upon the bricks, which are written and not stamped, are in a modified form of the Babylonian character.

Nos. 196 and 197. Bricks of Shutruk-Nakhkhunte,  Shu-ut-ru-uk-Nakh-khu-un-te, the son of Khalludush-Inshushinak, king of Susa.
[Nos. 90,292, 90,404.]

Nos. 198 and 199. Bricks of Kutir-Nakhkhunte, Ku-tir-Nakh-khu-un-te, king of Susa.
[Nos. 90,291, 90,523.]

Nos. 200 and 201. Bricks of Shilkak-Inshushinak,  Shil-ka-ak-In-shu-shi-na-ak, son of Shutruk-Nakhkhunte, king of Susa. [Nos. 90,503, 90,529.]

No. 202. Brick recording the name of Untash-gal | 乌·塔·沙·加
※ 乌·塔·沙·加, Un-tash-gal, son of Khubanumena, king of Susa.
[No. 90,405.]

No. 203. Brick recording the name of Attarkitakh,  [No. 90,528.]
At-tar-ki-takh, king of Susa.

No. 204. Circular stone vessel inscribed with the name of Ispuinis, the son of Sardur, king of Van, about B.C. 820. From Van. Presented by C. P. Devey, Esq., F.R.G.S., 1895. [No. 90,869.]

No. 205. Stone slab of Minūa, king of Van, with dedicatory inscription to the god Khaldi, about B.C. 700. [No. 90,863.]

Wall-Cases 20-22. Here are exhibited a number of casts taken from inscriptions cut in the Behistun Rock, and from palaces built by the Akhaemenian kings at Persepolis and other cities. The inscriptions here represented are in the Persian, the Susian or Elamite and the Babylonian languages, in which the Persian kings were wont to inscribe their edicts and commemorative texts; for they held sway over the countries of Persia, Media, and Babylonia. (See Plate XXVIII.)

The Persian cuneiform inscriptions supplied the material from which the early investigators of their contents obtained the clue to the correct method of the interpretation of cuneiform inscriptions in general. In 1802 Grotefend succeeded in deciphering the names of Hystaspes, Darius and Xerxes, but he was unable either to understand or to translate the rest of the inscriptions in which these names occurred. Following his method, Rask, St. Martin, Burnouf and Lassen contributed to the confirmation of his results, but as recently as 1837 the actual contents of the inscriptions remained unknown. In this year, however, the late Sir Henry Creswicke Rawlinson, Bart., G.C.B., succeeded in drawing up a working alphabet of the Persian cuneiform characters, and in making a correct analysis of the contents of certain inscriptions, and accurate translations of the short texts to which he had access. The process employed by him in his first efforts at decipherment may be thus briefly described. He selected two short inscriptions which he had copied at Mount Elwend, near Hamadân, in 1835.* He noticed that the inscription corresponded throughout with the exception of two groups of signs in each. He assumed that these groups of signs contained the names of the kings who set up the inscriptions and possibly those of their fathers. But in these two inscriptions the group of signs which occupied the second place in one of them, and which from its position seemed to represent the name of the father of the man who set it up, occurred in the first place in the other. This will be clear from the following transcriptions of these groups of signs:—

Inscription I.	1. D a r y v u sh	i.e., DARIUS.
	2. V i sh t a s p h y	i.e., HYSTASPEs.

* Copies of these are exhibited in Wall-case No. 22.

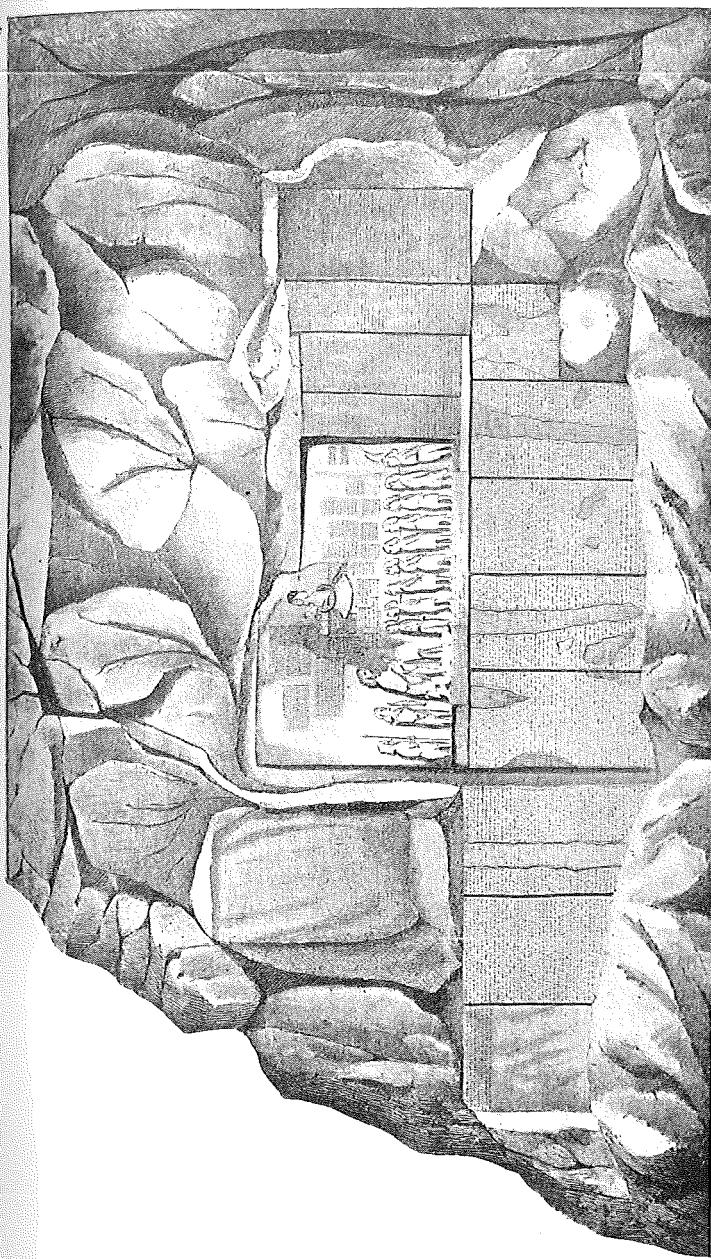

INSCRIPTION II.

3. 𐎧 𐎨 𐎠 𐎢 𐎤 𐎧 𐎡 𐎣
Kh sh y a r sh a i.e., XERXES.
4. 𐎧 𐎨 𐎤 𐎢 𐎤 𐎧 𐎤 𐎣
D a r y v u s̄h i.e., DARIUS.

It will be seen that group No. 4, which occupies the second place in No. II. inscription, is identical with group No. 1, which occupies the first place in No. I. inscription. Thus Rawlinson inferred that the father of the king who set up No. II. inscription was the king for whom No. I. inscription was set up, and that groups Nos. 2, 1 and 3 gave the names of three Persian kings in consecutive order. But what kings could these have been? The most famous kings of the Achaemenian line were Hystaspes, the founder of the dynasty, Darius his son, and Xerxes his grandson. On applying these names to groups Nos. 2, 1 and 3, he found that they answered in all respects satisfactorily, and were in fact the true identifications.

In 1837 Sir Henry Rawlinson went to Behistun and at great personal risk succeeded in making copies and paper impressions* of the Persian section of the great trilingual inscription which had been engraved on the face of the rock by the order of Darius the Great. This was no easy task, for the inscription is considerably more than a hundred feet above the ground. The scaling ladders which he had taken with him proved to be too short to enable him to read the Babylonian text, engraved upon a huge projecting piece of rock, but eventually he succeeded in obtaining a "squeeze" of it. When he first made his copy of the Persian text, he compared the two first paragraphs of it with the inscriptions which he had already copied at Elwend, and these supplied him with the native forms of the names of Arsames, Ariaramnes, Teispes, Achaemenes, Persia, and the meanings of a certain number of words. From the study of the old Zend and Pehlevi, which were cognate to the language of the Persian cuneiform inscriptions, he was enabled to construct a skeleton of the grammar, and to identify the meanings of a great many words. In 1847 he published a complete translation of the Persian text of the great Behistun inscription, with a full grammatical commentary

* Specimens of these are exhibited on the floor of Wall-case No. 21.

The Rock of Bisutun, or Behistun, in Persia engraved with a scene representing Darius, king of Persia from B.C. 521 to 485, receiving the submission of the chiefs of the nations who had revolted, and with inscriptions in the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian languages describing his wars and conquests. This plate is made from the drawing of the rock published by the late Sir H. C. Rawlinson, Bart., G.C.B. (See p. 102 ff.)

and alphabet, which have remained substantially unchanged. The decipherment of the Susian and Babylonian versions of the inscriptions next followed, and, conjointly with the Rev. Edward Hincks, Edwin Norris, and Prof. J. Oppert, Sir Henry Rawlinson worked out the values of the Susian, Babylonian, and Assyrian signs, and translated the inscriptions.* For the determination of the Assyrian characters these scholars derived great help from the ancient lists of characters (see Nineveh Gallery, Table-Case B) which had been excavated at Kouyunjik (Nineveh) and had been recently brought to this country. The language of the Assyrian and Babylonian inscriptions being Semitic, the early investigators were much assisted by the close resemblance of many of its roots to those found in Hebrew, Syriac, Chaldee, and Arabic.

Nos. 206 and 207. Portions of a moulding from a column bearing a trilingual inscription in the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian languages of Artaxerxes Mnemon, king of Persia from B.C. 405 to B.C. 362, in the palace of the Persian kings at Ecbatana.

[Nos. 90,894, 90,855.]

Nos. 208–212. Casts of inscriptions of Darius I., king of Persia from B.C. 521 to B.C. 485, cut above the heads of the prisoners sculptured on the face of the rock at Behistun. The prisoners, ten in number, stand in the presence of the king, roped together by the neck, with their hands tied behind their backs. (See Plate XXIX.)

No. 208. Cast of the Persian version of the inscription over the head of Fravartish, who declared himself to be the king of the Medians.

[No. 22,471.]

No. 209. Cast of the Persian version of the inscription over the head of Arakha, who declared himself to be Nebuchadnezzar, the son of Nabonidus, and king of Babylon.

[No. 22,472.]

No. 210. Cast of the Persian version of the inscription over the head of Atrina, who declared himself to be the king of the Susians.

[No. 22,475.]

No. 211. Cast of the Susian version of the inscription over the head of Vahyazdâta, who declared himself to be Smerdis, the son of Cyrus.

[No. 22,473.]

No. 212. Cast of the Susian version of the inscription over the head of Arakha, who declared himself to be Nebuchadnezzar, the son of Nabonidus, and king of Babylon.

[No. 22,474.]

* The complete texts of the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian inscriptions at Behistun, based on a new collation of the originals on the Rock, are published with English translations, introduction, reproductions of photographs, etc., by the Trustees under the title “The Sculptures and Inscriptions of Darius the Great on the Rock of Behistun in Persia,” 1907, 8vo., £1.

106 BABYLONIAN AND ASSYRIAN ROOM—WALL-CASES 20 TO 27.

No. 213. Cast of part of an inscription in the Babylonian language recording the name and titles of Darius the Great.
[No. 22,477.]

No. 214. Cast of part of an inscription in the Babylonian language of Xerxes I., king of Persia from B.C. 485 to 465.
[No. 22,478.]

No. 215. Cast of part of an inscription in the Babylonian language recording the completion by Xerxes I. of the palace which his father Darius began to build.
[No. 22,476.]

No. 216. Cast of part of an inscription of Artaxerxes III., (Ochus), king of Persia from B.C. 362 to 339.
[No. 91,236.]

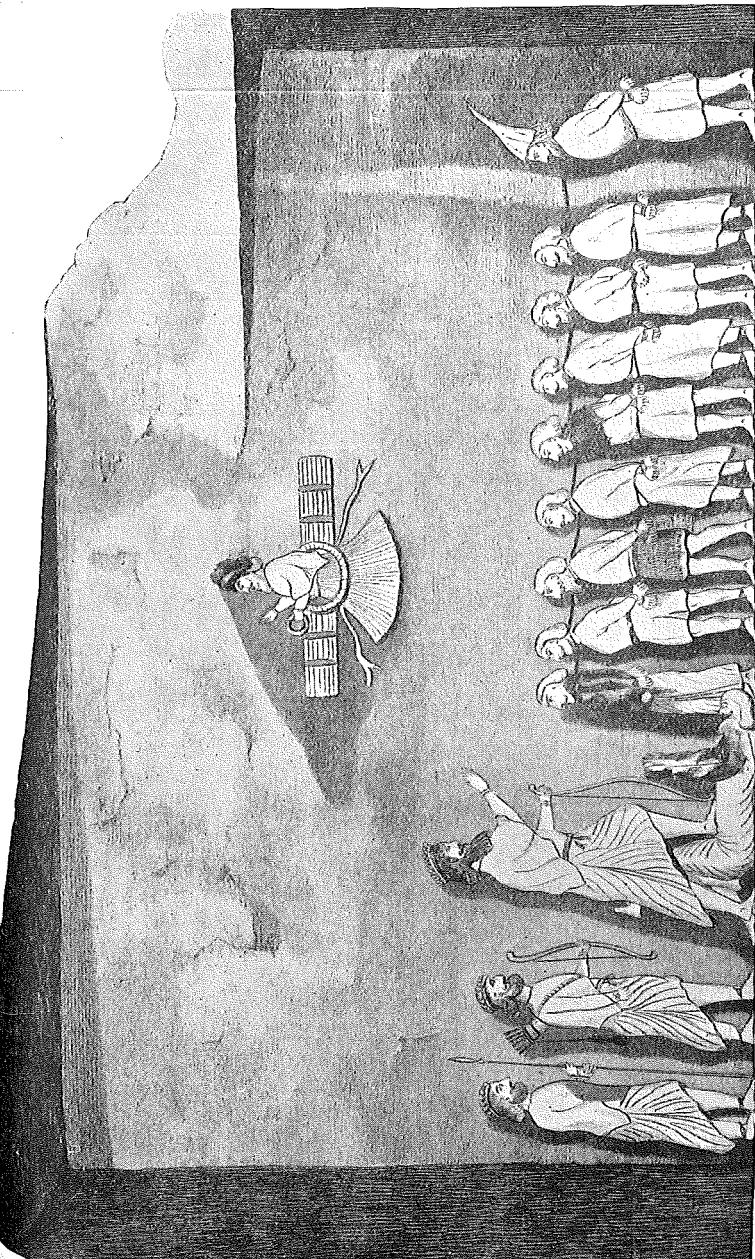

No. 217. Cast of an inscription in the Persian language, recording the titles and genealogy of Artaxerxes III., king of Persia, and the completion of a palace at Persepolis.
[No. 22,480.]

No. 218. Specimens of the paper “squeezes,” or impressions made by the late Sir H. C. Rawlinson, Bart., G.C.B., of the inscriptions in the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian languages cut in the rock at Behistun in Persia, to commemorate the wars and conquests of Darius I., king of Persia, from B.C. 521 to B.C. 485.

Wall-Cases 23-27. Here is exhibited a large collection of bronze objects, shields, portions of a throne, wine and water vessels, helmets, fetters for prisoners, weapons, agricultural and carpentering implements, tools, vases, lion-weights, fittings of the ends of chariot-poles, etc. They were found chiefly on the Assyrian sites Kouyunjik (Nineveh) and Nimrud (Calah), but a considerable number of the tools and small figures of animals and men were found in the neighbourhood of Babylon and in Southern Babylonia. The shields, figures of gryphons, and bronze plates with open work were discovered at Van in Armenia. Few of these objects can be dated with exactitude, but it is probable that the greater number of them were made between about B.C. 1000 and A.D. 400. A small number of the nondescript figures, which are exhibited on the small shelf in Wall-case 25, may even belong to the period subsequent to the Muhammadan conquest of Mesopotamia. The following are of special interest:—

Nos. 219-222. A group of bronze helmets belonging to various periods; No. 219 is probably Assyrian and Nos. 220-222 are probably the work of Sassanian smiths. [Nos. 22,495—22,498.]

No. 229. Bronze covering of a leather or wicker shield ornamented with figures of lions and bulls in relief. The groups of Scene from the Rock of Bisutun or Behistun in Persia, representing Darius receiving the submission of the chiefs of the nations who had revolted against him. The figure in the winged circle above is the god Ahuramazda. This plate is made from the drawing of the sculptures published by the late Sir H. C. Rawlinson, Bart., G.C.B.

rivets in the upper part indicate the position of the handles by which it was carried. On the outer flange are traces of a cuneiform inscription. About B.C. 700. From Van. [No. 22,481.]

No. 239. Bronze framework for the side of a throne. The upper bars terminate in bulls' heads and the legs in bulls' hoofs. [No. 22,491.]

Bronze figure of a Babylonian god.
[Wall-Case 25, No. 592*.]

Bronze figure of a Babylonian demon.
[Wall-Case 25, No. 574.]

No. 242. Bronze handle of a large bucket or vessel made in the form of a human-headed bird. [No. 22,494.]

No. 246. Portions of a rectangular bronze foundation slab, with part of an inscription in cuneiform. [No. 91,157.]

No. 248. Portions of bronze lattice-work. From Van.
[No. 91,159.]

No. 260. Bronze slab which formed part of a model of a castle or fortress, and showing the position of embrasures and battlements. From Van. [No. 91,177.]

No. 292. Bronze plate with design in hollow work, and figure of a bull in relief. From Van. Presented by Capt. E. Clayton, R.A. [No. 21,209.]

Nos. 303–318. A series of weights in the form of lions, many of which are inscribed in cuneiform with the names of the Assyrian kings in whose reigns they were made, and with their weights in Phoenician. On the left side of most of them is a symbol indicating the weight; thus the inscription on the edge of the base of No. 303 reads, "Fifteen manehs of the country," and on the left side of the lion are fifteen strokes. The castings were reduced to their correct weights by chiselling pieces off the base, but in the case of No. 306 the adjustment has been effected by filling the hollow body of the lion with lead. It is probable that these weights were made by Phoenician settlers in Assyria. From about B.C. 750 to B.C. 700. From Nimrud. [Nos. 91,220–91,235.]

Bronze lion-weight of two manehs with Babylonian and Phoenician inscriptions. [Wall-Case 27, No. 305; No. 91,222.]

Nos. 319–325. A series of hollow bronze heads of lions and bulls which formed the fittings of the ends of chariot-poles. [Nos. 24,961, 91,237–91,242.]

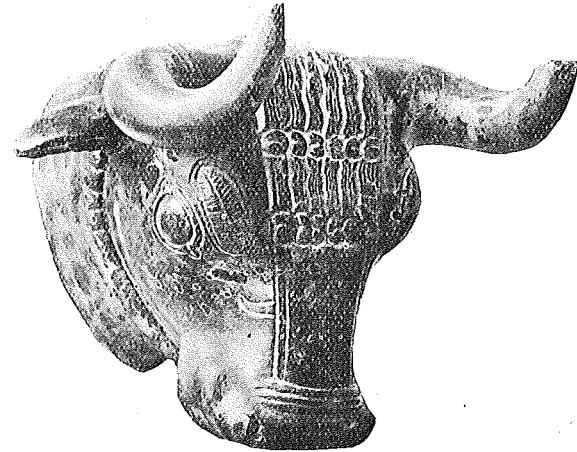

No. 326. Hollow bronze bull supporting a standing figure of a king or god. The face of the bull, which was fitted on separately, was probably made of gold or silver. [No. 91,243.]

No. 327. Bronze rhyton in the form of an oryx. The eyes were inlaid with white stone. [No. 91,249.]

Nos. 328 and 329. Two winged and man-headed bulls; the faces were probably made of gold. No. 329 is furnished with human arms and hands which are clasped together. From Van. [No. 91,247, 91,248.]

No. 330. Bronze model of a castle or fortress. From Van. [No. 91,250.]

Nos. 574 and 592*. Bronze figures of a Babylonian demon and a Babylonian god. [No. 93,078, 91,149.]

Bronze head of a bull, which decorated the end of a chariot-pole. [Wall-Case 27, No. 322; No. 91,240.]

Wall-Cases 28 and 29. A series of alabaster jars, vases, figures, etc., and glass bowls, bottles, and phials of various periods found at Kouyunjik, Nimrud, Babylon, and other places in Mesopotamia. The following are interesting examples:—

No. 625. Upper part of an alabaster figure of the god Nebo. Early period. [No. 91,667.]

Nos. 615–621. Alabaster dolls and figures of Ishtar or Aphrodite. [Nos. 91,668–91,677.]

Nos. 699, 701, 702, 704. Fragments of alabaster vases inscribed with the name and titles of Xerxes, king of Persia and Babylon, from B.C. 485 to B.C. 465. [No. 91,453–91,455, 91,459.]

Nos. 700 and 706. Fragments of alabaster jars inscribed with the name of Rammân-nirari I., king of Assyria, about B.C. 1325. [No. 90,956, 90,957.]

No. 705. Fragment of alabaster jar inscribed with the name of Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722 to B.C. 705. [No. 91,460.]

No. 709. Fragment of alabaster jar inscribed with the name of Assurbanipal, king of Assyria, B.C. 668 to about B.C. 626.

[No. 91,588.]

Nos. 714 and 715. Fragments of a vase with figures of Assyrian gods in relief, dedicated to the god Nergal of the city of Tarbis (Sherif Khân). [Nos. 90,960, 91,583.]

No. 716. Fragment of a vase with a representation in relief of a captured city, dedicated to the god Ninib. [No. 91,582.]

No. 717. Part of an Assyrian mace-head of lapis-lazuli with votive inscription. [No. 91452.]

Limestone model of a winged and human-headed cow, to form the base of a column.

[Wall-Case 30, No. 723.]

No. 723. Limestone model of a winged cow with a woman's head; on the back rests the base of a column. [No. 90,954.]

No. 726. Opaque glass vase inscribed with the figure of a lion and the words $\Sigma\text{I}\text{I}\text{I} \Sigma\text{I}$, $\text{I} \leftarrow \text{I} \leftrightarrow \text{I}$, Ekal Sharru-ukin, "Palace of Sargon," i.e., Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722 to B.C. 705. [No. 90,952.]

Nos. 735, 759, 847. Specimens of ancient glass, showing the iridescence caused by contact with damp earth. [Nos. 91,577, 91,578, 91,579.]

No. 756. Oval crystal object; use unknown. From Nimrûd. [No. 90,959.]

No. 760. Roman bottle of blue glass with body in shape of a human head. [No. 91528.]

Opaque glass vase inscribed with the name of Sargon, king of Assyria, B.C. 722—705.

[Wall-Case 28, No. 726.]

Wall-Case 30. A series of fragments of painted baked clay ceiling-ornaments with bosses; many of them are inscribed with the name and titles of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria from B.C. 885 to B.C. 860. From Nimrûd (Calah). [Nos. 91,679–91,690.]

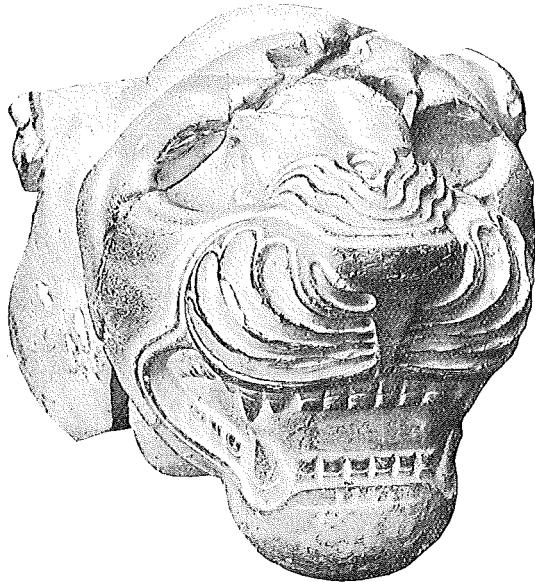

No. 866. Stone basket ornamented with rosettes and eyes, which was fastened by bitumen to a wall sculpture, on which was a figure of a king or mythological being in relief. [No. 91,700.]

Nos. 867–875. A series of baked clay fists which were used either as votive offerings, or as architectural ornaments. A few of them are inscribed with the name and titles of Ashur-nasir-pal, king of Assyria. The fingers of No. 867 were originally covered with blue glaze, and those of No. 875 with grey glaze.

[Nos. 90,964, 90,976, 90,977, 91,701-91,703.]
A lion's head. [No. 91,678.]

No. 876. Fine white limestone head of a lion. [No. 91,078.]

Fine white limestone head of a lion.

[Wall-Case 30, No. 876.]

Wall-Cases 31-40. On the five upper shelves of these cases are exhibited a long and interesting series of baked clay vases and vessels, both with and without handles; a number of lamps made in the forms of animals, birds, etc.; late terra-cotta groups, such as that of Europa and the bull [No. 743, p. 114]; a large number of terra-cotta figures of gods and goddesses, foundation and votive figures [cf. Nos. 996, 1005, 1025, p. 115 f.], animals, etc. In Wall-Case No. 39 are a series of plaques with figures of dogs, lions, and hunting scenes in relief [Nos. 1062-1067; cf. No. 1063, p. 117]; three steatite moulds for casting ear-rings and other articles of jewellery [Nos. 1069-1071; see p. 117]; a steatite kohl, or stibium, pot with three tubes, and having upon the sides human figures and a lion and a sphinx in relief [No. 1068]. In Wall-Case 40 (Shelf 4) are seven stone and clay heads of the god of the south-west wind and other Babylonian demons [Nos. 1047-1052; see p. 118 f.], and some heads of animals, of which a carved ivory head of a bull may be specially noted [No. 1061; see p. 119]. In Wall-Cases Nos. 31-40 is a valuable series of earthenware bowls of various depths and diameters, which were employed for magical or medical purposes. The inscription on the insides are written in the Hebrew, Syriac, Chaldee and Mandaïtic languages, but many of them are mere collections of letters jumbled together and are not intended to have any meaning. In some of them, e.g., No. 934, the inscription was supposed to confer upon him who drank from it blessing and health from heaven. In line 3 is a reference to the "sixty mighty men of Israel who stood round about the couch of Solomon," and this reference is followed by an extract from the priest's blessing (Numbers vi., 24-26), "The Lord bless thee, and keep (thee) : the Lord make His face shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee : the Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace. Amen. Amen. Selah." By the side of this inscription are three trees, and the sacred letter H enclosed in a square. When used for medical purposes a draught of water was brought to the sick man in a bowl, and either he, or the physician, or both, recited the text written round the inside of the bowl immediately before or after drinking. These bowls are of different periods; the oldest belongs to the third or second century B.C., and the latest to the third or fourth century A.D. Along the bottom of these cases (Wall-Cases 27 ff.) are exhibited:—

Nos. 293–300. A series of bronze adze-heads.

Nos. 594–610. A series of stone and marble weights in the form of ducks. The two largest are weights of 30 manas each; of these, one (No. 599) belongs to the reign of Nabû-shum-libur, the other (No. 600) to that of Erba-Marduk. [Nos. 91,432–91,448.]

Terra-cotta foundation-figure of a fish-god.
[Wall-Case 37, No. 996.]

Terra-cotta foundation-figure of a god.
[Wall-Case 38, No. 1005.]

No. 1583. Earthenware vessel containing portions of two human skulls and other bones which were found at Nineveh.

[No. 91,448.]

No. 1597. Large earthenware vessel for holding grain.

[No. 91,961.]

No. 1604. Sepulchral vase containing burnt human remains
From Susa [Shushan, the palace.] Presented by Colonel Ross
C.I.E., 1876. [No. 91,954.]

No. 1606. Vase similar to the above, containing burnt human remains. [No. 91,952.]

No. 1609. Massive six-handled earthenware jar for holding wine or water. Around the side in relief are figures of snakes with feet, duck-headed and winged dragons, and figures of snake-charmers (?). [No. 91,950.]

Terra-cotta votive figure of a woman suckling a child.
[Wall-Case 38, No. 1025.]

No. 1618. Earthenware vessel ornamented with a notched border and two figures of a mythological being in relief. The figures have human faces, the claws and wings of a bird and the tail of a lion. [No. 91,941.]

Nos. 1623 and 1629. Earthenware jars containing burnt human remains over which layers of plaster have been laid for purposes of preservation. [Nos. 91,936, 92,000.]

No. 1631. Portion of a foot from a limestone statue of a king or a high official. [No. 92,003.]

No. 1633. Calcareous stone sarcophagus, with alabaster lid, of the Parthian period. From Susa. Presented by Col. Ross, C.I.E., 1876. [No. 91,932.]

Terra-cotta plaque stamped with a scene representing a man leading a dog.
[Wall-Case 38, No. 1063.]

Steatite mould for casting small articles of jewellery.
[Wall-Case 39, No. 1071.]

No. 1634. Stone sarcophagus containing burnt human remains.
From Samsabad, near Bushire. Parthian period. Presented by
C. J. Malcolm, Esq., 1838. [No. 91,933.]

Wall-Cases 41–44. A miscellaneous collection of architectural ornaments, capitals of pillars, stone heads, baked-clay masks, etc., of the late Assyrian and Parthian periods, followed by a series of glazed vessels, bricks, and coffins of the Parthian, Græco-Roman, and Sassanian periods. Of special interest are :—

No. 1580. Glazed brick on which is depicted the figure of an Assyrian king accompanied by attendants bearing bow, arrows, spear, etc. (See Plate XXX.) [No. 90,859.]

Terra-cotta figure of a Babylonian demon.

[Wall-Case 40, No. 1051.]

Nos. 1645–1647. Three massive, glazed, earthenware coffins from Warka in Southern Babylonia, about B.C. 200.

[Nos. 92,004–92,006.]

No. 1786. Light glazed earthenware vessel with six divisions. This is an interesting example of the silver-grey glaze which is said to be especially characteristic of the late Parthian period.

[No. 92,097.]

On the right-hand side of the doorway at the western end of the room stand :—

1. Cast of a basalt stele inscribed in ancient Babylonian characters with the text of the Code of Laws, which was drawn up by Khammurabi, king of Babylon, about B.C. 2200. On the upper part of the stele is carved a relief in which the king, standing in the traditional attitude of worship with his right arm bared and raised, is represented in the act of receiving the laws from Shamash, the Sun-god. The god wears the horned headdress, symbolical of divine power, and he holds in his right hand the ring and staff emblematic of sovereignty and dominion; and from his shoulders rise flames of fire. The god is seated upon a mystic throne, represented in the form of a Babylonian shrine or temple, and his feet are set upon the mountains. (See Plate XXXI.) On the lower part of the stele are engraved twenty-eight columns of text, containing :—

- (i) An Introduction, in which Khammurabi enumerates the benefits he has conferred upon the great temples and cities of Babylonia and Assyria.
- (ii) The text of the Laws, some two hundred and eighty-two in number, by which the Babylonians were ordered to regulate their affairs.
- (iii) An Epilogue, calling down a blessing upon any man who should observe the laws, and a series of curses upon any king or governor who should break, modify or abrogate any of them.

The stele was set up in Esagila, the temple of Marduk in Babylon, so that it might be consulted by any man who considered himself wronged or oppressed. It was afterwards carried away by an Elamite king to Susa, where four or five columns of the lower part of the text were erased, probably to make room for an inscription of the king who removed it; but this second inscription has not been engraved. Khammurabi's Code of Laws was not invented by the king or his legal advisers, but was based upon a large number of older laws and customs, which had been in use for many centuries and had acquired the sanctity of long tradition. What Khammurabi did was to collect and codify the laws, and to enforce them rigidly. The large number of contract-tablets of this period which have been recovered (see Table-Case A) prove that the Code was no dead letter, and the despatches of Khammurabi himself (see Table-Case B) illustrate the vigorous manner in which the king administered justice to his subjects, and stamped out abuses in his empire. The laws engraved upon the stele consist of an exhaustive set of regulations dealing with all classes of the population and defining the privileges and responsibilities of each. They thus throw considerable light upon the social conditions of Babylonia at this early time; and they have acquired additional interest and importance from the resemblance which many of them bear to similar enactments included in the Mosaic legislation and other ancient legal codes. [No. 98,493.]

2. Cast of a statue of Gudea, governor of Lagash in Southern Babylonia about B.C. 2500. The figure of the king, who is here represented as an architect, is covered with an inscription in archaic cuneiform characters describing the construction and dedication of the temple of the god Ningirsu at Lagash, wherein the statue was set up. Presented by the Museum of the Louvre.

On the left-hand side of the doorway are:—

1. Boundary-stone recording a grant of certain land near the city of Dûr-Zizi, on the banks of the river Tigris, by Merodach-Baladan I., king of Babylonia about B.C. 1150, to Marduk-zakir-shum, a governor of a district in Babylonia. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph" in 1873. [No. 90,850.]

2. Black basalt statue of Gudea, governor of Lagash in Southern Babylonia about B.C. 2500. The inscriptions recorded building operations carried out by this king. [No. 92,988.]

Table-Case A. Here is exhibited a large and important series of "Case-tablets," that is to say, tablets with the clay envelopes, or cases, within which they were preserved, arranged side by side. They were found at Tell Sifr, and at other sites of early cities both in northern and southern Babylonia. The arrangement of the tablets from Tell Sifr, when discovered by Loftus in 1854, is thus described by him in his Chaldaea and Susiana, p. 270:—

"Three mud bricks were laid down in the form of the capital letter U. The largest tablet, measuring six and a-quarter inches long and three inches wide, was placed upon this foundation, and the two next in size at right angles to it. The rest were piled upon them and also upon the bricks—the whole being surrounded by a reed matting, traces of which were still visibly adhering to many of the tablets. They were covered by three unbaked bricks, which accounts for the perfect preservation of so many. Several were found broken, but the fragments were carefully collected."

At other places in Babylonia it was customary to keep such tablets in a special chamber, either arranged upon shelves, or packed in jars made of unbaked clay, on the outsides of which were inscribed the names of certain of the contracting parties mentioned on the tablets. The jars were made of that peculiar Babylonian loamy earth which preserves its consistency only as long as it is comparatively fresh. After the lapse of years it crumbles away when touched and falls down into dust. Hence it is impossible to remove these jars, and there is no example in this collection.

The tablets are written in the Babylonian language, but they contain a number of words and phrases and formulæ belonging to the non-Semitic or Sumerian language, which was formerly in use throughout the country. They were written during the reigns of Sumu-la-ilu, Zabum, Apil-Sin, Sin-muballit, Khammurabi, Samsu-iluna, and other early kings of Babylon, and during the reign of Rim-Sin, King of Larsa, from about B.C. 2300 to B.C. 2000. Their contents refer to legal and commercial transactions, and include deeds recording the buying and selling of houses and lands; the leasing of house-property, gardens, fields, plantations, etc.; the hiring of slaves and labourers; the loan of money and seed-corn; the payment or repayment of monies received on deposit; the dissolution of partnerships; the adoption of children; marriage-contracts; bills of divorce, etc. Other tablets of this series are inscribed with legal or judicial decisions concerning the ownership of land, and the division of property, etc.

When a contract was made in Babylonia the contracting parties went to some priestly, or legal, official in the town or city in which they lived, and had a statement of the terms of agreement inscribed upon a clay tablet, a copy of which was kept by one or both of the contracting parties, as a proof that the contract was still in force. The original document was placed for safety either in the temple or in the record chamber of the city, and in order to preserve the text inscribed upon it, it was enclosed in a clay envelope or "case," on which the document was copied in duplicate. At the end of each document were written the names of the witnesses, including that of the scribe or official who drew up the contract and sealed it. Usually the seal was impressed on the case only. In general a tablet was sealed by rolling a cylinder-seal, made of some hard stone (see Case D) over it, or by impressing a seal upon it whilst the clay was moist. The early tablets show that another method was also in use. One or more seal impressions were made upon a three-sided clay cone, in the apex of which a piece of reed was inserted. The other end of the reed was attached to the tablet by a piece of moist clay, and thus the cone hung down from the tablet much in the same way that seals hang from ancient parchment charters.

A number of such cones will be seen in the upper part of the case, with fragments of reed still visible (Nos. 95–137). An examination of the texts on the tablets and of the copies upon the cases of those which were found broken shows that the duplicate copy frequently contained variant readings, important both linguistically and grammatically. Hence the cases of all the tablets of this class have been carefully opened, the inner tablet removed, and both tablets and cases are here exhibited side by side.

Table-Case B. Here are exhibited two interesting series of tablets which were inscribed during the rule of the kings of the Dynasty of Ur (i.e., Mukeyyer) and during that of the kings of the First Dynasty of Babylon; they date from about B.C. 2400 to about B.C. 2100. The first series (Nos. 1-35) consists of a number of lists of fields or estates, with their measurements and statistics. The measurements give the length and breadth of each field or estate as well as the total superficial area. The care with which these lists were drawn up indicates that they form part of a large survey of the cultivable districts near the rivers and canals and round about the cities of Southern Babylonia, and there is little doubt that they supplied the data upon which the system of taxation and collection of revenue employed by the Babylonian kings and priests was based. It is tolerably certain that the Babylonians, like the Egyptians, had no deep theoretical knowledge of arithmetic, geometry and mensuration, but the lists here exhibited all show that they were very ready in making practical calculations, and that in a rough and ready way they were able to solve all the problems which dealt with the amount of produce, chiefly grain, which could be grown upon a piece of land, however irregular its shape might be. The ability to work out such calculations was of great value in a country like Babylonia, where the areas and boundaries of fields or estates were constantly changing owing to the frequent inundation of the Tigris and Euphrates. The principal land measures were called GAN, SAR, and GIN (1 GAN = 1800 SAR; 1 SAR = 60 GIN); the principal corn measures were called GUR, KA and GIN (1 GUR = 300 KA: 1 KA = 60 GIN). But, although the relative values of these measures are known, it is not at present possible to give their equivalents in modern English measures.

It will be noticed that the tablets of this series which, as far as shape is concerned, are probably unique, are dated according to the system employed by the non-Semitic Sumerian inhabitants of Babylonia, that is to say by important events, such as military expeditions, the destruction of cities, the founding of temples, the restoration of shrines of certain gods; in fact almost every year was called after some important event which had taken place in it. This system was adopted by the early Semitic kings of Babylon, and continued in use for a considerable time; as, however, it was found to be too cumbersome and complicated, it became at length superseded by another system in which the regnal years of the kings were used to date all documents, legal or otherwise, and the latter system continued in use until the end of the Neo-Babylonian Empire. It would be impossible to identify the exact year in which a certain document of the early period is dated, were it not for the classified lists of events which have come down to us, and of which examples may be seen in Table-Case E. The reason why the tablets of this series are circular in shape is not apparent, for, the texts being written in columns, much of the superficial space is uninscribed; and much room would be required for their careful storage.

The second series of tablets (Nos. 36–105) forms a remarkable collection of letters from Khammurabi, Samsu-iluna, Abēshu', Ammi-ditana, and Ammi-zaduga, kings of Babylon, chiefly addressed to high officials in the great cities of Larsa and Sippar. Each tablet was enclosed in a clay envelope, inscribed with the address of the official for whom it was intended. The clay envelopes were thrown away after their recipients had broken them open. In a few instances small portions of them still adhere to the letters. In the upper portion of the tablet-case will be seen an example of a private letter by the side of case will be seen an example of a private letter by the side of its envelope; as the envelope was unbroken, it is probable that it was not despatched. (See Nos. 93,018, 93,018A.) Both envelope and tablet were baked, and the former was prevented from adhering to the latter by powdering the tablet with dry clay.

The writing on these letters is of a cursive character, and, though many of the signs still retain the complicated forms met with in the earlier periods, it is evident from many peculiarities that they were very quickly written. They represent a period of transition in writing which lies between that found on the tablets of the earliest periods (see Nos. 1–35 and Table-Case C, Nos. 105–159), and that employed by the writers of the series of letters and despatches which were found at Tell el-Amarna (see Table Case F.).

The contents of this group of tablets are of a very interesting character, for they afford some insight into the administration of the Babylonian empire under Khammurabi and his immediate successors. We learn that the governors of the great cities received their instructions directly from the king, and that every subject had the right of appeal in any serious dispute to the king's supreme court at Babylon. The orders issued in these tablets refer to the cleaning and repair of canals; the transport of oil, wearing apparel, corn, dates, sesame-seed and other produce to Babylon; the providing of crews for barges for transport; the supply of wood for various purposes; the preservation of fishing rights; the shearing of sheep; the restoration of lands to their rightful owners; the restoration of officials and others to their posts; the arrest of insubordinate officials and their despatch to Babylon; the transfer of legal and other cases to Babylon for hearing; the collection of revenue; the audit of accounts, etc. No. 51 is of peculiar interest and relates that the king sent two officers to inquire into a charge of bribery which had been made against officials of the town Dūr-gurgurri, and the money and all other things which formed part of the bribe were to be confiscated and sent to the king at Babylon. This group of tablets comprises the oldest Babylonian letters known. The style is terse but generally clear, serving as a model for later scribes in drafting their despatches; it is in striking contrast to the verbose composition of the Tell el-Amarna tablets.

Table-Case C.—In the upper part of this case are exhibited a large and interesting series of memorial tablets, bronze figures, clay cones, fragments of stone and alabaster vases, inscribed in the early Babylonian character with votive and other texts, dating from the earliest period of Sumerian history to about B.C. 626. In the lower portion is a series of very fine examples of large tablets inscribed with accounts, lists of grain and produce, and lists of provisions for workmen and slaves, and inventories of cattle and sheep, etc., drawn up in connection with the administration of the government property and that of the great temples in Southern Babylonia about B.C. 2400. Most of the inscriptions in this case are written in the Sumerian language, which was in common use among the non-Semitic inhabitants of the country from very early times.

No. 1. Portion of a limestone slab, inscribed in archaic “line-Babylonian” characters, which are semi-pictorial. The text belongs to an exceedingly early period, but as no king’s name is mentioned, it is impossible at present to assign to the object an exact date.
[No. 22,506.]

No. 2. Limestone mace-head inscribed in archaic Babylonian characters with a record of its dedication to Ningirsu on behalf of Enannatum, governor of Lagash. Around the object in relief are sculptured rude figures of an eagle, lions, etc. The eagle and the lions constituted the emblem of the city of Lagash.
[No. 23,287.]

No. 3. Fragment of an alabaster vessel with inscription of Urukagina, king of Lagash.
[No. 90,902.]

No. 4. Fragment of an alabaster vessel with inscription of Urumush, an early king of Kish in Northern Babylonia, recording the dedication of the vessel to a god, and stating that it formed part of spoil from Elam.
[No. 91,020.]

No. 5. Fragment of an alabaster vessel inscribed with the name and title of Urumush, king of Kish.
[No. 91,019.]

No. 6. Stone mace-head with inscription in archaic Babylonian characters, dedicated to the Sun-god at Sippar by Sargon, king of Agade, who, according to the statement of Nabonidus, reigned about B.C. 3800. The king is referred to on a cylinder of Nabonidus (No. 91,109, see Case G, No. 65), which states that in the course of certain work which he was undertaking in connection with the re-building of the Temple of the Sun-god at Sippar, he found an inscription of Narâm-Sin, the son of Sargon, the original founder of the temple, “which had not been seen for ‘three thousand two hundred years.’” Now, Nabonidus reigned from B.C. 555 to B.C. 538, and, on the assumption that the year of the restoration of the temple was B.C. 550 by adding 550 to 3200, a date of B.C. 3750 has been obtained for the reign of Narâm-Sin. And Narâm-Sin was the son of Sargon, to whom therefore the date of B.C. 3800 has been assigned; but see above, p. 3. [No. 91,146.]

No. 7. Lapis-lazuli tablet, dedicated to the god Anu and the goddess Ninni by Lugal-tarsi, an early king of Kish.

[No. 90,013.]

No. 8. Marble mace-head, with inscription of Manishtusu, an early king of Kish.

[No. 90,018.]

No. 9. Mace-head dedicated to a god by Ninkagina, daughter of Ka-azag, on behalf of himself and Nammakhni, viceroy of Lagash, about B.C. 2500.

[No. 22,445.]

Stone mace-head of Sargon, an early king of Agade, in Northern Babylonia.

No. 10. Grey-stone cross-shaped object with inscription in archaic Babylonian characters, about B.C. 2500. [No. 91,022.]

No. 11. Stone head-dress for a statue inscribed with a dedication to a goddess by Bau-ninan on behalf of Dungi, king of Ur, about B.C. 2500.

[No. 91,075.]

No. 12. Tablet inscribed with the name and titles of Dungi, king of Ur, about B.C. 2500. [No. 90,897.]

No. 13. Copy of an inscription of Dungi, king of Ur, about B.C. 2500, recording the building of a temple in Cutha.

[No. 35,389.]

No. 14. Stone object dedicated to the god Meslamtaea, on behalf of Dungi, king of Ur, about B.C. 2500.

No. 93. Copy of an inscription of Kurigalzu, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 1400, recording the building of a temple to the goddess Ninni. [No. 22,463.]

No. 94. Tablet sculptured with a scene representing the worship of the Sun-god in the Temple of Sippar, and inscribed with a record of the restoration of the temple by Nabu-aplu-iddina, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 870. In the upper part of the tablet the Sun-god is seen seated within a shrine upon a throne, the sides of which are sculptured with figures of mythical beings in relief; in his right hand he holds a disk and bar, which may be symbolic of the sun's orbit, or eternity. Above his head are the three symbols of the Moon and the Sun and the planet Venus. The roof of the shrine is supported by a column in the form of a palm-trunk. Before the shrine upon an altar or table stands the disk of the Sun, which is held in position by means of ropes tightly drawn in the hands of two divine beings who form part of the celestial canopy. Approaching the disk are three figures; the first of these is the high priest of the Sun-god, who is leading the king by the hand to do worship to the symbol of the solar deity, and the last figure is an attendant goddess. The shrine of the god stands upon the Celestial Ocean, and the four small disks upon which it rests seem to indicate the four cardinal points. The text describes the restoration of the Temple of the Sun-god by two kings called Simmash-shipak (about B.C. 1050) and Eulmash-shakin-shum (about B.C. 1020). It then goes on to say that Nabû-aplu-iddina, king of Babylonia, found and restored the ancient image of the Sun-god and the sculptures of the temple, which had been overthrown by the enemies of the country. The shrine of the god had been stripped of its beautiful ornaments and its ancient endowments had been appropriated for profane uses. But when Nabû-aplu-iddina became king, he determined to take vengeance upon the enemy who had carried out such sacrilegious work, to re-found and re-endow the shrines of the gods and to establish regular festivals and offerings. He also beautified the ancient figure of the Sun-god with gold and lapis-lazuli. The text concludes with a list of the offerings which the king dedicated to the temple, and enumerates at length the various garments and apparel which the priests were to wear on holy days and festivals. This tablet was made by Nabû-aplu-iddina in the ninth century before Christ, but he probably copied the sculptured scene at the top from a relief of a very much older period. Two protecting coverings of clay, which have received impressions of this scene, were found with the tablet; the broken covering was probably made by Nabû-aplu-iddina, and the unbroken one by Nabopolassar. About two hundred and fifty years after the restoration of the temple by Nabû-aplu-iddina, Nabopolassar, king of Babylon from B.C. 625 to 604, the father of Nebuchadnezzar II, again restored the temple, and in the course of his work must have found this tablet. He provided the sculptured scene with a new clay covering (No. 91,002), and according to his inscription on the back of it (see the plaster cast, No. 91,003), he dedicated a number of offerings and garments to the shrine of the Sun-god at Sippar. It is probable that the baked clay box in which it was found (see No. 91,004) dates from the reign of this king. (See Plate XXXVI.)

No. 95. Deed recording a grant of land by Nebuchadnezzar I., king of Babylonia about B.C. 1120, to Shamúa and Shamai his son. These men were priests of Eria, an Elamite god, and for some reason they came to Babylon and appealed to Nebuchadnezzar to help them against the rulers of their country. Nebuchadnezzar espoused their cause, and having invaded Elam, he wasted and ravaged the whole country. When this had been done, he took the two priests Shamua and Shamai and their god Eria back to Babylonia, and set apart the revenues of certain lands for the maintenance of the worship of this Elamite god. north-west of Assyria; an expedition against the land of Shubari and defeat of 4,000 warriors of the Khatti; the second expedition against Kummukh; the conquest of the countries of Murattash, and Saradaush to the south of Assyria; an expedition against the countries to the north of Assyria, wherefrom Tiglath-Pileser brought back much spoil, along with twenty-five images of gods; the conquest of Nairi, and the countries to the north of Assyria; the conquest of Karkemish; the final conquest of Nairi; Tiglath-Pileser's hunting expeditions; the restoration of the temples and palaces in Ashur and other cities; and the general prosperity of Assyria. The text concludes with an account of the rebuilding of the temple of Anu and Rammān which was founded by Shamshi-Rammān, king of Assyria, about B.C. 1820. Six hundred and forty-one years later it was pulled down by Ashur-dān, and it was not rebuilt until the reign of Tiglath-Pileser, about sixty years later.

This cylinder is dated in the eponymy of Ina-ilia-allak. From Kal'at Sherkāt, the site of the city of Ashur.

No. 14*. Limestone memorial tablet inscribed in the Assyrian language with a text of Tukulti-Ninib I., king of Assyria, about B.C. 1275. The tablet was engraved to commemorate the completion of the city wall of Kâr-Tukulti-Ninib, the town which Tukulti-Ninib had built not far from Ashur, his capital, and it was probably buried by the king in the foundation of the wall. In addition to giving an account of the building of Kar-Tukulti-Nimib, the dedication of its temples to the gods, and the cutting of a canal for supplying it with water from the Tigris, the text gives a very valuable account of the king's military expeditions. We learn that his first campaign was against the Kutî and the inhabitants of four other districts to the east of Assyria; this was followed by the conquest of Shubari and ten other districts to the north-west of Assyria, and by the subjugation of forty kings of the lands of Na'iri. The most interesting record on the stone is that which relates how Tukulti-Ninib defeated Bitiliashu, or Kashtiliashu, the Kassite king of Babylon, and brought the whole of Sumer and Akkad into subjection to Assyria. Tukulti-Ninib also records how he carried Bitiliashu away to Assyria and led him a prisoner and in chains before Ashur, the national god. The text concludes with an appeal to future rulers to keep the city-wall in repair and the tablet in its place; it blesses all who carry out these instructions and calls down curses on anyone who shall destroy the wall, or remove the tablet, or deface the king's name, or neglect or destroy the city itself which Tukulti-Ninib had built. [No. 98,494.]

Nos. 14–23. A group of modern imitations (or "forgeries") of inscribed Babylonian antiquities of various periods, which have been made in the East during the last twenty-five years.

Nos. 14 and 15 are engraved with figures of Babylonian heroes, etc., which seem to have been copied from the sculptures found at Lagash. The forger apparently derived parts of his inscription from a votive offering inscribed with a dedication to the god Ningirsu, parts of whose name occur in more than one place on these objects. Presented by Mr. W. Talbot Ready, 1899. [Nos. 86,260, 86,261.]

No. 16. Modern stone plaque with forged inscription of Gimil-Sin, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 2400. For tablets similar to that from which this forgery was copied, see Table-Case C. (upper portion). [No. 25,011.]

Nos. 17–21. Modern baked clay rectangular and circular tablets with forged inscriptions of the period of the Dynasty of Ur. For tablets similar to those from which these forgeries were copied, see Table-Cases B and C (lower portion).

[Nos. 16,363, 23,650–23,652, 23,665.]

Nos. 22 and 23. Modern baked clay cylinders made from moulds taken from genuine cylinders of Nebuchadnezzar II. king of Babylon from B.C. 604 to B.C. 561. For cylinders similar to those from which these casts were made, see Table-Case G (upper portion). [Nos. 93,012, 93,013.]

No. 23*. Modern copy of an early Babylonian funerary cone; a genuine cone with a similar text is exhibited in Case C, No. 104*.

[No. 102,611.]

Nos. 24–500. In the lower portion of the case is a series of the hard stone Cylinder-seals used by the Babylonians for sealing legal and commercial documents. Thus, to ratify a contract the cylinder bearing the name of the witness or contracting party was rolled over the moist clay of the contract tablet in the space provided for it. Tablets thus impressed are to be seen in Table-Case A.

Marble, jasper, rock-crystal, emerald, amethyst, topaz, chalcedony, onyx, agate, lapis-lazuli, haematite, steatite, and occasionally jade were employed in the manufacture of seals. The outline of the design was cut with a graver made of metal or some very hard stone, and the deeper parts were hollowed out by means of a drill. The hole pierced through the length of the seal would enable the owner to secure it by a string; and it might also be worn as an ornament, or amulet, or talisman. The engraving on the cylinder in its simplest form consisted of a figure of the owner, and his name, and perhaps the name of his father. An early development introduced the figure of the god whom he worshipped and the name of that god. In process of time the whole field of the cylinder became filled up with figures and emblems of gods and mythical animals, etc. Very commonly the whole of the surface is occupied with a scene from an ancient legend, a representation of an act of worship of one of the gods, or some incident of a successful war or fight; scenes of the conflict of the mythical heroes Gilgamesh and Eabani with lions and bulls are of frequent occurrence. Specimens of cylinder-seals have been found which belong to the earliest historical periods; and it is known from the examples preserved in London and Paris that the art of engraving was carried on long after the time of the Persian conquest of Babylon by Cyrus, about B.C. 538. The oldest examples are found in Southern Babylonia, and of these the most important is that of Sargon I. of Agade, who, according to the statement on the cylinder of Nabonidus, king of Babylon, about B.C. 555 (see Table-Case G), reigned about 3800 B.C. This seal is in the collection of M. de Clercq, at Paris. The use of cylinder and other seals was apparently borrowed from the Assyrians by the Phoenicians in about the eighth century B.C. A number of typical examples of the most interesting classes of cylinder seals have been grouped at the beginning of the collection.

No. 24. Cylinder-seal inscribed with the name of Khashkhamer, viceroy of the city of Ishkun-Sin, and an address to Ur-Engur, king of Ur about B.C. 2500. The scene represents Ur-Engur or Khashkhamer being led into the presence of Sin, the Moon-god.

[No. 89,126.]

No. 25. Cylinder-seal dedicated to Meslamtaea by Kilulla on behalf of the life of Dungi, king of Ur about B.C. 2500. The scene represents the king or Kilulla being led into the presence of the god.

[No. 89,131.]

No. 26. Cylinder-seal inscribed with the name and titles of Gimil-Sin, king of Ur about B.C. 2400. Presented by the late Sir H. C. Rawlinson, Bart., G.C.B., 1895.

[No. 12,165.]

No. 27. Cylinder-seal engraved with a scene representing a priest or official standing in adoration before a bas-relief of an Assyrian king which has been set up near a sacred tree. Above the tree is the visible emblem of Ashur, the national god.

[No. 89,502.]

Cylinder-seal of the reign of Ur-Engur, about B.C. 2500.
[Table-Case D, No. 24; No. 89,126.]

No. 28. Persian cylinder-seal engraved with the figure of Darius in his chariot hunting lions in a palm-plantation ; above is the emblem of Ahuramazda, the national god of ancient Persia. The inscription gives his name and titles in the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian languages.

[No. 89,132.]

Cylinder-seal inscribed with the name of Darius in the Persian, Susian, and Babylonian languages.
[Table-Case D, No. 28; No. 89,132.]

No. 29. Cylinder-seal engraved with a scene representing a male and female figure seated at the side of a tree bearing fruit ; behind the woman is a serpent. This scene has been identified by some writers as the Babylonian equivalent of the temptation of Eve recorded in the Book of Genesis.

[No. 89,326.]

No. 30. Cylinder-seal engraved with a scene in which Sit-napishtim, the Babylonian equivalent of Noah in the Book of Genesis, is being steered in an ark, or vessel, over the water of the Flood (see Nineveh Gallery, Table-case A).

[No. 89,349.]

No. 31. Cylinder-seal engraved with a scene in which the Babylonian hero Sit-napishtim is conventionally represented standing in the ark. On each side of the waters of the Flood is a mythical being holding a rudder or steering-pole. [No. 89,771.]

No. 32. Cylinder-seal engraved with a representation of the Babylonian hero Sit-napishtim. The style of the engraving on this seal is most unusual, for the figure runs round the seal and not across it.

[No. 89,463.]

No. 33. Cylinder-seal on which is engraved a scene depicting the slaughter of the monster Tiamat by the god Marduk (Merodach), who is armed with a thunder-bolt and other weapons. This scene is described on the Fourth Tablet of the Creation Series (see Nineveh Gallery, Table-Case A).

[No. 89,589.]

Nos. 34–61. A group of cylinder-seals, belonging to various periods between B.C. 2500 and B.C. 500, engraved with scenes in which the mythical heroes Gilgamesh and Ea-bani are depicted in conflict with lions, bulls, and oryxes. Gilgamesh is represented as a mighty man of the chase, and Ea-bani as a half-human monster with a bull's horns, legs, and tail. For an account of the legend of the deeds of Gilgamesh and Ea-bani, see p. 45 ff.

No. 62. Cylinder-seal engraved with scenes in which Gilgamesh and Ea-bani are in conflict with a lion, and Gilgamesh and Arad-Ea are crossing the Ocean and the Waters of Death (see p. 46.)

[No. 89,588.]

No. 63. Cylinder-seal engraved with a mythological scene in which a god or hero is mounting upwards on the back of an eagle ; this scene has been connected with the legend of Etana (see p. 82).
[No. 89,767.]

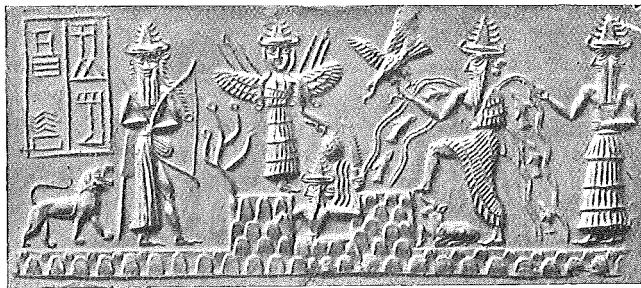

No. 64. Cylinder-seal engraved with figures of human-headed bulls lying in a pasture, and bulls, and other animals, birds, etc. This cylinder belongs to an extremely early period, and the material is a fine example of the lapis-lazuli, which is supposed to have come from the neighbourhood of Elam.

[No. 22,962.]

Nos. 65–67. Three cylinder-seals engraved with a scene representing the Sunrise, in which Shamash the Sun-god issues from the portals of heaven, which are opened for him by attendant deities.
[Nos. 89,110, 89,531, 89,548.]

No. 68. Cylinder-seal engraved with a scene representing the worship of Shamash, the Sun-god, who is seated upon a throne.
[No. 89,257.]

Nos. 69–71. Three important cylinder-seals engraved with mythological scenes, in which a River-god and a number of other deities are depicted. No. 69 is a particularly interesting example of early lapidary work; the inscription shows that it belonged to Adda, the scribe.
[Nos. 89,096, 89,115, 89,250.]

Cylinder-seal of Adda, the scribe, engraved with a mythological scene, about B.C. 2500.

[Table-Case D, No. 70; No. 89,115.]

Table-Case E.—Here is exhibited a group of one hundred and nineteen deeds and commercial documents belonging to the reigns of Sumula-ilu, Zabum, Apil-Sin, Sin-muballit, Khammurabi, Samsu-iluna, Abêshu', Ammiditana, and Ammizaduga, kings of Babylon, from about B.C. 2300 to B.C. 2050. They refer to the sale of houses and land, the renting of houses and land, the exchange of houses and land, the sale of slaves, deeds of gift, marriage-contracts, dissolution of partnerships, judicial decisions, etc. Grammatically and palaeographically the tablets are of the greatest importance, and the fact that the text on each tablet is complete considerably enhances their value. Incidentally they throw much light upon the development and application of Babylonian law, and afford much information concerning the tenure of land and house property, and the social condition of the well-to-do classes in Babylonia during the latter part of the period in which the Semites finally established their supremacy in that country. In this case also are exhibited the principal documents referring to the history and chronology of Babylonia; specimens of the magical and incantation tablets written during the early periods of Semitic civilization in Babylonia; a clay model of a liver which was probably used by the magicians and soothsayers for purposes of augury; two beautifully written complete tablets inscribed with forecasts derived from oil and water; two fragments relating to Babylonian legend and mythology; a clay map of the world, showing the position of Babylon and Assyria, and the all-embracing Ocean; and a valuable series of grammatical and lexicographical tablets belonging to various periods.

[No. 46,226.]

Babylonian map of the world.

No. 154. A tablet inscribed with a Chronicle concerning early Babylonian kings. The text begins with a record of the principal achievements of Sargon, king of Agade, and his son, Narâm-Sin, and restores a portion of the document from which the historical extracts, occurring in the "Omens of Sargon and Narâm-Sin" (see Nos. 158 and 159), were taken. The chronicle includes traditions concerning Dungi, king of Ur, and other early rulers; and the "catch-line," which gave the opening line of the next tablet in the series, refers to a war between Ilu-shûma, an early king of Assyria, and Su-abu, the founder of the First dynasty of Babylon. One section of the text describes how an early king named Ura-imitti was succeeded upon the throne by his gardener, a story that is referred to in the history of Agathias. [No. 26,472.]

No. 155. Part of a tablet inscribed with a Chronicle concerning early Babylonian kings, giving a series of records in continuation of the text upon No. 154. The chronicle records the war waged by Khammurabi, king of Babylon, against Rim-Sin, king of Ur and Larsa, and a later series of wars between Babylon and the Country of the Sea on the shore of the Persian Gulf. This document supplies data for establishing the true chronological order of the first three dynasties of the List of Kings (see No. 125), and records an early invasion of Northern Babylonia by the Hittites (Khatti) in the reign of Samsu-ditana, the last king of the First Dynasty of Babylon. [No. 96,152.]

No. 156. Date-List of the period of the First Dynasty of Babylon, similar to Nos. 123 and 124. [No. 80,037.]

No. 157. Tablet inscribed with the Assyrian version of the “Omens of Sargon and Narâm-Sin.” In the text the military expeditions of these two early kings, and other episodes in their history, are associated with omens derived from the appearance of the livers of sheep, slain as sacrificial victims. [K. 2130.]

No. 158. Portion of a tablet inscribed with the Neo-Babylonian version of the “Omens of Sargon and Narâm-Sin.” See No. 157. [No. 67,404.]

No. 159. A Babylonian Chronicle, inscribed with a series of extracts from a longer text, recording events which took place in Babylonia and Assyria from the eleventh to the seventh century, B.C. [No. 27,859.]

No. 160. A Babylonian religious chronicle and register of portents, which took place at or near the city of Babylon during the eleventh century, B.C. One of the portents, which describes the turning of day into night, may have been derived from a solar eclipse. [No. 35,968.]

No. 161. Fragment of a list of the Babylonian dynasties. [K. 14839.]

No. 162. Fragment of a Babylonian Chronicle, recording an expedition against Egypt, undertaken by Nebuchadnezzar II. in the thirty-seventh year of his reign. [No. 33,041.]

No. 163. Neo-Babylonian copy of an inscription of Gaddash, a Kassite king of Babylon, about B.C. 1750. [No. 177,438.]

Table-Case F. The collection of cuneiform tablets here exhibited forms part of a large “find” of about three hundred and twenty letters, or portions of letters, which were addressed chiefly to Amenophis III. and his son Amenophis IV., kings of Egypt, about B.C. 1450–1420; they were discovered at Tell el-Amarna in 1887. Tell el-Amarna is the modern Arabic name given to the village near the ruins of the town, temple and palace, which were built on the right or east bank of the Nile, about one hundred and eighty miles south of Memphis, by Khu-en-Aten, or Amenophis IV., king of Egypt, about B.C. 1420. With the tablets were found a clay seal having two impressions of the prenomen of Amenophis IV.; five alabaster plaques inlaid in blue porcelain with the name of Amenophis III.; a blue-glazed porcelain plaque inscribed with the names of Amenophis III. and his wife Thi; and the cover of a vase or jar, carved to represent a lion and a bull fighting. The style of the last named object seems to indicate foreign workmanship.

These tablets differ in shape from any other documents inscribed in cuneiform known to us, and the nature of the clay of which they are made varies with the countries from which they come. Thus No. 1, a draft of a letter from Amenophis III., is made of finely-kneaded Nile mud; Nos. 8–11, etc., are made of Syrian clay; five of Rib-Adda’s letters (Nos. 13, 18, 19, 20, and 24) are written upon the yellow clay which is so common near the Syrian coast. On Nos. 10 and 11 are dockets written in Egyptian hieratic which record the dates of their arrival in Egypt; No. 4 bears an impression of an Egyptian scarab on the reverse; and No. 58 bears on the reverse an impression of a Babylonian cylinder-seal. The writing on these tablets is a modification of the cursive cuneiform character used throughout Babylonia for despatches and epistolatory compositions as early as B.C. 2300.

The tablets are of the greatest importance palaeographically, because they exhibit the varieties and peculiarities of the work of the scribes in many different countries and cities of Western Asia, which are not known from any other source. Compared with the neat, careful hand employed in the official documents drawn up for the kings of Assyria, the writing is somewhat coarse and careless, and in some cases the writers were evidently unskilled. One and the same hand, however, appears in tablets which come from the same person and the same place. On No. 82, which is a mythological legend, a number of red dots may be noted; these probably indicate an attempt to mark punctuation. The language in which the letters are written is Babylonian, and in many important details closely related to the Hebrew of the Old Testament. A peculiar feature in these tablets is the frequent use of glosses, which explain certain Sumerian ideographs both by Babylonian and by Palestinian words. In some cases Babylonian words are explained by their Palestinian equivalents.

The documents from Tell el-Amarna, which were probably written between B.C. 1450 and 1400, afford us an insight into the nature of the political relations which existed between the kings of Western Asia and the kings of Egypt, and prove that an important trade between the two countries was carried on from very early times. They also supply information concerning offensive and defensive alliances between the kings of Egypt and other countries, marriage customs, religious ceremonies, intrigues, etc., and they give us for the first time the names of Artatama, Artashumara, and Tushratta, kings of Mitani. From the Egyptian annals we learn that the Egyptians first obtained power in Syria under Amasis I., about B.C. 1600. This vigorous king established himself at Sharhan (a city which lies to the south of Gaza, and is mentioned in Joshua xix., 6) in the fifth year of his reign; but he was not strong enough to advance further into Syria. Thothmes I. established his authority as far north as Ruthen, and the people of that place continued to pay tribute to Egypt during the reigns of Thothmes II. and Hâtshepset. In the reign of Thothmes III. a revolt broke out over the whole of northern and eastern Syria, but it was quelled by the king, who marched from Sinai to Megiddo in a little over twenty days. When the Egyptian rule had been re-established, the worship of the gods Amen and Harmachis was introduced into the city of Tunip; and soon after the powerful league of the kings of Kadesh on the Orontes, Tunip, Arantu, Karkemish, and the Kheta submitted to Thothmes III., and paid tribute to him. About fifty years later Amenophis II. marched into Northern Syria, and having slain seven kings who had rebelled there, he took their bodies back to Egypt, where they were hung up for the public to see. Amenophis III., about B.C. 1450, still further consolidated the Egyptian power in Syria and north-western Mesopotamia. The latter country he visited frequently to hunt lions; it is recorded that during the first ten years of his reign he slew one hundred and two lions with his own hand.

Amenophis III. married a sister of Kadashman-Enlil (or Kadashman-Bél), king of Karaduniash; and a sister (Gilu- khipa) and a daughter (Tatumkhipa) of Tushratta, king of Mitani; and Thi,* the daughter of Iuaa and Thuua, who became the mother of Amenophis IV. He also made proposals to Kadashman-Enlil for the marriage of one of his daughters, but her father replied that she was not beautiful, and went on to say that he was not prepared to send her to Egypt until he was well assured that her aunt, his own sister, was alive and was being treated in a manner befitting the wife of the king of Egypt. Kadashman-Enlil further stated, that, as no one had seen his sister, he did not know whether she was alive or dead. When he sent this letter to the king of Egypt, he sent certain high officials with it to bring back news of his sister. On their arrival in Egypt, Amenophis caused all his wives to be assembled before them, that they might see and judge for themselves of the honour and esteem in which the Mesopotamian lady was held. The envoys, however, were unable to identify the sister of their king, and Amenophis subsequently explained this to Kadashman-Enlil, by saying that none of the members of the embassy was personally acquainted with his sister, as they were not old enough to remember her marriage, which had taken place during the life-time of Kadashman-Enlil's father (see letter No. 1). Subsequently Kadashman-Enlil proposed that as Amenophis wanted a Mesopotamian princess to wife he (i.e., Kadashman-Enlil) should have an Egyptian princess to wife; but the Egyptian king excused himself, saying that he was unable to give a princess in marriage to him.

In reply Kadashman-Enlil says:—

“ Why not ? Thou art king, and can do as thou pleasest ; and if thou shalt give her unto me, who shall say a word against it ? Surely there be beautiful women in Egypt, and if thou knowest any such, send her to me ; for who could say here that she is not a princess ? But if thou wilt not send such an one, then thou dost not act as a friend and brother should. . . . Why has my brother not sent me a wife ? Inasmuch as thou hast not sent me a wife, in like manner will I act towards thee, and I will prevent any Mesopotamian lady from going down into Egypt.”

Later, however, Kadashman-Enlil appears to have sent his daughter to Amenophis III., and to have received a daughter of the king of Egypt in return.

Under the rule of Amenophis IV. the Egyptian power over Syria and Western Asia declined rapidly, and the Tell el-Amarna tablets supply most graphic details of the disorganized condition of the Egyptian dependencies which lay on the coast-line of Phoenicia and northern Palestine. The kings of Syria were not slow to perceive that the struggle which Amenophis IV. was carrying on against the ancient priesthood of Egypt would benefit them, and they were waiting the opportunity to throw off the Egyptian yoke. Burraburiash, king of Karaduniash, was considered sufficiently important to be allowed to marry an Egyptian princess, and it is probable that this was permitted with the view of strengthening the fast weakening hold of Egypt upon his country. Ribbing the Adda of Byblos reports the revolt of almost the whole district under his command, and Abi-milki of Tyre informs the king that several of the cities in his vicinity had fallen into the hands of the leaders of the faction opposed to the Egyptian rule. Finally the whole of the littoral between Sidon and Aradus passed into their hands. Corruption and disloyalty seemed to exist everywhere, and when it became apparent that the weak king of Egypt would not, or could not, send troops to support the Egyptian officials in protecting his interest, the disaffected banded themselves together and made themselves masters, not only of the country but also of the profitable mercantile traffic which was carried on between Tyre and Sidon and the great cities on the coasts of the Mediterranean.

The following specimens of translations will illustrate the style and contents of the letters from Tell el-Amarna:—

I. Unto Nimmuria (i.e., Amenophis III.), king of Egypt, my brother, my son-in-law, whom I love, who loveth me, say†:—
“Thus saith Tushratta, king of Mitani, thy father-in-law, who loveth thee. It is well with me, with thee also may it be well; and may it be well with thy house, and with Tatumkhipa, my daughter, and with thy wife whom thou lovest, and with thy wives, and with thy sons, and with thy nobles, and with thy chariots, and with thy horses, and with thy troops, and with thy land, and with everything that is thine! Ishtar, the goddess of Nineveh, the lady of all lands, spake, saying: ‘Unto Egypt, the land which I love, I would go, and would journey thither straight-way;’ I have therefore sent her unto thee and she hath departed. Now in the time of my father the lady Ishtar went down into that land, and, as in days of old, she dwelt there and the people

And I pray that Ishtar, the Lady of Heaven, may protect both my brother and myself for a hundred thousand years, and may the Lady of Fire grant great joy unto us, and thus shall we be able to do that which is good (in her sight)”

II. Unto Nipkhuriria (i.e., Amenophis IV.), king of Egypt, say:—“Thus saith Burraburiash, king of Karaduniash, thy brother. With me it is well, and with thee and thy house and thy wives and thy sons, and thy land and thy nobles, and thy horses and thy chariots may it be exceeding well. From the time when my father and thy father established friendship with each other, they sent rich gifts one to the other and neither refused the other whatsoever his heart desired, however precious it might be. Now my brother hath sent unto me as a gift two manehs of gold; I would that thou shouldst send me as much gold as thy father sent, and if it must be less than that which he sent, send thou unto me the half of what he sent. Why hast thou sent unto me two manehs of gold only? Now the work in the temple is great; I have undertaken it with vigour and I shall perform it thoroughly. Therefore send me much gold, and whatsoever thou desirest in my land send (thy messengers) and let them take it back to thee. In the time of Kurigalzu, my father, all the peoples of the Canaanites sent unto him, saying: ‘Let us go down to the border of the land (of Egypt) and let us invade it, and we will form an alliance with thee.’ To these words my father made answer, saying: ‘Cease your words in respect of an alliance. If you are hostile to the king of Egypt, my brother, then make alliances among yourselves, but, as far as I am concerned, since the king of Egypt is my ally, why should I not come and plunder you?’ Now it was for thy father’s sake that my father did not hearken unto them, and in the matter of certain Assyrians who are my subjects, have not I sent word unto thee concerning them? Why have they entered thy land? As thou lovest me, thou shalt not let them accomplish aught with thee, and thou shalt make their efforts to be without avail. As a gift unto thee I send three manehs of lapis-lazuli, and ten horses for five chariots of wood.”

[No. 2.]

III. Unto my lord the king, my gods, my sun, the sun in heaven, say: “Thus saith Yapakhi of Gezer, thy servant, the dust of thy

“of my lord the king, my gods, my sun, the sun in heaven, seven
“time and seven times I prostrate myself upon my breast and “back. I have hearkened intently unto the words of the messenger
“of my lord the king. Let my lord the king, the sun in heaven, “take heed unto his land, for the Khabiri are mighty against us;
“and let the king, my lord, stretch out his hand unto me and let “him deliver me from their hands, so that they may not make an

The description of the tablets is as follows:—

No. 1. Letter from Amenophis III., king of Egypt, to Kadashman-Enlil, king of Karaduniash. After salutations, Amenophis refers to the refusal of Kadashman-Enlil to give him his daughter in marriage on the grounds that no one knew what had become of his sister who had married Amenophis, or whether she was alive or dead; and he invites him to send a wise man to see her and to report upon her health, the comfort in which she lives, and the honour in which she is held. If Kadashman-Enlil will give Amenophis a daughter to wife, he will send him richer gifts than any prince of Karaduniash could afford to give to him. Finally Amenophis expresses a wish that friendship may continue to exist between himself and Kadashman-Enlil, and begs him not to believe the words of the Mesopotamian envoys, who have declared that they received no gifts from the king of Egypt, and in the matter of the chariots and horses which Kadashman-Enlil has asked to be returned to him, he declares that his envoys are also unreliable.

[No. 29,784.]

No. 2. Letter from Burraburiash, king of Karaduniash, to Amenophis IV., king of Egypt, complaining that he does not send such valuable gifts to him as he sent to his father Kurigalzu. He refers to the friendly relations which existed from days of old between the royal houses of Egypt and Karaduniash, and reminds Amenophis how Kurigalzu refused to join the Canaanites in an alliance against the king of Egypt. Finally he announces the despatch of gifts of lapis-lazuli and horses. (See the translation on p. 181.)

[No. 29,785.]

No. 3. Letter from Burraburiash, king of Karaduniash, to Amenophis IV., king of Egypt, complaining that the messengers of the king of Egypt never bring him gifts, although friendship had existed between their two lands from the time of Kara-indash. He complains that twenty manebs of gold which Amenophis had sent were not full weight when put in the furnace, and proposes to exchange certain objects which he is sending to the king of Egypt for chariots, which his envoy Shindishugab will bring back. also sends various gifts for a daughter of Amenophis who married a prince of Karaduniash. [No. 29,786.]

No. 4. Letter from Burraburiash, king of Karaduniash, to Amenophis IV., king of Egypt, announcing the despatch of gifts consisting of thrones made of ushû-wood and gold and couches of ushû-wood, gold and ivory, and a number of valuable objects which were probably intended to form part of a dowry. [No. 29,787.]

No. 5. Letter from the king of Alashia to the king of Egypt announcing the despatch of five hundred talents of copper as a gift, and asking for a large amount of silver in return. The king of Alashia asks Amenophis to have the goods and property of an Alashian, who died in Egypt, collected and sent back to him: and he begs the king of Egypt not to make any treaty or league with the kings of Khatti and Shankhar. [No. 29,788.]

No. 6. Letter from the king of Alashia to the king of Egypt, announcing the despatch of a hundred talents of copper as a gift, and complaining that, while he sends presents to the king of Egypt frequently, Amenophis sends nothing to him in return. He gives a list of furniture and garments which he would like sent as a present. [No. 29,789.]

No. 7. Letter from the king of Alashia to the king of Egypt, announcing the despatch of gifts of bronze and horses, and asking Amenophis to send back silver by the hand of the Alashian messenger without delay. [No. 29,790.]

No. 8. Letter from Tushratta, king of Mitani, to Amenophis III., king of Egypt, acknowledging the receipt of despatches, and referring to the friendship which existed from ancient times between the royal houses of Mitani and Egypt. Tushratta announces the despatch of a number of valuable gifts to Amenophis by the hands of his envoy Gilia, and begs Amenophis to send him a large quantity of gold, which is to be regarded as payment for expenses incurred by his grandfather in sending gifts to the king of Egypt, and also as a gift in return for his daughter, a princess of Mitani, whom Amenophis had married. (See Plate XXXIX.) [No. 29,791.]

No. 9. Letter from Tushratta, king of Mitani, to Amenophis III., reporting that he has defeated the army of the Khatti, and announcing the despatch of a gift to the king consisting of horses and chariots, etc., and of a gift to his sister Gilukhipa,* a wife of Amenophis, of gold bracelets, earrings, a toilet bowel, and a measure of choice oil. No. 10. Letter from Tushratta, king of Mitani, to Amenophis III., king of Egypt, containing greetings to various members of the royal house, and informing him that, with the consent of the goddess Ishtar, he has sent a statue of her to Egypt. He hopes that the goddess will be held in great honour in Egypt, and that the statue may be sent back safely to Mitani (see the translation on p. 180 f.).
[No. 29,793.]

No. 11. Letter from Tushratta, king of Mitani, to Thi, the queen of Egypt, containing greetings to various members of the royal house of Egypt, and asking that certain presents may be sent from them to his wife Yuni, and stating that he is sending as a gift vessels filled with precious unguents.
[No. 29,794.]

No. 12. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting the disaffection of certain people of Byblos, that Abd-Ashirta has captured the city of Shigata and has tried to undermine the loyalty of the people of Ammia; and entreating the king to send him help, for he will be shut up in Byblos "like a bird that is caught in a net."
[No. 29,795.]

No. 13. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that the ships of Sumuru and Bérût and Sidon were blockading the coast of Amurru, and that his own ship was attacked and captured by the fleet of Yapa-Addi and Aziru. He repudiates the charges of disloyalty which have been brought against him.
[No. 29,796.]

No. 14. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that the cities of Sumuru and Bit-arkha have fallen into the hands of Yankhamu, and declaring that, unless the king sends help to the city, he and his people will abandon it and cease to be subjects of the king of Egypt.
[No. 29,797.]

No. 15. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to Amanappa, an official of the king of Egypt, asking for the despatch of troops, and reporting that Abd-ashirta has incited the people of Ammia to rebel.
[No. 29,798.]

No. 16. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that Ammunira, governor of Bérût, had refused to help him, and that he is still faithful to the king, and in urgent need of help.
[No. 29,799.]

No. 17. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that Abd-Ashirta has captured Bérût, and in a very short time the city of Byblos will be besieged by him.
[No. 29,800.]

No. 18. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that the city of Sumuru has been surrendered by Khaib, its governor, and that the Egyptian resident official has been killed; that the rebel Aziru is plotting the downfall of Byblos, and that, unless soldiers are sent to protect this city and Kumidi, they will certainly fall.

[No. 29,801.]

No. 19. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, reporting that Aziru has defeated him, and has carried off all the oxen and corn which were in the city; that the soldiers have departed to other places where corn is to be had; and that Aziru and Abd-Ashirta, the rebels, are too strong for him to resist.
[No. 29,802.]

No. 20. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to the king of Egypt, complaining that Bikhura has employed certain nomads for deeds of violence within the territory of Byblos, and asking for the return of three of his enemies whom Bikhura has sent to Egypt.
[No. 29,803.]

No. 21. Letter from Rib-Adda, governor of Byblos, to Amanappa, an official of the king of Egypt, reporting that the enemy's attack is becoming fiercer; that provisions have been scarce for three years past; and concluding with the request that troops may be sent.

No. 87. Mythological text relating how the god Nergal married Ereshkigal, the goddess of the Lower World. Having, at the invitation of the gods, sent Namtar her messenger to heaven, she was angered at Nergal's treatment of him, and sent back her messenger with the demand that he should bring Nergal to her that she might slay him. Nergal thereupon forced his way through the fourteen gates of the Lower World into the presence of Ereshkigal, whom he seized by the hair with the intention of beheading her. At her earnest entreaty, however, he dropped his hand and spared her life, consenting to become her husband and to rule conjointly with her over the Lower World. [No. 29,865.]

No. 88. Parts of a mould or covering of a tablet.
[No. 24,631.]

Table-Case G. In the upper portion of this case are exhibited records of the great building operations carried on in Babylon and other cities by kings of the last Babylonian Empire. The earliest is the cone of Nabopolassar, in which he recounts the restoration of the temple of Merodach at Babylon. The latest is the cylinder of Antiochus Soter, recording the restoration of the ancient temples of Babylon and Borsippa (see p. 18 f. and Plates VII and VIII). In the lower portion of the case is arranged a comprehensive selection of legal and commercial tablets, among which are included a number of interesting documents relating to temple-revenues, etc. These are arranged in chronological order, and the period covered by them extends from the reign of Esarhaddon to the Seleucid and Arsacid eras, i.e., from B.C. 677 to B.C. 94. Many of the tablets are known as "Egibi tablets" from the fact that they record business transactions carried out by members of the great mercantile house, or family, founded at Babylon by the wealthy merchant named Egibi, or Sin-muballit. Among the most active members of the family were Nabû-akhê-iddina, his son Itti-Marduk-balâtu, and his grandson Marduk-nasir-aplu. For a representative selection of such documents, cf. Nos. 83, 124 f., 127, 182–185, 216, 239, 251, 271–274, 276–278, 311, 318, etc.

No. 1. Baked clay cone of Nabopolassar, king of Babylon, from B.C. 625 to B.C. 604, inscribed with a text recording the restoration of the temple of Marduk at Babylon. [No. 91,090.]

No. 2. Earthen core from the inside of the above cone.
[No. 91,089.]

Nos. 3 and 4. Two baked clay solid cones of Nabopolassar, recording the cutting of a canal from the river Euphrates to the city of Sippar. The sides of the canal were made of bricks set in bitumen, and it is probable that it followed the course of the old canal which Hammurabi cut about fifteen hundred years before. [Nos. 91,104, 91,105.]

Example of a one maneh weight of Nebuchadnezzar II., king of Babylon.
[Table-Case G, No. 5; No. 91,005.]

No. 5. One maneh weight with an inscription in the Babylonian character, stating that it is an exact copy of a weight made by Nebuchadnezzar II., king of Babylon, from B.C. 604 to

B.C. 561, after the standard fixed by Dungi, king of Ur about B.C. 2500. The text states that this weight was in the private possession of Marduk-shar-ilâni. Presented by the late Rev. Greville J. Chester, B.A., 1892.
[No. 91,005.]

Nos. 6–51. A series of barrel-shaped cylinders inscribed with a record of the building operations of Nebuchadnezzar II. in Babylon and other great cities of his empire. These documents, together with the famous East India House Inscription, a cast of which is exhibited in Wall-Case 18, No. 181, supply abundant details of the building of temples, the restoration of shrines, and the repairing and reconstruction of the great walls of the city of Babylon, but they contain no mention whatever of the wars and conquests undertaken by this king during his reign. The texts set out at great length the piety of the king, and several paragraphs in each are devoted to a description of the honour in which he held the great gods. Stated briefly the principal building operations of Nebuchadnezzar may be thus summarized:—The restoration of the Temple of Merodach at Babylon, and the rebuilding of the shrines of the gods connected therewith; the repair, or rebuilding, of the great city walls of Babylon called Imgur-Bêl and Nimitti-Bêl; the building of the Temple of the goddess Nin-Karrak at Sippar; the building of the Temple of the Sun-god at Larsa; the building of the Temple of the Sun-god at Sippar; the building of the Lugal-Marada Temple; the building of the Temple of the goddess Ninmakh in Babylon; and the clearing out of the Eastern Canal of Babylon and the strengthening of its banks. Apart from these works Nebuchadnezzar II. devoted great attention to the repair and completion of the very ancient shrine of the god Nebo at Borsippa, the modern Birs Nimrûd, which has been identified with the Tower of Babel. Nebuchadnezzar tells us that a king of olden time had built this famous tower to a height of forty-two cubits, but that the upper portion of it had never been finished, and that heavy rains and storms had broken down the walls and had stripped off their facings, and that the inner chambers were in ruins. This temple was rebuilt by Nebuchadnezzar in seven stages, each of which was faced with glazed tiles of a different colour (see Wall-Cases 42–44), and it was called E-ur-imin-an-ki, i.e., “The Temple of the seven divisions of the Heavens and the Earth.” [Nos. 32,935, 32,936, 33,074, 33,088, 33,097, 46,535, 46,536, 85,975, 90,908, 90,986, 91,091–91,103, 91,106, 91,108, 91,111, 91,113, 91,114, 91,116, 91,118–91,123, 91,129, 91,131–91,138, 91,141, 91,142.]

No. 52. Baked clay cylinder of Neriglissar, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 559–556, inscribed with an account of his building operations in Babylonia.
[No. 90,913.]

the account of the rebuilding by Nabonidus of the temple of the Moon-god in Ur [Mukeyyer] on the site of the older temple which was founded by the ancient Babylonian kings Ur-Engur and Dungi, his son, about B.C. 2500. The text concludes with a prayer to the Moon-god on behalf of Nabonidus and of his eldest son Bêl-shar-uṣur [Belshazzar], which reads as follows:—

“ O Sin (i.e., the Moon-god), thou Lord of the gods, thou king of “ the gods of Heaven and of earth, and of the gods of the gods, “ who dwellest in Heaven, when thou enterest with joy into this “ temple may the good fortune of the temples E-sagil, E-zida, and “ E-gish-shir-gal, the temples of thine exalted godhead, be “ established at thy word. And set thou the fear of thine exalted “ godhead in the hearts of my people, that they sin not against “ thine exalted godhead, and let them stand fast like the heavens. “ And as for me, Nabonidus, the king of Babylon, protect thou me “ from sinning against thine exalted godhead, and grant thou me “ graciously a long life; and in the heart of Belshazzar, my first- “ born son, the off-spring of my loins, set the fear of thine exalted “ godhead, so that he may commit no sin and that he may be satis- “ fied with the fulness of life! ” (See Plate XL.)

Nos. 57–60, 62, 63. Baked clay cylinders of Nabonidus, king of Babylon, from B.C. 555 to B.C. 538, inscribed with a record of his building operations. [Nos. 42,267, 42,269, 91,087, 91,088, 91,110, 91,140.]

Nos. 61 and 64. Baked clay cylinder of Nabonidus, king of Babylonia, B.C. 555–538, inscribed with an account of his building operations. He records the restoration of the temple of Shamash at Larsa, which had been wrecked in the reign of Nebuchadnezzar II., and describes the discovery of the monuments of Burnaburiash, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 1425, and of Khammurabi, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 2200. At Agade, an ancient city of Northern Babylonia, he found in the foundations of the temple of E-ulmash an inscription of Sargon I. [see above, p. 3] and Narâm-Sin, his son, which had been sought for in vain by Kurigalzu, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 1400; by Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, about B.C. 681–668; and by Nebuchadnezzar II., king of Babylonia, about B.C. 604–561. Nabonidus also refers to the discovery of a foundation-stone which Shagaraktiburiash, a former king of Babylon, had placed in the temple of E-ulmash in Sippar.

No. 65. Baked clay cylinder of Nabonidus, inscribed with an account of his building operations and of the chief events of his reign. In the text the king describes himself as “ the great king, “ the mighty king, the king of the world, the king of Babylon, the “ king of the four quarters (of heaven and earth), the patron of E-sagil,

"and E-zida," and he states that before his birth the gods Sin and Nergal had assigned to him a royal destiny. The text goes on to say that the god Sin in times past was wroth with his people, and that he brought the Scythians into the city of Harran, where they destroyed the temple called E-khul-khul. In the beginning of his reign Nabonidus had a dream in which "Marduk the great Lord, " and Sin, the Light of Heaven and Earth, stood one on each side of "me, and the god Marduk spake unto me, saying: 'O Nabonidus, " thou king of Babylon, with the horses of thy chariot bring thou " bricks, and build the shrine of E-khul-khul, and make thou Sin, " the great Lord, to dwell in his habitation.' And I said unto " Marduk, the Lord of the gods, 'The Scythian hath possession of " the temple, which thou commandest me to build, and his strength " is mighty.' Then Marduk spake unto me, saying:—'The " Scythian of whom thou speakest, himself, and his land, and the " kings who are his allies, have come to an end.' " And in accordance with the words of the god, Cyrus, king of Anzan, attacked the hordes of the Scythians and captured their king Astyages, and carried him captive to his own land. As a thank offering for his deliverance from the Scythians Nabonidus rebuilt the temple of Sin, the Moon-god. He also describes how he rebuilt the temple of the Sun-god at Sippar, which had been restored by Nebuchadnezzar II. forty-five years before, and in the course of the work he found an inscription of Narâm-Sin, the son of Sargon I., the original founder of the temple, which for 3200 years had not been seen. From this statement, the date of the reign of Narâm-Sin has been set at about B.C. 3750 (but see above, p. 3). Nabonidus also rebuilt the temple of the goddess Anunitum at Sippar, where he discovered the inscription of Shagaraktiburiash, who, according to the statement in the text, restored the temple 800 years before. The text concludes with a prayer to the goddess Anunitum. (See Plate XLI.)

No. 66. Basalt weight for two-thirds of a maneh and one shekel; the trilingual inscription in Persian, Susian, and Babylonian, records the name of Darius, the son of Hystaspes, the Achaemenian, who reigned from about B.C. 520 to B.C. 485.

[No. 91,117.]

No. 67. Portion of a baked clay cylinder of Cyrus, king of Babylonia, about B.C. 538–529, inscribed in the Babylonian character with an account of his conquest of Babylonia, and of the chief events of his reign in that country. The following is a rendering of the most important part of the inscription, in which he says: "He "(i.e., Marduk) sought out a righteous prince, a man after his own " heart, whom he might take by the hand; and he called his name " Cyrus, king of Anshan, and he proclaimed his name for sovereignty " over the whole world. The hordes of the land of Kutu he forced "into submission at his feet, and the men whom (the god) had "delivered into his hands he justly and righteously cared for. And "Marduk, the great Lord, the protector of his people, beheld his "good deeds and his righteous heart with joy. He commanded him "to go to Babylon, and he caused him to set out on the road to that "city and like a friend and ally he marched by his side; and his "troops, with their weapons girt about them, marched with him, in "countless numbers like the waters of a flood. Without battle and "without fighting Marduk made him enter into his city of Babylon; "he spared Babylon tribulation, and Nabonidus, the king who feared "him not, he delivered into his hand." The text goes on to state that the inhabitants paid homage to him, and the peoples round about brought him tribute. With a view of centralising their worship, the former king Nabonidus had gathered together into Babylon the images of the gods from the local temples, but this act provoked Merodach to wrath, and the god decreed his destruction. After the occupation of the city by the Persians, Cyrus conciliated the Babylonians by restoring the images to their original shrines.

Table-Case H. In the upper portion of this case are exhibited a most important collection of historical Assyrian cylinders, etc., which record the history of Assyria from B.C. 705 to about B.C. 625. These documents are in every respect unique specimens of their class. In the lower portion of the case are a series of gold ornaments, necklaces, beads, and a miscellaneous collection of small objects which were found during the excavations undertaken for the Trustees of the British Museum in Assyria and Babylonia during the last fifty-five years.

Nos. 1–4. Baked clay cylinders inscribed with an account of the first three campaigns of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, from about B.C. 705–681. The text records the defeat of Merodach-Baladan, king of Babylon; the subjugation of the Kassites, the Medes, and other nations on the Eastern frontier of Assyria; the invasion of Palestine, the siege of Jerusalem, and the payment of tribute to Assyria by Hezekiah, king of Judah.
[Nos. 22,500, 22,501, 22,503, 22,504.]

No. 5. Baked clay cylinder inscribed with an account of the first and second campaigns of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, from about B.C. 705–681, against Merodach-Baladan, king of Babylon, and against the Kassites, the Medes, and other nations on the eastern frontier of Assyria. The text concludes with a description of Sennacherib's building operations at Nineveh. The above cylinders are dated in the eponymy of Mitunu, about B.C. 700, and in the eponymy of Nabû-li'û, about B.C. 702.
[No. 22,502.]

No. 6. Six-sided baked clay cylinder inscribed with an account of eight campaigns of Sennacherib, king of Assyria, from about B.C. 705 to 681. The text records the defeat of Merodach-Baladan, king of Babylon, and the sack of his city, the subjugation of the Kassites, the Medes, and the other nations on the eastern frontier of Assyria, the invasion of Palestine, and the siege of Jerusalem; the deposition of Merodach-Baladan in favour of Ashur-nadin-shum, the son of Sennacherib; the conquest of the mountain tribes on the north-west frontier of Assyria; Sennacherib's naval expedition across the head of the Persian Gulf in pursuit of the Babylonian rebels ; the restoration of territory in Elam to Assyria ; and the subsequent defeat and final subjugation of the Elamites and the Babylonians. The text concludes with the description of the new palace which Sennacherib built at Nineveh. According to this inscription the siege of Jerusalem by Sennacherib took place in his third campaign. Having received the submission of the kings of Phœnicia and Palestine, and having defeated the Egyptians at Altaku, he marched against Hezekiah, king of Judah. The following is the Assyrian official account of the siege of Jerusalem :—“I drew nigh to Ekron and I slew the “governors and princes who had transgressed, and I hung upon “poles round about the city their dead bodies ; the people of the “city who had done wickedly and had committed offences I counted “as spoil, but those who had not done these things and who were “not taken in iniquity I pardoned. I brought their king Padî “forth from Jerusalem and I established him upon the throne of “dominion over them, and I laid tribute upon him. I then besieged

No. 10. Black basalt memorial-stone inscribed in the archaic Babylonian character with an account of the restoration of the walls and temples of Babylon, by Esarhaddon, king of Assyria, about B.C. 681–668. The text records that the Babylonians, by an act of sacrilege committed during the reign of a former king, had incurred the wrath of Merodach, who laid waste the city and destroyed the inhabitants with rains and floods; the gods forsook their shrines, and the people were carried away captive. Subsequently, however, Merodach had pity on the Babylonians, and ordered Esarhaddon, whom he had called to the throne of Assyria, to rebuild Babylon. The Assyrian king straightway collected materials and workmen and rebuilt the temple E-sagil, and the two great walls of the city ; he also furnished the shrines of the gods with new images and led back the people from captivity. On the top of the stone are sculptured a sacred tree, the horned head-dress resting upon a shrine, and other symbols. Presented by the Earl of Aberdeen, 1860.

No. 212. Stone axe-head from Mukeyyur.

Nos. 213-218. Earthenware models of tools and weapons from Parthian tombs.

No. 219. Bronze model of a man making an offering.

Nos. 220 and 221. Sassanian inlaid silver bracelets from Kouyunjik.

No. 222. Green-stone object with eight sides, which was dedicated as a votive offering in the temple of the Sun-god in the city of Sippar. One end is rounded and the other is fixed into a bronze socket made in the shape of the head of a ram, the nose of which terminates in a ring. The eyes were inlaid with precious stones. The inscription upon it states that it was dedicated to Shamash, the Sun-god, by Tukulti-Mer, king of Khana. The date of this king is unknown.

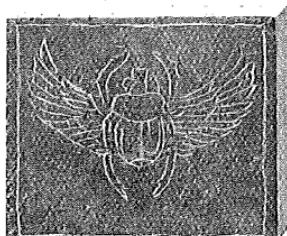

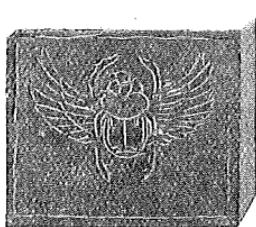

No. 223. Fragments of ivory figures of an Assyrian king.

Nos. 224 and 225. Silver coins of Lycia, Samos, Cyprus, Athens, Aegina, Tyre and Sidon, and portions of silver objects which formed the stock in trade of a silversmith at Babylon.

No. 226. Bronze mould for casting arrow-heads, found near Mosul.

No. 231. Bronze pendant with a figure of a Babylonian demon in relief; it was probably employed in incantations for the benefit of the sick.

Nos. 233 and 234. Bronze weights inlaid in gold with figures of a beetle; the smaller weighs 5 oz. 296 gr. and the larger 8 oz. 263 gr. They were found at Nimrûd, whither they were probably taken from Egypt.

Bronze weights inlaid in gold with figures of a beetle. From Nimrûd.
[Table-Case H, Nos. 233, 234.]

Nos. 254-288. A miscellaneous collection of necklaces made of agate, onyx, chalcedony, carnelian, jasper, crystal, sard, garnet, glass, porcelain, paste and stone beads, from various sites in Assyria and Babylonia; many of them exhibit traces of Egyptian influence.

Table-cases I and J. Here are exhibited:—I. A large and very important collection of precious stones cut into seals and finger-rings, rectangular plaques, etc., many of which date from the Sassanian period* and are inscribed in the Pehlevi character, and a number of bezels of rings, the designs on which were copied during the centuries immediately following the Arabic conquest by seal engravers living in Armenia and Persia (Nos. 1–775). II. A collection of scarabs, scaraboids, and plaques made in Egypt and Syria, but found chiefly in Mesopotamia (Nos. 776–883). III. A series of fine chalcedony cones inscribed with religious and other scenes, and belonging to the Assyrian, Parthian, and Sassanian periods (Nos. 814–1018). IV. A few modern imitations of the same (Nos. 1030–1034). V. Some interesting haematite seals inscribed in the so-called Hittite character (Nos. 1025, 1027–1029). All the above, with the exception of the modern imitations, were made between about B.C. 1350 and A.D. 1300, and they were found in Western Asia. The rings and other objects in Pehlevi are for the most part made of agate, chalcedony, sard, sardonyx, onyx, carnelian, jasper, garnet, haematite and niccolo, these being very favourite stones among the Persians and cognate peoples. The Pehlevi inscriptions are written in a script which is thought to have been derived from a Semitic alphabet, probably Syriac. The objects portrayed on the gems are lions, bulls, winged horses, stags, apes, goats, birds, reptiles such as scorpions and snakes, palm-branches, hands holding flowers, and a number of mystic symbols, many of which seem to have been derived from foreign sources. A large number of the rings and bezels are engraved with the heads of royal personages, noblemen and the like, and the finest of them are accompanied by proper names.

On the west side of Table-case I. are exhibited some interesting examples of hymns written in the Sumerian and Babylonian languages, a number of tablets relating to religious ceremonies, omens and forecasts, selections from a series of tablets inscribed with mathematical calculations, and astronomical and tabulated observations. The astronomical tablets are of considerable interest, for they have enabled recent investigators to ascertain to what extent the lunar and stellar tables of the Babylonians have scientific accuracy. The astronomical knowledge possessed by the priests of the later periods of Babylonian history enabled them to form a comparatively accurate calendar, but in the earliest times it seems to have been chiefly applied to deducing astrological omens and forecasts. The year contained twelve months, some having twenty-nine and some thirty days, the difference between the lunar and solar years being adjusted by the insertion of intercalary months—a second Elul and a second Adar. The Assyrians made use of a second Adar only. The Babylonians were star-gazers from a very early period, and according to one tradition they were said to possess calculations which extended over a period of seven hundred and twenty thousand years! The tablets exhibited in this Case belong to the period of the rule of the Seleucidæ and Arsacidæ,* and at this time the astronomers devoted themselves to observing and calculating the time of new and full moon, the periodical occurrence of lunar and solar eclipses, and in tabulating the positions of the planets and some of the fixed stars. Along the top of the case are arranged a selection of letters of the late Babylonian period.

* The first of the Sassanian kings was Ardashir, who began to reign A.D. 226, and the last was Yazdegerd, who began to reign A.D. 632.

Nos. 1 and 2. Two copies of a hymn to the Sun-god, written in the Sumerian language, and accompanied by a translation in Babylonian.
[Nos. 33,328, 36,041.]

No. 3. Part of a tablet containing prayers and directions for ceremonies. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph."
[No. 92,708.]

No. 4. Part of a tablet inscribed with prayers in the Sumerian and Babylonian languages, and with directions for the performance of ceremonies.
[No. 92,686.]

No. 5. Tablet inscribed with a series of omens which formed the fortieth section of a larger work. It was made from a tablet in Borsippa by Marduk-naṣir, who dedicated it as a votive offering in the temple E-zida.
[No. 92,690.]

No. 6. Tablet inscribed with a series of omens which formed the thirty-sixth section of a larger work. This copy was made from an older tablet in the city of Borsippa.
[No. 92,694.]

No. 7. Tablet inscribed with a series of omens which formed the seventh section of a larger work. This copy was made from an older tablet in Borsippa.
[No. 38,587.]

No. 8. Tablet containing astrological forecasts derived from observations of various stars, etc. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph."
[No. 92,705.]

* The Seleucid era began B.C. 312, and the Arsacid era B.C. 248.

No. 9. Part of an astrological text in the Sumerian and Babylonian languages, which formed the twenty-second tablet of a series. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph."

[No. 92,704.]

No. 10. Part of a tablet containing astrological forecasts. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph."

[No. 92,685.]

No. 11. Part of a tablet containing astrological forecasts. Presented by the Proprietors of the "Daily Telegraph."

[No. 92,684.]

No. 12. Part of a tablet inscribed with a series of omens derived from eclipses of the sun and moon. [No. 92,709.]

No. 13. Tablet inscribed with a list of the names of stars with explanatory remarks. It was written by Nabû-iddin-akhi, and deposited as a votive offering in the temple E-zida at Babylon.

[No. 42,262.]

No. 14. Tablet inscribed with a calendar in which the lucky and unlucky days of the year are distinguished. [No. 32,641.]

No. 15. Tablet inscribed with a series of numbers from one to fifty, and the amounts obtained by multiplying them by forty-five. This multiplication table was probably employed in making astronomical calculations. [No. 92,703.]

No. 16. Part of a tablet inscribed with a list of numbers from one to sixty, and their squares. [No. 92,680.]

No. 17. Tablet inscribed with lists of numbers, and their squares and cubes, etc. [No. 92,698.]

No. 18. Astronomical tablets containing observations and calculations of the New Moon for three consecutive years, i.e., from 23rd March, B.C. 103, to 18th April, B.C. 100. This tablet was compiled in the city of Sippar. [No. 34,580.]

No. 19. Part of an astronomical tablet containing observations of the New and Full Moon for one year, compiled by Iddin-Bêl, the son of Bêl-akhê-usur. [No. 45,694.]

No. 20. Part of an astronomical tablet containing observations of the New and Full Moon for one year. [No. 34,047.]

No. 21. Part of an astronomical tablet containing observations of the New and Full Moon. [No. 34,575.]

No. 22. Part of an astronomical tablet with observations of the New and Full Moon. [No. 35,048.]

No. 23. Part of an astronomical tablet containing observations of the New and Full Moon for one year. [No. 34,088.]

No. 24. Part of an astronomical tablet containing observations of the New and Full Moon for one year. [No. 34,066.]

No. 25. Astronomical tablet inscribed with a series of lunar observations extending over a period of more than twenty-three years, i.e., from B.C. 174 to B.C. 151. [No. 45,688.]

No. 26. Astronomical tablet with observations of the Moon and planets for parts of the year B.C. 232 and B.C. 231. Notes are added concerning the current prices of grain and dates, the height of water in the Euphrates, etc. [No. 33,837.]

No. 27. Part of an astronomical tablet with observations of the Moon and planets for parts of the years B.C. 273 and B.C. 272. Notes are added concerning the current price of grain, dates, etc., the movements of the king and of governors of cities, the prevalence of sickness, etc. [No. 92,688.]

No. 28. Astronomical tablet with observations of the Moon and of the planets Venus, Mercury, Saturn, and Mars. [No. 32,222.]

No. 29. Astronomical tablet containing observations of the planets Jupiter, Venus, Mercury, Saturn, and Mars. [No. 92,682.]

No. 30. Part of a Babylonian treatise on astronomy, containing rules for making calculations, etc. This tablet served as a reading-book for students of astronomy. [No. 32,651.]

No. 31. Copy of part of a Babylonian treatise on astronomy and astrology which served as a reading-book for students in the city of Borsippa. This copy was made in Borsippa by Bêl-akhê-iddina in the year B.C. 138. [No. 34,035.]

Nos. 32-50. A selection of letters of the late Babylonian Period. Unlike the letters of the early Babylonian and Assyrian Periods (see pp. 64 ff., 132 f., 136 ff., 177 ff.), tablets of this class afford little information of an historical character; they are mainly of interest for the light they throw on the social and commercial condition of the country, and on the common forms of expression and grammatical idioms in use at the time. Nos. 32-35 are of greater interest than the majority of letters of this class, and they may be referred to the end of the seventh century B.C. The bulk of the letters of this class that have as yet been recovered are later, dating from the latter part of the period of the Second Babylonian Empire and the beginning of that of the Persian Empire in Babylon. It will be seen that they are written on exceedingly small tablets, which a messenger could easily carry and conceal upon his person.

Nos. 32 and 33. Two copies of a letter from the king to Shadūnu ordering him to have copies made of a number of magical texts. The "king" here mentioned may well have been Ashurbanī-pal, king of Assyria B.C. 668–625; and, if this be so, the copies of the magical texts were probably required for the Royal Library at Nineveh (see p. 40 f.). [Nos. 25,676, 25,678.]

Nos. 34 and 35. Portions of letters written by military officers to the king. They refer to military operations, and probably describe events which immediately preceded the fall of Assyria and the capture and destruction of Nineveh (see p. 10 f.).

[Nos. 38,493 + 38,852, 51,082.]

Nos. 36–44. Examples of private dated letters. The majority of the letters bear no dates, but a few are dated of which the following are a selection:—Nos. 36–38 are dated in the eleventh, fifteenth, and sixteenth years of Nabonidus; Nos. 39–41 are dated in the fifth, seventh, and eighth years of Cyrus; Nos. 42 and 43 are dated in the second and sixth years of Cambyses; and No. 44 is dated in the fifth year of Darius. [Nos. 74,350, 75,734, 60,502, 74,378, 60,078, 60,582, 60,732, 75,492, 76,701.]

No. 45. Letter from Iddina-aplu, who is on a journey, to his kinswoman Kudashu, complaining that she has not written to him, and sending greetings to members of his family.

[No. 31,121.]

No. 46. Letter from Nabû-zér-ushabshi to Zikkû, his wife, stating that he has ordered her a supply of corn, and commanding her to be diligent in her household duties and to pray to the gods on his behalf. [No. 31,290.]

No. 47. Letter from Nergal-ushallim to Iddina-aplu, asking him to recover and send back to him his female slave who has run away. [No. 85,500.]

No. 48. Letter from Balâtsu to the Priest of Sippar, forwarding an inventory of sheep belonging to the Chief Priest of Ai and others. [No. 50,524.]

Nos. 49 and 50. Letter from Nabû-aplu-iddina to Murânu, enquiring why he has not sent the supply of dates for the month Nisan, and instructing him to send four lambs to him at Babylon. Beside the tablet is the clay envelope within which it was enclosed; it is impressed with Nabû-aplu-iddina's seal, and is inscribed with the address. For some reason the letter was not delivered, and was thus recovered with the envelope unbroken.
